Shipbuilders To Get Plea Of Roosevelt To End Strike

President Expected To Order Seizure Of Yards Unless Company Complies

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt is making a personal, eleventh-hour appeal to the United States Steel Co. and its subsidiary, the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., to accept National Defense Mediation Board recommendations in order to end the 12-day strike of the key defense shipyards, it was learned from an informed source last night.

Decision to make the appeal, it was understood, was adopted by the President at a conference yesterday afternoon with Navy Secretary Knox, OPM Codirector Sidney Hillman and Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis, after all previous methods to obtain resumption of operations on 493 million dollars of defense contracts had failed.

Officials Still Hopeful

Details of the Chief Executive's request, it was believed, will not be made public until the shipbuilding company's reply has been received. A negative reply, it is known, will be followed by immediate Federal occupation of the yards, located at Kearny, N. J.

There was some hope in official quarters, however, that Mr. Roosevelt's request might succeed in effecting an amicable termination of the dispute despite the company's consistent refusals to date to accede to the Mediation Board's settlement proposal.

The strike, beginning August 7, was called by the C. I. O. shipbuilding workers after the company declined to grant a "maintenance of membership" clause, as recommended by the board. About 17,000 workers are involved.

Yesterday, the C. I. O. threw a mass picket line about the silent yards as a "protest demonstration" against a statement by Albert W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, criticizing the closed shop as "un-American and monopolistic." Board Chairman Davis, however, recently declared that the closed shop was not an issue in the case and denied that the board recommendations for membership even approximated a closed shop, as alleged earlier in a formal statement by L. H. Korndorff, president of the company.

Ready to Move In

That all details have been perfected for Government occupation of the plant if the company fails to heed the Presidential plea was confirmed yesterday by a statement of Hudson County (N. J.) Police Chief Patrick Nolan that Federal forces were preparing to move into the plant, the second biggest on the Atlantic Coast, "when and if the President orders it taken over."

Hillman's conference with the President held him away from the opening of a meeting he called yesterday with West Coast aircraft companies and representatives of their labor.

The meeting, for the purpose of effecting a regional agreement in the industry stabilizing wages and working conditions, was understood to have snagged on the issue of A. F. L. versus C. I. O.

The latter organization's United Auto Workers aircraft division is

30 Hurt in Crash When Boy Hurls Rock at Train

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—A rock, hurled by an unidentified youngster, today caused the crash of two trains of the Staten Island Rapid Transit, injuring 30 passengers.

Police quoted the motorman of one train as saying that he was forced to stop abruptly, when the rock crashed through his window. A train behind ran against the rear of the first on a slightly elevated stretch between the Tompkinsville and Stapleton stations. Police said eight of the injured were hospitalized.

Two Reported Killed In Streamliner Crash

Shreveport, La., Aug. 18 (AP).—Officials of the L. and A. K. C. S. lines reported tonight that the southbound streamliner, the Southern Belle, crashed into a freight train near Vivian, La.

It was reported the engineer and fireman of the streamliner were killed.

2 Americans Aboard Plane Lost in Brazil

By the Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro (Tuesday), Aug. 19. Nine passengers, including Prof. Philip C. Jessup, internationally known lawyer and lecturer of New York, and four crewmen were missing today aboard a Panair Do Brazil passenger plane, hours overdue at Sao Paulo.

The plane was scheduled to arrive at Sao Paulo at 1 p. m. yesterday after halting at Curityba, some 200 miles from Sao Paulo, while en route from Porto Alegre.

It had been missing six hours when the line, nationalized Brazilian subsidiary of Pan American Airways, announced last night that it was overdue.

The Lockheed Electra plane was in radio communication with Sao Paulo Airport a few minutes before it was scheduled to land, but a plane searched the surrounding countryside all afternoon without finding a trace of it.

Jessup, a professor at Columbia University and formerly a member of the State Department's legal staff, has been traveling in South America on a mission for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

He had delivered a lecture at Porto Alegre before boarding the plane for Sao Paulo.

Hugh Davies, described as an American businessman living in Sao Paulo, also was aboard the plane.

Six Dead, U. S. Probes Blaze At N. Y. Pier

Million-Dollar Fire Razes Ship, Defense Materials; 60 Hurt

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 18.—An inferno, spread by half a dozen gasoline explosions, raced today over a 532-foot Brooklyn pier, killed at least six men, injured 60 and destroyed a ship, a dozen barges, the pier and defense materials, which brought the total estimated damage to more than $1,000,000.

Although sabotage was suspected immediately and its possibility investigated by six Federal and local agencies and a special board created in Washington by Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, Police Capt. John J. McGowan and Assistant District Attorney Edward J. Hefferman said they believed a longshoreman had been "sneaking a smoke" on the pier and somehow set fire to a highly inflammable bale of hemp which had just been unloaded.

Police launches took three bodies from the water near the pier. Police and firemen at the scene said the bodies of at least three other victims had been seen but not recovered. A dozen other men including Capt. H. Teske, skipper of the freighter, were unaccounted for and it was feared that some had been trapped aboard the freighter the 3570-ton Panuco of the New York & Cuba Mail Line, which docked yesterday morning from Cuba, via Tampico, Mexico, Philadelphia and Kearny Point, N. J.

The blazing vessel was towed to the Governor's Island mud flats where it burned to the water level.

Barges destroyed in the rapidly spreading fire were waiting to load on a cargo of crude oil, copper and cable, structural steel, bales of cotton and soda ash as soon as the Panuco was unloaded. All was destroyed.

A coordinated investigation was begun by the Federal Bureau of In-

Nazis Report 'Rout'

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Tuesday), Aug. 19.—German and Rumanian troops were reported today to be tightening their encirclement of Odessa, where waves of Stukas blasted at Soviet transports to prevent any "Dunkerque escape."

Dive bombers also were said to have put the whole of the Dnieper River bend under continuous assault to break up the Red retreat and keep the wide stream from being converted into an effective defense line.

D. N. B., the official news agency, said six Russian transports aggregating 15,000 tons, a cruiser and a torpedo boat were disabled or badly damaged in attacks on Odessa Harbor.

Fighting Still in Nicholaev

In the field, the Soviet armies of the southern Ukraine were officially described by the German high command as defeated and in flight, which in some areas was "like a rout."

German bombs beat heavily, said front reports, on the great industrial area of Dnieperopetrovsk, which lies but 80 miles northeast of the captured town of Krivoi Rog.

D. N. B. said German panzer units had occupied one small town in the Dnieper bend Sunday, capturing or destroying 100 trucks and "the entire provisioning, supplies and facilities for one division" as well as taking 500 prisoners.

In the Black Sea port of Nikolaev, whose occupation by the Germans was announced Sunday, it was declared that the remnants of four Russian divisions were destroyed in their efforts to break out.

Aerial attacks in the Dnieperopetrovsk area, in one of which 24 American-made or American-designed Martin bombers were reported destroyed on the ground, were subordinated in importance to the Luftwaffe's broader assignment along the Dnieper, where it winds to the south and southwest of that city.

Other Reports Vague

In Baltimore, officials of the Glenn L. Martin Co. discounted German reports that 25 American-made Martin bombers were destroyed by Nazi fliers. A more likely story, they declared, was this:

(Twin-engined bombers of Russian make, used extensively in Spain, were conceived by the Russian designer A. M. Topoloff who took his idea from a magazine photograph of a Martin B-10, first flown in 1932. These were the bombers destroyed yesterday, similar, to the B-10 externally but completely different structurally.)

Few bridges span the river and so Soviet craft of all types were under violent aerial fire. Specifically reported sunk were one gun-

Cheer From Churchill

President Gives Hill Leaders Optimistic Report on Russia

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

An optimistic report on Russia's ability to hold out through the winter and a forecast of ultimate Nazi collapse yesterday was presented to Congressional leaders by President Roosevelt.

Key members of House and Senate returned to the Capitol with the inside story of the President's rendezvous at sea and told reporters they "felt very much encouraged."

Russia, described as adequately supplied with food and money, and with larger stocks of reserve equipment than the Nazis had counted on, was given an excellent chance of holding her army intact, even if Odessa and Leningrad fall.

Administration leaders were told to expect a request for five to six billion dollars additional in lend-lease appropriations the next month for an extended and revitalized program of aid, without military commitments.

The President was represented as both cheerful and confident following his sea talks with Winston Churchill and his optimism on the war's course was reflected in the brightened attitude of his leaders.

Participating in the hour-and-a-half White House conference were Vice President Wallace, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee, Chairman Sol Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Beaverbrook, OPM Chiefs Meet Today

The second half of the OPM's dual job of supplying material for domestic defense and aid to Britain will be emphasized at a meeting of the full OPM council today by Lord Beaverbrook, English minister of supply. It was learned yesterday that the dynamic publisher, the "one-man OPM" of England, has been invited to meet with Directors Knudsen and Hillman, War Secretary Stimson and Navy Secretary Knox at the council's regular Tuesday meeting.

Longer Draft And Lower Age Limit Signed

President Makes 2 Selective Service Measures Law

President Roosevelt's signature on two new laws gave him authority yesterday to extend by 18 months the service of the Army's rank and file and lowered to 28 the top age limit for Selective Service trainees.

The President is expected to issue soon an order, under his new authority, extending the service of men in the Regular Army, the National Guard, Reserve officers and Selective Service trainees. He did not do so yesterday.

An important aspect of the service extension measure is that it permits the President to expand the Army in time of emergency. Limits of 900,000 on the number of trainees who may be in service at any one time are now removed.

The other bill that the President signed into law granted mandatory deferment from Selective Service to men who were 28 years old last July 1. Registrants who reached their twenty-eighth birthday after that date may be automatically deferred next July 1, but are liable for induction up to that time.

Officials estimated that lowering of the top draft age from 35 to 28 assured approximately eight million men of deferment unless, of course, the United States goes to war.

Administration leaders were visibly relieved by signature of the controversial service extension measure.

U. S. Tells Oil Industry to Fix Gas Quotas

'Uniform Percentages Of Curtailment' Are Asked by Davies

Acting Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies yesterday asked the East Coast Petroleum Marketing Committee in New York to fix "uniform percentages of curtailment" for the delivery of rationed gasoline to nonpreferred consumers.

The recommendation was made in a letter addressed to Eastern gas supply houses, and was the first step in an effort to clarify a method of carrying out the recently ordered 10 per cent reduction of gasoline sales in the East.

The letter asked that the marketing committee first estimate the supply necessary to fulfill the requirements of so-called "preferred deliveries," certain classes of public service and business cars, which will continue to receive a 100 per cent gallonage.

It then suggested that the committee seek to institute the uniform curtailment in deliveries for ordinary consumer use.

"Action will be prompt in passing on to the filling stations the details of how they can most equitably carry out the reduction of supply with the least possible disarrangement possible," Davies said. "There is no need for confusion. As guiding determinations are made by the industry and this office, I am sure that the man at the pump will find he is able to carry out his part without difficulty or friction with his customers."

Davies' plan would permit suppliers to loan, exchange, purchase

American Hens Doing Their Bit To Help Britain

The hens of the country are going all out for England in a big way.

With patriotic but pardonable pride, Government poltry experts announced yesterday that the feathered flocks on farms were breaking production records for both eggs and chicks.

Reporting that a "total of about one billion chickens" was being raised this year, the Department of Agriculture said this would exceed "all past records," adding that one of the causes of this production jump was the "demand for more poultry and eggs to meet the needs of actively employed people and the populations of the battling democracies."

Apparently as pay rolls increase under pressure of the defense program, more people are having two eggs instead of one for breakfast. Another factor was said to be the better than average prices for chickens and eggs compared with the cost of feed.

Tokyo Reasons For Detaining 100 Americans Unsatisfactory

New 'Incident'

Another explosive "incident" in American relations with Japan took shape yesterday when Secretary of State Hull declared that Japan has offered no satisfactory explanation for refusing to allow the S. S. President Coolidge to pick up more than 100 private American citizens stranded in Japan.

Hull informed a press conference that he expects a fuller accounting from the Tokyo government for refusal to let the Americans depart.

Sees Thailand Envoy

Meanwhile, in the larger sphere of the Far Eastern crisis, he conferred with the Thailand minister, R. Pramoj, presumably in connection with recent indications that Japan might seek to extend its military expansion program into that country bordering on British Malaya.

Although he declined to discuss his talk with Secretary Hull, Minister Pramoj recalled to newsmen that his government had expressed a desire to remain on friendly terms with all countries and a determination to defend the nation against any attack.

Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, also called at the State Department for a farewell visit before leaving in a few days for London. He said he expected to return here in September.

Grew Calls on Toyoda

Joseph C. Grew, American Ambassador in Tokyo, called on Japanese Foreign Minister Toyoda. It was presumed that Grew asked for fuller explanations of Japan's restrictions on exit permits for Americans.

The incident of the Steamship Coolidge has not yet approached the seriousness of the crisis caused by the recent Japanese bombing of the United States gunboat Tutuila, in the Yangtse River. The Japanese quickly apologized for that action. It was made plain, however, that the United States would forcefully push its viewpoint regarding the Americans who want to leave Japan.

Hull declined to disclose details of his talk Sunday with President Roosevelt regarding the meeting with British Prime Minister Churchill. He remarked merely that they covered every geographical area in some form or other.

Petain Regime Starts Roundup Of Legislators

750 Are Opposed To Government; Arrests Ordered

By Ralph E. Heinzen
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Vichy, Aug. 18.—A number of French senators and deputies who were too outspoken in their criticism of Marshal Petain's administration have been placed under administrative arrest in a crackdown against Communist and other dissident elements, it was disclosed today.

Darlan Back From Paris

Angered because they were removed from the pay roll and other privileges, as well as from practically all power, more than 750 members of Parliament have formed a powerful opposition to the Petain government.

The parliamentarians, coupled with rising Communist agitation in both occupied and unoccupied zones, are the chief elements in the general unrest which Petain described in a radio speech last week.

Vice Premier Admiral Darlan arrived from Paris tonight after a one-day conference with Otto Abetz, Adolf Hitler's representative, on methods for suppressing Communist agitation in the occupied zone.

Meet Almost Secretly

Darlan will confer with Petain tomorrow. One reason he cut short his Paris visit was to take the oath of allegiance to Petain personally—an oath which must be taken by all public officials, from cabinet ministers down.

Darlan's brief visit to Paris had absolutely no connection with Franco-German collaboration. A political truce has been called between the two countries while Germany is deeply involved in the Russian campaign.

Most active opposition to the Petain regime is that of the Communists, who are operating clandestine-

Pan American Will Operate Transit Service Across Africa

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt arranged yesterday to speed delivery of American war planes to British forces in the Middle East, where a new front in the far-flung battle with Germany may develop.

He announced that Pan American Airways, under an agreement with the Government, will ferry war craft from the United States to West Africa and thence to the Middle East.

In connection with the plane ferry service, Pan American already is establishing an air transport service from West Africa to the Middle East and is laying plans for a connecting airline from New York or Baltimore to West Africa.

The service is not entirely new, for it has been known for some time that American pilots were flying war craft down to Pernambuco, Brazil, whence they were flown across the South Atlantic to a point on the West African coast, and then to Cairo or some other Middle Eastern destination.

U. S. Planes to Be Used

Officials said yesterday, however, that the new ferry service will greatly speed deliveries to the British forces, partly by relieving a bottleneck on the West African coast where many planes have languished for lack of pilots to fly them eastward. The pilots had difficulty getting transportation back to West Africa after delivering the planes in the Middle East.

President Roosevelt said that Pan American would use planes owned by the United States Government and they would be operated by American personnel.

This arrangement, of course, will relieve for active fighting service all the British pilots who have hitherto been running the African ferry, just as American occupation of Iceland relieved the British troops stationed there for duty elsewhere.

Won't Cross War Zone

A main function of the transport service, aside from carrying officials back and forth to the Middle East, will be to supplement the ferry system by returning ferry personnel and carrying spare plane parts and "items essential to effective delivery of aircraft to the Middle East," according to the White House statement.

"The route of delivery," said the President, "is so arranged that it will nowhere pass through the zone of actual warfare."

Official sources disclosed that the western terminus of the line in Africa will be Bathurst, in Gawbia, British West Africa.

The President apparently considered the new air service vital in the aid-to-Britain program. It was the first development in this field following his conferences with British Prime Minister Churchill.

Not Far From Dakar

"The ferry system and the transport services," said Mr. Roosevelt, "provide direct and speedy delivery of aircraft from the 'arsenal of democracy' to a critical point in the front against aggression.

"The importance of this direct line of communication between our country and strategic outposts in Africa cannot be overestimated."

Bathurst, African station on the ferry line, is just a few hours south of Dakar, French West African base that the Administration views as a

'For the Good of the Service'

Report Today on Police Inquiry Will Urge '40 or 45' Changes

The Commissioners today will receive from their special commitee assigned to investigate the Metropolitan Police Department a report containing "40 or 45" recommendations, it was announced yeserday.

Maj. Beverly C. Snow, assistant engineer commissioner and chairman of the inquiry group, declined to comment on the report beyond saying it would include "specific" suggestions for improving police efficiency.

Although the entire Board of Commissioners is in accord on personnel changes in the police high command as recommended by Acting Supt. Edward J. Kelly, official action will await the return of Commissioner Young from vacation next Monday.

Maj. Snow and his associates on the investigating committee—Budget Officer Walter Fowler and Disbursing Officer James R. Lusby—have spent several weeks compiling the report.

Their recommendations are expected to follow closely those advanced by the special Congressional investigating committee which recently finished its probe of the department.

Under proposals transmitted to the Commissioners by Kelly, Capt. Richard Mansfield, of Ninth Precinct, would become chief of detec-

Grandmother, 2 Girls Saved from Fire by 2 Youths

Two small children and their grandmother were carried to safety early today by two 16-year-old boys when fire broke out in their apartment at 347 N Street Southwest. The rescue came after the grandmother suffered a heart attack attempting to rescue the children.

Mrs. Annie Crawford, 43, the grandmother, was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated for shock.

The boys, Charles Pell, 16, of 499 M Street Southwest, and Joseph Limerick, 17, of 331 McLean Avenue Southwest, were passing when they saw smoke pour from the basement apartment. They ran inside and saw Mrs. Crawford on the floor. They carried her outside. When they went back into the basement, they saw the two children, Peggy Ann Les Callet, 5, and Mary Ann Crawford, 2. The boys picked up the children and took them to safety.

The fire caused about $50 damage.

Toward a Free Future

Ensign Franklin D. Rooseyelt, jr., accompanied Churchill here.

"We came to you as a highly civilized nation which has played a great part in democratic civilization," Churchill told a great crowd in a brief address from a balcony of Parliament House.

"We will seek to trouble your own life as little as possible and guarantee, together with the United States, that after the war your culture of the past will be linked with a free future."

His listeners greeted this statement with a tremendous burst of cheering.

The prime minister, who came aboard a Canadian destroyer, inspected a long line of troops of all units, including United States Marines with whom he talked and joked.

He arrived in the morning and left in late afternoon.

Churchill also inspected the hot springs area near here, and American soldiers on Icelandic ponies rode up to meet him.

Russian Army Abandons Town in Savage Battle 75 Miles South of Leningrad

Moscow Reports Heavy Fighting Along Entire Front

Moscow (Tuesday), Aug. 19.—Red army defenders, hard-put at both ends of their bending Western Front, have abandoned the town of Kingisepp o... the northern wing, putting the Germans within 75 miles of Leningrad, the Russians announced officially early today.

Kingisepp is southwest of the former capital of the Czars and northeast of Lake Peipus, just inside the Province of Leningrad from the Estonian frontier.

The Soviet information bureau said the town was given up after a bitter fight. It reported similar heavy fighting raging elsewhere along the entire sprawling front.

This retreat before Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second city, came within a day of the official announcement of the abandonment of Nekolaev, big Black Sea naval and grain port and Krivoi Rog, iron center in the Ukraine on the Southern Front.

Nazi Sub Declared Sunk

In the Baltic Sea, the Russians reported the sinking of a German submarine and two "enemy" transports by torpedo boats of the Red fleet and in Saturday's air fighting reported the destruction of 22 German planes with a loss of 18 Soviet aircraft.

A number of fire and high explosive bombs were scattered over Moscow last night during an air attack in which, an official announcement said, only one raider got through the city's defenses. Damage was described as insignificant.

Meanwhile lost battalions of Soviet troops encircled by German pincers movements were reported to be fighting their way back toward Red Army lines in the face of persistent Nazi attempts to exterminate them.

Pravda told of the fighting behind the German front and said that Soviet mobile forces were being sent deep into the German lines in raids to check the Germans.

Pravad said one lost regiment rejoined the main forces after a dramatic two-week campaign in which it broke out of the German encirclement by killing 1,500 men of a panzer brigade.

The newspaper also told of a successful dash into German lines by a mobie regiment supported by artillery and tanks. The regiment was credited with wrecking a German motorized column of several hundred cars.

Three officers were said to have been seized and many documents and maps taken. The German general commanding the division was said to have fled, leaving his uniforms behind him.

In a final encounter before returning to the Soviet main forces the regiment was said to have killed more than 500 Germans, captured considerable booty and dispersed a German cavalry-artillery division.

Official Red army reports and Pravda dispatches told of increasing guerilla activity.

T. P. Bomashkov, a hero of the Soviet Union and leader of a famous guerallа band, sent Pravda a report on campaigns of his detachment, "one of the many thousands in White Russia."

Bomashkov said his fighters destroyed 15 tanks and 15 armored cars in an early battle and wrecked 18 tanks in a subsequent engagement. The band was said to have started with 80 members and to have enlisted many more, including women.

Finns Report Lake Ladoga City Captured

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Aug. 18.—Finnish forces storming down the west shore of Lake Ladoga toward Leningrad and a projected union with Germans driving upon that city from the south, have captured Kurki Joki, lake town 95 miles north of the Soviet Baltic center, the high command announced tonight.

Several other unspecified points have been captured, the communique said, adding that encircled Red army units were trying desperately, but without success, to break through the tightening Finnish vise.

In the Kurkijoki sector alone two Soviet divisions were smashed, accounts from Finnish army reporters said, indicating that huge Russian forces were being encountered.

Some Soviet troops surrounded on land were said to have attempted to escape across the lake, only to become easy targets for Finnish gunners.

One correspondent said the Russian ranks were so tightly packed that "not one Finnish shell is wasted." Consequently, he said, the slaughter of the Red army was reaching fearful proportions.

Reds Drop 'Chutists

London (Tuesday), Aug. 19 (INS).—Soviet parachute troops were dropped from several Russian transport planes in the region of Helsinki Monday, Reuters News Agency reported early today in a dispatch quoting the Rome radio.

This indicated the possibility that the Soviets may be attempting a counter-invasion of Finland in order to strike at the rear of German-Finnish forces now attempting to push on Leningrad from the Karelian Isthmus.

Russian Bombers Raid Hungarian City on Danube

R. A. F. Hammers Continent, Sinks 3 Enemy Patrol Ships

Copyright by New York Times

London (Tuesday), Aug. 19.—The sinking of three German patrol ships off the Netherlands coast by Royal Air Force bombers, daylight raids over Northern France, where an industrial plant at Lille was bombed, and nighttime raids by over 100 bombers on Bremen and Duisberg were reported last night in various announcements by the air ministry.

London officials said that three R. A. F. fighter planes were missing in yesterday's daylight raids and that one bomber failed to return home from the raids on Germany over Monday night. They also said that their pilots had shot down three Nazi fighter machines during dog-fights yesterday.

R. A. F. fighter and bomber machines made several daylight "sweeps" yesterday. In addition to the bombing and sinking of three Nazi supply vessels off the coast of the Netherlands, they bombed an enemy air base in Brittany and machine-gunned German troops.

Belgians Shoot Down Two

Belgian fighter pilots shot down two of the Messerschmitts that gave battle nearly 30,000 feet up and a Czech flier accounted for the third. A Canadian flier attacked one German plane which he saw spin down in flames into a cloud which was far below. He lost sight of his enemy in the cloud and was credited with only a "probable" victory.

Despite unfavorable weather, a strong force of heavy bombers reached west and northwest Germany early yesterday, starting big fires in Bremen and in the industrial districts of Duisberg which were the main objectives. The targets were not disclosed.

In the daylight yesterday a lone German plane approached a community on the northeast coast of England but it was chased out to sea by R. A. F. fighters after ground gunners had shot up a screen of fire which prevented it from getting inland.

Nine Killed in Hull

Before daylight yesterday a small number of German planes raided northeast, east and southwest England. There was a brief but severe attack on Hull, where nine persons were killed and others were injured with damage done to private property. Among those killed was a wireless operator, home on leave from his merchant ship.

One German bomber was shot down in flames, landing in small pieces. It was believed that the plane had a crew of five. Rescue squads were unable to reach the plane's crew, owing to the explosions in the machine of its cargo of bombs and the fierce heat of its burning gasoline.

Stimson Refuses Carpenters' Offer Of Soldiers' Hall

Indianapolis, Aug. 19 (AP).—William L. Hutcheson, general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, said today Secretary Stimson had turned down a union offer to build and give to the War Department $25,000 worth of recreational facilities for soldiers.

Hutcheson made public at union headquarters an exchange of correspondence relating to the proposed gift.

He said Local 101 of the brotherhood in Baltimore in appreciation for work given its members on Fort Meade, the Aberdeen proving Ground and the Edgewood Arsenal, all in Maryland, had offered last June 14 to erect at its own expense and donate a recreational building at the fort and bowling alleys at the proving ground. A Washington contractor offered to give his services, too.

"The erection of buildings on military reservations and their donation to the Government by civic and fraternal or other similar organizations would establish an undesirable precedent and subject the War Department to embarrassment," Stimson wrote.

The President's Day

BUSINESS AS USUAL: Home and confronted with a pyramid of accumulated paper work, the President pitched in, conducted his day as strenuously as usual. On the White House sidelines and in the freshly painted press correspondents' room there was much explanation from spokesmen and aides as to why British newsmen had been present at the mid-ocean meeting while American correspondents twiddled their thumbs unknowingly ashore. Verdict seemed to be that the British didn't mention the fact they were bringing along a staff of recording Anglos and it was too late when the President discovered them aboard to do anything.

DOWN FROM THE HILL: Congressional Leaders Senators Alben Barkley, Walter George and Tom Connally; Representatives Sol Bloom and Clifton Woodrum filed up the Executive Mansion steps in the wake of Vice President Wallace at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. In the President's upstairs study he filled them on details of the British-American conference on the high seas, said that in a couple of weeks he would have a message to Congress ready on further lease-lend appropriations.

PEN-PUSHER: As soon as the Congressional big leaguers had departed Mr. Roosevelt scooted for his office and a tower of accumulated paper work, which he attacked with pen and memorandum. After an hour and a half of affixing his signature, dictating memorandums and whittling down the tasks of immediate importance, the President knocked off and had lunch at his desk with Harry Hopkins, who came in the garden door, brought reports on lease-lend and the progress of visiting British Supply Minister Beaverbrook.

WAR AND PLANES: First after-lunch caller was Secretary of War Stimson, who overstayed his allotted time by a half hour, excited silently as usual. Shortly after the Secretary of War had cleared the Executive Office doors, the President released the news that planes would be ferried from the United States to West Africa and the British Middle Eastern fighting forces; that the route would also be available for general commercial use, providing direct air service from New York or Baltimore to Africa—in case anyone wants to get away from it all for a weekend.

STRIKES AND TAXES: After waiting around for Stimson and the President to finish their closed-door talk, Congressman Jere Cooper was ushered in for a little conference on taxes with the Chief. Fifteen minutes later Secretary Knox, Mediator William Davis and OPM's Sidney Hillman stomped in to talk over the Kearny, N. J., shipyard strike, but went out with lips tightly buttoned, passing the buck passed to Presidential Spokesmen Early.

Japan Claims U. S. Seeks Red Attack on Her

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 19.—Koh Ishii, spokesman of the cabinet information board, declared today that Japan wishes to preserve peace in the Orient and that therefore she cannot remain indifferent if war materials are sent to her neighbors.

In that respect, and in view of the American intention to send war materials to Vladivostok, Ishii declared that "American diplomacy should show delicacy." He declined to expand on that statement and remained noncommital regarding the effect of recent developments on the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact.

Meanwhile, a sharp protest against obstacles being put in the way of Americans wishing to leave Japan or Japanese-controlled territory in China was submitted to Foreign Minister Admiral Tijiro Toyoda yesterday by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, who called on the foreign minister and discussed the situation with him for more than two hours.

200 Americans Waiting

There are more than 200 Americans in Japan, including more than 20 of the official personnel, who have been waiting for weeks for an opportunity to leave for home but have been unable to do so. Other Americans en route home from Moscow are due shortly.

For that reason the statement of the United States State Department that the proposed call of the steamship President Coolidge at a Japanese port to pick up these Americans had been canceled because the Japanese would permit only the official personnel to sail on it, caused great disappointment. There were sensational reports from the United States that Americans in Japan were being held as "hostages."

At a press conference today Ishii denied the charges of the American press that Americans in Japan are being held as hostages and said there are no restrictions on Americans leaving Japan "if the Japanese government consents."

This consent, he explained, depends on compliance with the new regulation effective since Aug. 15 that all foreigners, irrespective of nationality, desiring to leave Japan are required to secure permission from the governor of the prefecture in which they reside and that they must file their applications for permits at least three days before the prospective date of departure.

Policy of Reciprocity

Ishii insisted that Japan is proceeding on the principle of reciprocity and would have treated the President Coolidge in the same way as Japanese ships are treated at San Francisco. There is no objection to American ships calling at Japaneese ports, he said, and he emphasized that Japan has no intention of freezing any American boat. The question of cargoes, he said, had not been discussed.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, foreign office mouthpiece, today described the Churchill-Roosevelt peace aims declarations and their subsequent message to Joseph Stalin as an attempt to break down the United States Neutrality Act and incite Russia against Japan.

"When Japan and Russia are endeavoring to consolidate their peaceful relations, any intervention by third powers toward upsetting this condition cannot be viewed as otherwise than hostile," the publication said.

It declared that plans for "joint military action against Japan apparently included Russia."

The entire Japanese press assailed Russian-British-United States collaboration and displayed reports that the Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would visit Moscow.

The influential newspaper, Nichi Nichi said that "if the Anglo-Americans are dead set against Japan's course, Japan has no other way than to break through obstacles by her own power."

Among the Japanese press statements was a report by the Domei agency that Chiang Kai-shek's government was planning to establish 14 air bases with British and American aid.

The agency further said in a dispatch from Singapore that Japanese and other aliens had been ordered out of a 15-mile radius of the British naval base there.

Gets Protest From America

boat and two smaller craft.

Damage to a number of freighters on the Black Sea also was claimed, and aerial squadrons were reported ceaselessly patrolling the Odessa region against any Russian effort to escape by sea there.

Reports on other sectors were vague. However, southeast of Smolensk, on the central front before Moscow, the completion of another encirclement and the capture of 10,000 prisoners was claimed.

(The German wireless declared that this was a three-day battle in which Nazi tank formations annihilated two retreating Russian divisions. It was added that 700 Soviet trucks, 90 guns, 25 antiaircraft guns, 20 antitank guns, 25 heavy tanks and 10 armored cars were captured or destroyed.)

On the Finnish front two minor engagements in which the Russians lost 1,500 men to the Germans and Finns were announced.

Only at Constanta, the Rumanian Black Sea port, was the German air force reported on the defensive. There, Russian planes made repeated raids. Three raiders were declared shot down by antiaircraft fire.

British Raiders Hurled Back At French Coast, Nazis Say

By the United Press

Berlin, Aug. 18.—An official German propaganda company report revealed tonight that British troops, aboard two large motor "storm boats," recently tried to make a landing on the German-held Channel coast on the Straits of Dover.

The landing was frustrated, the account said, when German sentries sighted the "storm boats" about 50 yards offshore, opened fire and drove off the raiders after a brief but sharp battle.

(British quarters have reported that daring bands of volunteers have carried out frequent night raids on the fortified, German-held coast, seizing prisoners for questioning, killing German soldiers and officers in "demoralizing" attacks and gaining information on German defenses. This is the first time, however, that the Germans have told of such a nightly raid.)

With the Chin Up

London, Aug. 18 (AP).—Wilson Midgley, editorial director of the London Star, advocated today that a statue of President Roosevelt be erected in London.

"There might," he wrote, "be something finely significant in putting it up now to defy the blitz with that well-known face slightly lifted, as usual, as if to take it on the chin.

20 Pounds for a Binge

London, Aug. 18 (AP).—Sergt. Pilot Rose was killed in action last October. Today his will was made public. It provided:

"Twenty pounds sterling ($80) for a binge for members of the Forty-ninth Squadron in the event I am reported missing.

"If I'm killed flying, £20 sterling to pay for a cheerful celebration by the Red Hill section of the R. A. F. voluntary service.

"Two-fifty sterling ($1000) to my wife for a trip to the Pyramids and a new outfit of clothes.

"My sports coat to Comedian Max Miller."

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 18.—The latest story about Reichsmarshal Goering, who has been variously reported to have been in disgrace, dismissed or arrested, is that he has lost both legs in a Royal Air Force raid on a German airdrome.

The Daily Mail tomorrow will credit the story to "British officer prisoners of war released under the Syrian armistice terms."

"They say they were told of this latest report—which is otherwise unconfirmed—at various places while they were journeying through Europe," the Mail will say.

[In Berlin, informed German quarters described the latest Goering rumors as "utter nonsense," the United Press reported.]

Ship Bearing Churchill Reaches Britain

With the Royal Navy Aboard a British Destroyer, Aug. 18.—The British battleship Prince of Wales, bearing Prime Minister Churchill, has reached a home port to end the war leader's remarkable round-trip journey across the Atlantic to meet President Roosevelt.

Escorted by destroyers of the Royal Navy and the Royal Canadian Navy, the battleship broke her homeward voyage to allow Churchill to pay a day's visit to Iceland. There he was saluted by British and American troops marching in review.

He made a short speech to the troops.

I was on board one of the British destroyers which formed the escort on the homeward trip, but never once did we sight any hostile craft in the air, on the sea, or beneath the sea.

It was a glorious afternoon as we sailed out of the naval base to keep our rendezvous with the Prince of Wales somewhere in the North Atlantic and at that time no one except the captain of the ship knew the importance of the task which lay ahead of us.

Early one morning, some days after leaving the naval base, we sighted a smudge on the horizon and as we approached we could see through our glasses the immense outline of a giant battleship flanked on both sides by Canadian destroyers.

The great ship truly was a noble sight plunging through the Atlantic swell and throwing up great clouds of white spray as she dipped her bows into the waves.

We approached from head on, and as we swooped in to take our position, there was a sudden flurry of destroyers all around the battleship.

In a very few minutes, however, we had turned around and with a slight increase of speed we had taken our positions and were zigzagging with the other warships.

During the afternoon Catalina flying boats patrolled the air over us and one of them reported there was a large convoy some 50 or 60 miles ahead bound for Britain. The prime minister had never seen a large convoy at sea, so with slight alteration of course we made toward them.

Convoy Heaves Into View

After two or three hours we could see the convoy on the horizon. It was an incredible sight. As far as the eye could see there were ships, tankers, freighters, supply ships, big ships, little ships, ships of every conceivable size and sort.

They were ranged in lines—in all, over eight miles of ships. Around them scurried their escort, or corvettes, and former American destoyers keeping stragglers in line and always ready for the possible approach of danger.

We steamed straight toward them and then passed right through the middle of the convoy. Each of the Prince of Wales escorts chose its opening amongst the ships and as we dashed through the lines of merchantmen we could see that they realized who was paying them this novel visit.

We saw men running to hoist the "V" signals in flags while others stood on deck cheering and waving.

The Prince of Wales was a proud sight. She had cocked up all her great 14-inch guns to their highest levels and, if Churchill was thrilled, it was nothing to the excitement that it caused amongst the vessels of the convoy.

We steamed on to perhaps 2 miles ahead of the convoy and then the Prince of Wales and her escort turned around and once more we went through the lines of wallowing ships. If there had been enthusiasm before, it was nothing to what greeted us the second time.

Every merchantman had had time to hoist flags and the crews lined the rails waving caps and shouting.

Spends Day in Iceland

We wished them Godspeed and then resumed our original course, which was to bring us to Iceland. Here we made a day's stay and in the evening sailed again for England.

Earlier in the day in which we met the convoy the Prince of Wales carried out a practice shoot with her antiaircraft guns, watched by the prime minister and his party.

She first fired a smoke shell, which exploded into a compact ball of smoke high up in the sky. Using this as a target, she let loose with her A-A guns, plastering the area round the ball of smoke with exploding shells.

This was followed by an exhibition of barrage fire, using every antiaircraft gun on board. The battleship's sides seemed constantly flaming, so great was the rate of fire, while the air all around her was black with exploding projectiles. It seemed unbelievable that one ship could put up so devastating a barrage.

Roosevelt Signs Draft Extension

The President affixed his signature to the bill 18 days after expiration of the deadline set by Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff. Marshall had told Congress that the Army would begin to disintegrate August 1 unless the service extension bill were law by that date.

Reduction of the age limit to 28 affects about 13,000 men already in the Army who were 28 before they were inducted.

Release Not Automatic

The Secretary of War may release such men from active duty "as soon as practicable" if this will not disrupt Army training. There will be no automatic releases, however. Each man eligible for release must apply for it, and the cases will be considered individually.

Only those who were 28 at the time they were inducted are eligible for this type of release, and their induction must have been prior to last July 1.

A new feature of the service extension law is that it provides a bonus of $10 a month pay increase for trainees who complete a year's training satisfactorily and are held in service beyond that length of time.

Under this new dispensation, the average private's pay, which already can advance from $21 to $30 a month before the end of the first year's training, would become $40 a month.

Nazis to Hurl A Million Men At the Dnieper

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 18.—Field Marshall Gen. Gerd von Runstedt might hurl more than one million war-hardened Axis troops against the Red army's defenses on the west bank of the Dnieper in a gigantic effort to reach the Crimean gate to the Caucasian oil fields, Soviet sources said today.

Stoutly defended by the forces of Marshal Semeon Budyenny, they said, the steeply banked and swift river—more than a mile wide for 100 miles from its mouth—would be an almost impassable barrier.

They admitted, however, that the river also barred the possibility of extensive Soviet counter-attacks westward against German forces occupying the shipbuilding and industrial center of Nikolaev and encircling the Port of Odessa.

Sevastopol an Objective

One of the main objectives of a push into Crimea, peninsula republic, which juts deep into the Black Sea, would be the city of Sevastopol, main base of the Red navy's Black Seat fleet.

Just as important would be the Luftwaffe's nearness to Tuapse and Batumi, two vital ports on the transcaucasian oil line. Tuapse lies 300 miles east of Sevastopol and Batumi, 470 miles southeast, each less than two hours flight away by bomber.

Heavy bombing of these two ports would deprive the Black Sea fleet of much of its effectiveness, since they long have been refueling stations for Soviet naval craft.

American military sources said that if the Black Sea fleet's effectiveness was limited by destruction of its bases and shortage of fuel the Germans would have "a fair chance" of advancing eastward by sea, protected by fighter aircraft, to put flanking pressure on the southern Russian defense forces.

A Difficult Phase

Soviet sources here discounted German claims of immense material gains by the seizure of Nikolaev and Krivoi Rog, but admitted the war was entering a difficult phase.

"Cities and towns are light forfeit to pay," one said, "for the maintenance of the Red army unbroken in the field."

Authoritative sources said the Germans apparently had launched a new offensive, aimed at Leningrad, from Estonia. London military observers, however, said they were without any indication of the number of troops involved and reserved judgment on whether this meant the start of a huge pincers movement intended to envelop Russian armies simultaneously from the north and the south.

vestigation, the Army and Navy, the police and fire departments and the Brooklyn district attorney. The Secretary of Commerce's investigating committee consisted of J. 2 Miles from Navy Yard

The Panuco was tied up at Pier 27, where British freighters often takes on cargoes and adjoining several used by the United States Army and Navy. It was unloading 2400 bales of highly inflammable sisal, from Mexico, and a quantity of cotton, hemp, oil, tar products, copper and lead.

Pier 27 is about two miles from the Navy Yard. Nearby were the lighters Oakport and Bellport, said to have been loaded with Navy materials which were to have been placed aboard the Panuco after about 120 longshoremen were through with their unloading task. Some of the 35 crewmen of the Panuco also were aboard. Several large pieces of machinery were on the pier and on another nearby were several pieces marked for the United States Naval Station at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Vichy Legislators Ordered Arrested

ly in both occupied and unoccupied zones, despite the legal dissolution of their party. Proof of the influence is the new German order threatening the death sentence for Communist and anti-German demonstrators in the occupied zone.

Almost equally virulent is the parliamentary opposition. Petain's action removing the Senators and Deputies from the pay roll and depriving them of free railroad passes and other privileges, effective at the end of August, has increased already existing parliamentary opposition.

The Parliament members retain their legislative mandates until 1942, despite the stoppage of their pay, nad they have some prestige with the voters, despite their inability to distribute favors any longer. They come to Vichy, meet almost secretly and generally wage vigorous anti-goverment campaigns.

The "Free French" followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle form only a small part of the opposition. There is no De Gaulle organization in France, and his followers must act independently. A number of De Gaulle sympathizers are found in public positions, and the government has decided to break down this opposition by obliging all civil servants to take personal oaths of loyalty to Petain.

Petain will start receiving these oaths tomorrow. He will go to Royat, near Clermont-Ferrand, where he will receive the oaths of the council of state. Darlan and the cabinet probably will take their oaths during this week's cabinet meeting.

potential threat to United States security.

There are other West African terminals that could be used. Last winter Pan American Airways sent its planes to Europe via Belem, Brazil and Bolama, in Portuguese Guinea.

The United States is already helping the British to operate a ferry service for planes from Canada to the British Isles. Pan American, however, has no connection with this northern ferry service.

Trippe Confident Plan Will Succeed

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan American Airways, said tonight he was confident the air line would carry out its task successfully of ferrying planes to the Middle East.

"The officrs and personnel of Pan American Airways are gratified at this further opportunity of placing at the service of our Government's defense-aid program the company's many years of experience in the operation of international and transoceanic air services established under the American flag," he said.

"I am confident that this new task which has been assigned to the Pan American Airways system in this emergency, in the light of that experience, will be successfully carried out.

Burma Road's Capacity Huge, Truckman Says

By F. Tillman Durdin
Copyright by New York Times

Chungking, Aug. 18.—The potential capacity of Burma Road is far in excess of the usual estimates of 30,000 tons per month, according to Daniel Arnstein, the veteran American truck operator who has arrived at Chungking after completing a survey of the road for the United States Government.

Arnstein declined to name a ceiling for the Burma Road tonnage. "It is a good road," he declared, "and its capacity with efficient operation is practically unlimited. There is no such thing as capacity for a road anyhow. It is possible that in the future, the Burma Road capacity will be limited only by the capacity of the port of Rangoon."

Arnstein, as leader of a trio of American transport experts, spent months in studying the Burma Road in Yunnan and Burma. Harold Davis and Marco Hellmann are the others. All came to China for the United States Government on a dollar-a-year basis to investigate conditions along the Burma Road and make recommendations for improving operations and equipment. They have submitted a 25-page report to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

Experts on Way

Chiang, who has already held initial discussions with the American group, voiced his generous approval of the report. After a final interview with Chiang, the missions will leave within the next few days by plane for the United States.

Approximately 50 American experts will be employed on the Burma Road within the next few months. They will comprise mostly of mechanics and dispatchers, Arnstein revealed. Many of them are already on the way to China, he said.

James Wilson, a United States Army reserve lieutenant on duty here as an assistant military attache, will take charge of truck maintenance operations, according to Arnstein, who said Lieut. Wilson, an experienced upstate New York truck operator, would be returned to a civilian status for the Burma Road work.

Arnstein's proposals call for an increase of the present tonnage several times over. The asphalting of the road which is now beginning, is expected to be well advanced by the end of the year. The Arnstein group found many faults with the present operations on the road and while surveying the highway in Burma, it effected a change which is already resulting in a substantial increase of traffic.

Repair Shop Being Set Up

Truck maintenance at present is very poor. A new American repair shop with equipment will be soon in service along the road.

The appointment of an American as managing director of the road is anticipated, but the appointee has not yet been selected. It is planned to retain John Earl Baker, the American inspector general of the highway and a member of the Burma Road Commission, in his present position.

Arnstein said he expected to have between 6000 and 7000 American trucks operating on the road by the end of the year. He praised his Chinese chauffeur and said he did not meet a single Chinese who was not a "damned good driver."

Japanese bombing have not affected the road traffic appreciably so far, and the vital bridges are still in use, Arnstein said. He lauded the cooperative attitude of the Burma officials.

"The Burma authorities are as anxious to move as much goods into China as possible," the American said, "and are doing everything they can to help the movement of cargoes." The Arnstein mission will report to Harry L. Hopkins and probably to President Roosevelt on its return to the United States.

Lear Answers Claim of Low Army Morale

By the United Press

Prescott, Ark., Aug. 18.—The morale of United States fighting men is in direct proportion to that of the citizenship, and if it is low, it is not the fault of the Army, Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear said today in commenting on magazine articles alleging that the spirit of the soldiers is poor.

"Perhaps there is something wrong with the military system of this Nation," said Lear. "But that isn't all that's wrong.

"Many of our people have become soft and weak-minded. They are not willing to put out; they are willing to get but not to give.

"I am not prepared to agree with the articles in Life and Time (magazines). If they are correct, we are in a critical state. If morale is not high, it is no fault of ours. We have done everything within reason to promote the welfare and comfort of the trainees.

"If the morale is poor, it is only because the morale of the people is poor."

Lear, commander of the Second Army, which is beginning skirmishes in preparation for the largest war games in the history of this Nation, said that accusations of poor spirit among the soldiery as described by Time and Life magazines was poor repayment for defense achievement.

Life reported there was "a rising tide of soldier discontent which goes beyond healthy griping . . . Ignoring it seems only to increase it, for the soldiers feel their complaints are met by a conspiracy of silence." Life sent a reporter to one Southern camp, occupied by 60 per cent Guardsmen and 40 per cent Selectees from Ohio.

Life's reporter said that half of 400 privates interviewed would "go over the hill" after their original training period was up; that confusion bred of uncertainty as to the Army's goal engendered contempt for officers and authority, and that old-fashioned "square" division drills gave the men no hope for promotion or initiative—while their jobs were being lost back home and they were treated as outcasts by the nearest civilian society.

As to there being no objective for American soldiery to face, Lear said their primary purpose was preparedness.

"Whether we go to war or not makes no difference in our plan to make good military men—both officers and enlisted men. I think the Army has done a good job in the last ten months and it is distressing that we are so poorly repaid.

"I was told last week of an inspection made by a morale officer sent out from Washington. He traveled in civilian clothes in a civilian automobile and picked up soldier hitch-hikers—in violation of Army regulations. The soldiers talked freely to him and he reported on his return that morale was fine."

Turning to his staff of officers summoned for discussion of the maneuvers, Lear told them to report to him the results of their inspections—covering morale as well as training.

Lear is the general who recently ordered a battalion to march 15 miles because some members "yoo-hooed" at girls in shorts on a Memphis golf course.

But Not Now, General Holds; First Must Win Air Superiority

By Lieut. Gen. Sir Douglas Brownrigg

Famous British Military Expert
(Written Expressly for International News Service.)

London, Aug. 18.—At a moment when the new intense Nazi offensive in the Ukraine is appearing to make some headway, it is important to realize the many difficulties which stand in the way of Britain giving more active aid to Russia.

At first sight, there might seem to be some grounds for this suggestion of aid. On land, it is true, the forces of the empire face an active enemy on only one front—in Libya. In Syria, a sad but necessary campaign is over; in Malaya, a largely reinforced garrison awaits in confidence any further aggressive move by Japan, and in Britain we have the largest force ever maintained on a war footing, supported by nearly two million members of the home guards.

This array of facts may cause the question to be asked whether the time has not come for us to "attack." To attempt now to launch an attack by land against western Europe would be to play right into Hitler's hand.

That such an attempt must and will be made before the final victory is as nearly certain as anything can be, but to make it now would be akin to having launched an infantry assault in the last war against a prepared hostile defensive position in broad daylight without any artillery support.

Before Germany, or German-occupied territory, can be successfully invaded by an army, the Allies must obtain superiority in the air. There can, of course, be no absolute command of the sea, but the Allied position in the air must show at least as great superiority over the enemy in that element as the Royal Navy now has over the Axis navies on the waters of the Mediterranean.

Attainment of air superiority is therefore the vital objective—to which all lesser objectives must give way. Its attainment is just as much in the interests of Russia as it is in those of the British Empire. Our air offensive against Germany must therefore be restricted to the maximum which can be spared without interfering with the attainment of the main objective.

Maintenance of the objective is an old military principle—the forgetting of which has been the cause of many military failures. To increase the strength of our bombing raids on Germany at the expense of our long-term policy of obtaining air superiority over the Luftwaffe would be a strategical mistake of the first magnitude.

I am quite sure that the Russian high command is as well aware of this elementary but most important military maxim as are the members of our own war cabinet.

At the moment our best efforts can be made in factories and in intensive military training.

In short, the British Empire is compelled to keep to a strategic defensive until she has the sinews to stride and fly to victory at the same time. We so often hear of operations on land referred to as "pincers movements." The British empire is now going to forge a mighty pair of pincers.

One end of this will be the R. A. F. in the air; on the other end, the military forces of the empire supported by the rising masses of subjugated peoples, freed at last from the rule of the Gestapo, and ready to play their part behind the backs of their temporary conquerors.

Every day that the German armies and air armadas are kept employed by the Russians in the east is a day nearer the forging of this pair of empire pincers. To use this instrument before it was ready would be to lose all.

Loss of territory in Russia bears no relation to the value of the time gained in its spirited defense. And time is gained as long as the Russians hold the Nazis in their grip, no matter where the wrestling may take place.

The population of the British Empire could not support a force of sufficient size to march and roll alone into the heart of Germany until at last the Nazi will to win was cracking under the hammer-blows of an overpowering air force (possibly provided by the combined air forces of Britain and Russia) and until the peoples of the conquered continent have taken fresh heart and give active help in sabotage and subversive activities of all kinds behind the enemy's lines.

Former Policeman Is Injured in Fall

A former Metropolitan Police private was treated for head injuries in Georgetown Hospital yesterday from a fall Sunday night in the rear of 2601 Calvert Street Northwest.

He is Herbert W. Ervin, 43, of Arlington, Va., who, according to the Eighth Precinct, was a lieutenant in the United States Army before entering the force on May 28, 1919. Police said he fell down a steep embankment in the rear of the house, suffering the injuries. His condition was said to be good last night. He left the force on June 19, 1920.

Old Age Policy Pays Up to $50 a Month!

Needed Protection, Ages 65 to 85, Costs Only 1 Cent a Day

The Postal Life & Casualty Insurance Co., 2151 Postal Life Building, Kansas City, Mo., has a new accident policy for men and women of ages 65 to 85.

It pays up to $500 if killed, up to $50 a month for disability, up to $25 a month for hospital care and other benefits that so many older people have wanted.

And the cost is only 1 cent a day—$3.65 a year!

Postal pays claims promptly; more than one-quarter million people have bought Postal policies. This special policy for older people is proving especially attractive. No medical examination—no agents will call.

Nazis Say This Is Their New Battleship

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BIG GUNS SPEAK—This picture of naval guns in action was described by German sources as a new battleship firing her 15-inch guns. Turret arrangement is similar to that on the battleship Bismarck, sunk by the British. Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, at yesterday's White House press conference asked about Berlin accounts of "a new German battleship." He was told it was "the same old ship"—the Von Tirpitz tee and Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, acting Speaker of the House.

Spokesmen said they received the inside story of the historic conference with Churchill, and found in it no commitments not contained in the eight-point joint declaration.

"I am convinced," said Senator Connally, "that the President has made no commitments which in any way would alter our position toward the war; I do not believe we are any closer to actual involvement."

Disclosed as one outgrowth of the sea conference were plans for centralization of British arms orders, under one head, to eliminate overlapping requests from the British army and navy. Lord Beaverbrook's mission here, it was said, concerns this.

One leader said the need for coordination of orders, so that most urgent demands can be met first and handled in the light of the United States' own defense orders, was discussed in full by military chiefs attending the conference with Churchill.

No definite agreement was reached at the White House on the size of the next lend-lease appropriation but legislators were told it should be less than the seven billion dollars previously expected.

While most of the original seven billion dollars has been allocated, considerable sums remain unspent, and conferees were told that, pending Budget Bureau studies, "five or six billion" dollars appeared a more likely figure. Estimates will not be sent to the Capitol until after the House returns from vacation, September 15.

Legislators appeared most heartened by new facts on Russian resistance brought to light at the conference.

They were told there was every chance that the Russian army could sustain Nazi blitz attacks without collapse, should Odessa and Leningrad fall, or even Moscow, which some regarded as unlikely.

Even if forced to retire in some sectors, the Russians, these informants said, were likely to continue an effective line of resistance until winter slows the Nazi machine and German morale as well.

While in need of certain replacement equipment, the Russians were representd as adequately supplied with food and having gold reserves to pay for such items as tanks, bombers and gasoline that can be purchased here.

Should the present German offensive reach a stalemate this fall, Germans, on the other hand, would be faced with Napoleon's task of maintaining long lines of supply through devastated regions in the winter and fighting off increasing Allied aerial attacks a home, one conferee pointed out.

It would be a question then of whether German morale, led to expect an easy victory, could "take it," he said.

British authorities, it was said, were confident in any event that the Germans would not be able to launch an immediate attack against England.

The Russians have conserved much equipment in each withdrawal, and have more material and fresh troops in reserve, but how much they have in reserve neither the British authorities heretofore nor the Germans have had means of knowing, it was pointed out.

"If the Germans had known what Stalin had in reserve, they never would have gone into Russia, Representative Bloom, one of the conferees, told reporters.

While the Russian picture was described by all hands as "encouraging," leaders said the President had no illusions about the grim struggle ahead if Hitler is to be crushed. But throughout the conference he radiated his confidence of collapse in the end of the Nazi machine and regime.

Possible moves of Japan in the Far East were reviewed in the White House conference, without conclusions on the Nipponese role. Some of the legislators thought it was about an even chance as to whether Japan would act aggressively, depending on how far Hitler moves into Russia.

Connally, Senate Foreign Relations chairman, said one group in Japan doesn't want war and doesn't want trouble with the United States.

"There is another group of militarists who think that while we are busy helping Britain they might slip down and swipe Thailand and the Dutch East Indies," he said.

"But the Japanese are not altruistically going to war for Mr. Hitler. Anything they do will be for Japan."

or sell sufficient quantities of gasoline "so as to equalize between themselves the percentage of curtailment which each is required to impose upon different classes of trade."

Wholesalers here in Washington reported that no word had been received yesterday from company headquarters as to the handling of the ration problem, and it was understood that such action was waiting upon the Davies recommendation. They said that they expected to hear "any day now."

The marketing committee, headed by H. W. Dodge, vice president of the Texas Corporation, is expected to begin work on fixing curtailment percentages on Wednesday.

Survey in District

Meanwhile, a check on several downtown parking stations yesterday failed to disclose any evidence of a "carry-your-neighbor-to-work" move, as suggested recently by Secretary Ickes.

Attendants reported that there had been no increase in the number of cars handled by their lots, nor any noticeable decrease in the number of multipassenger cars carrying only one or two persons.

This was substantiated by a count taken at a large parking lot, which draws the majority of its clientele from three big Government agencies. Out of 50 four and five passenger autos leaving the lot within a five-minute period, 36 carried only the driver. Only four carried as many as three persons.

The Morningside Village Citizens Association, however, reported success in a store-your-car campaign carried on by their organization. They said that a survey showed that out of a previous 20 cars going to the District and returning each day, only eight were now being used. They estimated that not over 5 per cent of the autos leaving the village now carry only one person.

known to be reluctant to enter into such an agreement in the midst of an organizing drive. A. F. L. machinists, at the same time, have been hesitant to meet with the rival group.

Only the A. F. L. and an independent welders union representatives were present to meet management and Government officials at yesterday's conferences. An OPM spokesman said that Richard Frankensteen, head of the C. I. O. delegation, wired that his group had been delayed, but would be in Washington later. Whether Frankensteen will consent to join a resumption of the conference today was an open question.

On other labor fronts, a strike of 800 A. F. L. building tradesmen halted construction work on the $1,250,000 Camp Lockett project, 50 miles east of San Diego, following what was reporte das a breakdown of negotiations on union demands for board and room expenses.

A settlement was announced of an 11-day strike at the Ampco Twist Drill Co., Jackson, Mich., holding defense contracts. C. I. O.-U. A. W. unionists returned from what they termed a "vacation" after the company agreed to enter wage negotiations.

The Pratt & Whitney division of United Aircraft Corporation, East Hartford, Conn., manufacturers of airplane engines, announced a night shift layoff because of a strike at the Leland-Gifford Co., Worcester, Mass., manufacturers of crankshafts.

In Washington, the Labor Department certified to the Mediation Board a three-week-old strike of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee at the Pacific States Cast Iron Pipe Co., Provo, Utah. The union is seeking higher wages and a closed shop.

The Defense Mediation Board made no progress report last night after an all-day hearing in an effort to end the strike of the C. I. O. Gas, Byproducts, Coke and Chemical Workers Union at 17 plants of the United States Gypsum Co.

The board adjourned to resume the hearing this morning.

Charles D. McDuffey, treasurer of the Lincoln Mills at Huntsville, Ala., where the C. I. O. Textile Workers Union has threatened to call out 1000 workers engaged on Army and Navy cotton textile orders, asked the Defense Mediation Board for more time to consider the board's recommendations for settling the dispute.

Chum Flees as She Fights Attacker Who Gave Them Ride

Chandler, Okla., Aug. 18.—The nude body of a blue-eyed girl was found propped against a gravestone in Chandler Cemetery today a few hours after a girl friend left her struggling in a car with an unidentified man.

Billie Grayson, 18, whose father is a radio repairman at Stroud, Okla., had been strangled with hands and a rope. Her neck was broken.

Her body, her clothing tossed over it, was left against the marker in a sitting position so lifelike a caretaker mowed near it several times before he investigated.

Helen Grandstaff, 12, said she and the slain girl, who had been staying with Mrs. Gene Duncan, a relative, near Warwick, went to that town last night and started home about 11 p. m.

On her way, she said, a "medium-sized, sharp-faced man" picked them up.

"He kept asking me if there were many houses in that section," she told Deputy Sheriff Boyd Hicks.

"When I said 'No,' he drove a ways and stopped. I jumped out of the car and ran.

"Billie tried to get out, too, but he grabbed her by the neck. That's the last I saw of her."

The girl said she sought refuge in a nearby farmhouse and spent the rest of the night, too terrified to sound an alarm.

Dr. J. W. Adams, county health officer, said he did not believe the girl had been raped.

Deputy Sheriff Bert James added she evidently had been slain away from the cemetery.

"There were gravel marks on her knees," he said, "which would indicate she had been dragged from a car to the grave."

Create Amity, First Lady Asks Girl Scouts

By the Associated Press

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today called upon Western Hemisphere Girl Scouts to correct any misunderstanding among their peoples.

Mrs. Roosevelt's message, broadcast by short wave to South America, followed an inspection of the second annual Western Hemisphere Girl Scout encampment at East Otis, where girls from 15 countries and 24 States are gathered.

"The United States has not always been the good neighbor we might have been," she said, "because, some times, we . . . have not taken the trouble to explain what we have done or thought in terms our neighbors could understand.

"So there's a good deal of misunderstanding among older people to be wiped out.

"Therefore, your responsibility . . . is the position your government, backed by its people, will take in its relationship with other people and for the real understanding of the position of other countries."

Mrs. Roosevelt said that better newspapers and radios enabled present-day girls to keep better informed than the last generation so that "there is little excuse if you do not realize what friendship between nations can and should mean.

"Democracy is only real democracy when it does not stand still. If you grow lazy or don't think, your governments will go backward or stand still."

Former Flier Is Found Guilty In Coast Killing

Redwood City, Calif., Aug. 18.—John M. Holmes, San Francisco Peninsula socialite and former aviator, was convicted of manslaughter tonight for the slaying of Wilson Davis McNary, jr., Portland, Oreg., businessman. The jury was out 6½ hours.

"Okay," the blind defendant said to his attorneys when the verdict was read.

Superior Judge Maxwell McNutt set next Friday for passing sentence.

The jury took the case after hearing District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell say a bullet hole in a pillow proved the shooting was willful and deliberate. Holmes claimed he shot in self-defense.

Young McNary was shot in a San Mateo hotel room May 3 after a quarrel over a wealthy widow. Then Holmes shot himself, inflicting permanent blindness.

Ferrell did not ask the death penalty.

Judge McNutt allowed one of seven questions submitted by the jurors to be answered by a reading from the transcript of testimony.

The question concerned the bullet hole in McNary's pillow. Ferrell contended the hole proved the former flier shot McNary as he lay in bed and not as the victim reached for something in his suitcase. There was no weapon in the suitcase.

Judge McNutt, in instructing the jury, said the plea of self-defense was not available to a person who had sought a quarrel.

Holmes was prosecuted on a charge of murder, but under California law a jury may decide the crime was of a lesser nature, and convict or acquit of manslaughter, or in some cases, negligent homicide.

Delinquency Rise Predicted Among Youth

San Francisco, Aug. 18 (AP).—American boys and girls are going to join the parade of criminality and delinquency in increasing numbers due to the war, Sydney H. Souter, jr., superintendent of the Annandale (N. J.) State Reformatory, told the American Prison Association tonight.

He cited a report of a 50-per cent increase in delinquences in England in four war months, and another showing the increase in Manchester, England, for last year was 77 per cent.

The same condition likely will exist in this country long before hostilities have ceased, Souter added. He contended that some young Americans, who for years have been starving for purchasable pleasures and who now are making war-boom wages, might "go too far in their efforts to make up for lost time."

Others may slip when the defense program slacks off and fat pay envelopes become only a memory, he said.

Prison, parole and reformatory workers will be able to meet the crime situation most effectively, Souter added, if they will add humanitarianism, Christian generosity and understanding to the services they give those who come under their care.

As an example of this extra measure of service he cited the case of a 19-year-old boy committed to a reformatory for burglary. On delivery to the insitution he collapsed. The medical officer quickly discovered that the boy was a diabetic and restored him to consciousness with insulin shots.

Then the doctor went further and found that the boy had committed the burglary to obtain funds for the purchase of insulin to keep himself alive. The medical man won the everlasting gratitude of the youth and guided him to a life of happiness, if not health.

LaGuardia Reveals He'll Ask Millions for Air-Raid Wardens

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, United States Director of Civilian Defense, told the forty-eighth annual International Police Conference today he planned to ask Congress for an appropriation for air raid warden equipment.

The requested amount, he added, would run into eight figures.

It would buy, he explained, fire-fighting equipment, helmets, snuffers, sprays and "other necessary tools for air raid wardens."

Appealing for volunteers to serve as wardens, he declared that "if we are attacked, the time we have—no matter how long—won't be enough."

Earlier, President Roosevelt sent a message to the conference that "the internal security of the United States is dependent in large part on the zeal and prudence" of law-enforcement officers.

In a letter of greeting to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, head of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the President said:

"In this critical period of the Nation's history the functions of law enforcement agencies become more significant and vital than they were heretofore. . . .

"I have been informed of the whole-hearted cooperation which you have extended to Federal law enforcement officers, on whom devolves the primary obligation to safeguard our national defense, and I take this opportunity to commending you and all of your members for your activities in this direction."

Col. Hobart B. Brown, of the War Department, asserted the problem of traffic control "is becoming daily more serious in this country and in any theater of operations which may develop in this emergency will be magnified many times."

Blimp Line Application Of Nazis Is Dismissed

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday dismissed "for lack of prosecution" a German application filed October 24, 1938 for a zeppelin service between Frankfort-Onmain, Germany, and Lakehurst, N. J.

The application was filed by Deutsche Zeppelin Reederi and proposed 15 to 30 round trips annually by a 40-passenger dirigible described as a sister-ship of the Hindenberg which burned at Lakehurst May 6, 1937.

Press Warning On Propaganda Urged in Bill

Representative Thill (Republican), of Wisconsin, introduced legislation yesterday which would require newspapers to publish notices warning their readers to be wary of propaganda in connection with news emanating from foreign countries.

Thill said in a statement his bill would require newspapers publishing news from any correspondent located in a country at war to print in a conspicuous place this notice:

"To our readers: News matter derived from foreign correspondents located within countries at war is usually censored. The reader is cautioned to be wary of propaganda."

tives, with rank of inspector.

Four other captains would be made inspectors. They are Harvey Callahan, of the First Precinct; John E. Fowler, of the Thirteenth; Clarence Talley, of the Seventh, and Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Division.

Capt. Callahan, slated to become assistant superintendent of police to replace retired Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, probably will not take over the post until Kelly has been named full superintendent after the retirement of Maj. Ernest W. Brown later this month.

The Commissioners emphasized that no action would be taken on Kelly's recommendations until the full board had an opportunity to study them.

It also was expected that contents of the Snow committee report would have considerable bearing on the Commissioners' decision.

Four "rookie" policemen were named to the Metropolitan force yesterday. They were Robert L. Carter, 27; Arthur M. Davis, 28; George C. Offutt, 31, and Cullen M. Camper, 29.

Dairymen Oppose Legislation Trends

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Dairymen attending an "emergency meeting" called by the National Cooperative Milk Producers Association voiced their opposition today to a number of trends in recent agricultural legislation.

Speakers urged the industry to oppose the Doughton bill and any breakdown in tariff walls, and criticized the new price control bills and the Government's new standards for olemargarine.

The conference, attended by delegates from the federation's member associations and other farm groups, was called to evolve a program to protect agriculture from "the impact of new and unexpected problems and policies developing as the Nation prepares for defense."

Tails for bombers

OUR long experience in fabricating light alloy-metals for aircraft construction is now proving of immense assistance to the nation's rapidly expanding aviation industry. Today our subsidiary, Goodyear Aircraft Corporation, is building complete tail-assemblies, wings and other control surfaces for Glenn L. Martin Company, Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, Curtiss-Wright Corporation and Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation. And we are developing facilities that will make Goodyear one of the largest manufacturers of airplane accessories and subcontractors of airplane parts.

THE GREATEST NAME IN RUBBER
GOODYEAR

Rep. May, Cited In Stock Suit, Issues Denial

Mrs. Louise B. Gove, 1613 Harvard Street Northwest, sued officers of the Greenbriar Mining Corporation for $12,367 in the District Court yesterday, alleging fraud and deceit in the sale of stock and other operations of the firm.

Among the defendants named was Representative Andrew Jackson May (Democrat), of Kentucky, president of the corporation. May promptly called the charges false and said that he, too, lost money in the venture.

Attorney Jeff Busby filed the complaint for Mrs. Gove, who is a department store saleswoman. Besides May, the defendants were A. J. Mullen, Baltimore, vice president; M. A. Martin, 1814 C Street Northeast, treasurer, and two directors, Mrs. Julia G. May and Walter E. Blount, of the Yacht Sunshine.

Falsity Alleged

Mrs. Gove's complaint charged that the corporation was formed to produce manganese from a 7000-acre tract in West Virginia, on which the company had a lease. The complaint said that 100,000 shares of stock were authorized, but that only 43,000 were issued, of which the officers took 40,000 and Mrs. Gove and 21 other persons took 3000. Mrs. Gove bought 800 shares for $2000.

The complaint said that Mrs. Gove was induced to buy the stock by false representations about the prospects of the enterprise and the quantity of manganese already produced and ready for market.

The complaint said Mrs. Gove and other stockholders were denied access to the books and records of the company and that May kept these in his office in the House Office Building.

Blames Officers

When Mrs. Gove protested, the complaint said, she was given a note of the corporation for $2000. She also was given a note for $567 for money she lent to the company. She asked judgment on these and for $10,000 as damages for losses she suffered when the West Virginia lease, chief asset of the company, ran out. She blamed this on the officers.

"I never sold Mrs. Gove or anybody else any stock or made any representations about any stock," May said. "The only time I ever talked about it was in a stockholders' meeting of the company. This was a mining enterprise which could either make money or lose money. It lost. I myself lost $7000 or $8000 directly and besides that I find that I have to pay about $5000 of the corporation's notes which I indorsed.

"As far as this suit goes, there is not one word of truth in it. I shall not wait to be summoned, but I shall file my answer in the District Court and demand an immediate trial."

Retrocession Will Still Leave 'NoMan's Land'

Retrocession to the District of Columbia of Virginia territory which at one time formed a part of the original District would create another "no man's land" similar to the narrow, disputed strip of land now lying between the District and the northern boundary of Arlington County, a check of early land maps in Alexandria's City Hall showed yesterday.

In the event the District obtains the original territory, which Congress gave back to Virginia in 1846, a strip of land at the extreme southern end of Alexandria would be left within Virginia's boundaries, but under existing lines would be part of no city or county in the State. Since the Alexandria-Fairfax County line is marked by the Hunting Creek basin, this territory would lie between that line and the boundary forming the District under the proposed retrocession.

The property, mostly undeveloped, includes about 20 per cent of the city's territory, but according to city officials, would not be suitable for development as an individual city. It embodies some of Alexandria's most desirable residential property, some commercial sites, and some land described as entirely "useless."

The Virginia-District of Columbia boundary, under Senator Pat McCarran's annexation plan, would run through one of Alexandria's most recently developed sites, which includes the Boulevard and Gunston Hall apartment sites; Yates Gardens, a new row-house development, and several other newly developed residential areas. Just where the line would be established can be determined only by survey, but the early land maps indicated some homes probably would be partially in Virginia and partially in the District unless some slight changes are provided.

Alexandria's George Washington Park, one of the city's most desirable residential sections, would remain in Virginia, with King Street Road serving as the dividing line between the two jurisdictions at that point. The boundary also would cut diagonally through South Patrick, Alfred and Henry Streets, all of which include both residential and commercial property sites, although the status of the property cannot be determined until an accurate survey is completed.

Committee Backs Tugwell For PuertoRico

By the Associated Press

The Senate Territories Committee approved yesterday President Roosevelt's nomination of Rexford Guy Tugwell to be Governor of Puerto Rico.

The committee's action followed an interrogation of Tugwell in which he denied having any intention of introducing "communal land tenure" in Puerto Rico similar to "the systems of Russia and Mexico."

The committee interrupted Tugwell's plane trip to Puerto Rico Thursday and summoned him back here for questioning.

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, told Tugwell before the committee voted that "we don't really care what you intend to recommend for Puerto Rico, because if we do not approve of your recommendations here in Congress we will simply turn them down."

Tugwell told the committee that Interior Secretary Ickes had sent him to Puerto Rico with agents of the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the Farm Security Administration and the Department of Agriculture to study the land tenure system there, and to make recommendations.

Tugwell added that despite an insular law limiting land tenure to a maximum of 500 acres, "a dozen large sugar corporations own approximately 300,000 acres of the most productive land."

He said, "The land problem of Puerto Rico has got to be solved," but declared he would oppose any plan of "communal ownership."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, who conducted most of the interrogation of Tugwell, declared that Tugwell's previous testimony indicated the Administration's proposed land policy in Puerto Rico was "along the same lines as the Russian and Mexican policies."

Tugwell said:

"I would not favor it. The Government should not own the land, but a redistribution compatible with the maximum productivity should be carried out."

"Depressions and idle people next to seemingly idle land cause a lot of hard feeling down there against the land-owning corporations," Tugwell said.

He added that apparently the Government of the United States would have to choose between these plans:

Divide up the large estates and redistribute them.

Take them over and operate them.

Tugwell said the time would come when "all concerned" would appear before a Congressional hearing and Congress then would be confronted with the problem of either appropriating funds for enforcing the 500-acre land law or altering the law.

Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, said Tugwell was "trying to drop his problem in the lap of Congress."

Rabbi Urges Aid To Foes of Axis

All-out aid to Britain was urged yesterday by Rabbi Harry Silverstone in a "devotional hour" address over Station WRC. He is leader of Tifereth Israel Congregation, Fourteenth and Euclid Streets Northwest.

"We must give aid to Britain and to all other nations fighting for the democratic way of life," he said. "Let us not stand shivering upon the banks, but plunge in at once and have it all over with."

"When will isolationists and appeasers learn that peace can never be bought at the price of honor?" he asked. "Peace without self-respect is worse than war."

Color Experts Give Guide for Painting

In the ideal color scheme, some color experts say that the dominant hue should compose approximately one-half of the entire combination; the augmenting hue should make up one-third; the contrasting hue one-sixth of the scheme.

Those exact proportions cannot always be used, but the principle may serve as a helpful guide when painting and decorating.

Largest Shell-Loading Plant Opens in Ohio

Ravenna, Ohio, August 18(INS).—A 46 million dollar artillery shell-loading plant, largest in the world, officially opened under the direction of the Atlas Powder Co. at nearby Wayland today.

The plant, occupying an area of 26 square miles, will concentrate on 75-millimeter supercharged rounds for use in field artillery guns.

100 Nursing Volunteers Called

The Central Volunteer Bureau of the District Defense Council mailed 100 cards yesterday to women who chose nursing as their preference in home defense work, during the city-wide registration last June, according to Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the bureau.

The cards were mailed, she said, in connection with plans recently announced by F. H. LaGuardia, civilian defense director, for training nationally 100,000 volunteer nurses' aides within the next 12 months, in collaboration with the American Red Cross.

The Central Volunteer Bureau has an index file of 1000 women who expressed interest in work as nurses' aides. Cards will be mailed to them in groups of 100 at a time, it was said, to supply students for Red Cross practical nursing classes.

Classes are scheduled to begin around September 17, and each will contain 30 persons, chosen from the 100 applicants to whom cards were sent.

The course will last seven weeks, with classes being held two to three hours daily, except on Saturdays and Sundays. Applicants will be chosen upon the basis of their spare time, Mrs. Bernton said, and from those between the ages of 20 to 50 years, and with a high school education.

Havana Bombing Injures Eight

Havana, Aug. 18 (INS).—Three bomb blasts in a row in downtown Havana tonight brought out the police reserves as several persons were injured and severa lstore windows destroyed.

Eight persons, at least, were injured. The first bomb was thrown into a midtown shoe store from a speeding automobile. One youthful passerby was seriously hurt. Others were cut by flying glass. Police believed the blasts might have been set by an anti-Fascist group.

Paralysis Delays Induction of Selectees in York

By the Associated Press

York, Pa., Aug. 13.—Selective Service officials suspended the induction of men into the United States Army and final Army physical examinations in York County today because of the outbreak of infantile paralysis, which has claimed at least six lives.

The action was recommended by the State department of health, which reported 31 new cases in the State during last week, bringing the State total to 88 since the week ending July 19, and 121 since the first of the year.

Forty-nine of the cases are in York County, where the outbreak has centered.

Meanwhile, following health board requests, local authorities in various communities where cases have been reported moved to curtail summer activities, including swimming and large gatherings.

Swimming pools were closed in Lancaster and vicinity, Gettysburg and Chambersburg.

The closing of pools at Chambersburg was taken as a precautionary measure after the death of an 11-year-old boy.

The appearance of one case in Adams County resulted in similar measures.

The Luther League of the Central Pennsylvania Synod postponed indefinitely its third annual convention which was to have opened next Sunday at a camp near Biglerville, Adams County.

The annual farmers' fair held between Abbottstown and East Berlin in Adams County was canceled and several communities reported baseball games had been postponed.

In York, Dr. John D. Yeagley, health officer, reported two new respirators had been ordered to augment three borrowed "iron lungs" now in use.

Several communities called for persons who have recovered from the disease to donate blood from which a serum would be made to aid in combatting the affliction.

U. S. Promises Aid In Maryland Fight

Baltimore, Aug. 18 (AP).—The State of Maryland today received the promise of $10,000 in Federal aid to fight the infantile paralysis outbreak which thus far has stricken 67 persons.

Dr. C. H. Halliday, chief epidemiologist of the State health department, said he was advised by telephone that $5,000 had already been sent to the State, and that an additional $5,000 would be made available if needed.

Dr. Halliday said the health department had received reports of 22 cases in the counties and 45 in Baltimore City this year. Of the 22 in the counties, he said, 11 were reported so far this month. August usually brings an increase in the disease, he added.

Of the 11 cases in the counties, he said, 5 have been reported from Baltimore County, 3 from Harford, 2 from Calvert and 1 from Howard.

Only one death has been reported, he said, and that occurred in March of this year.

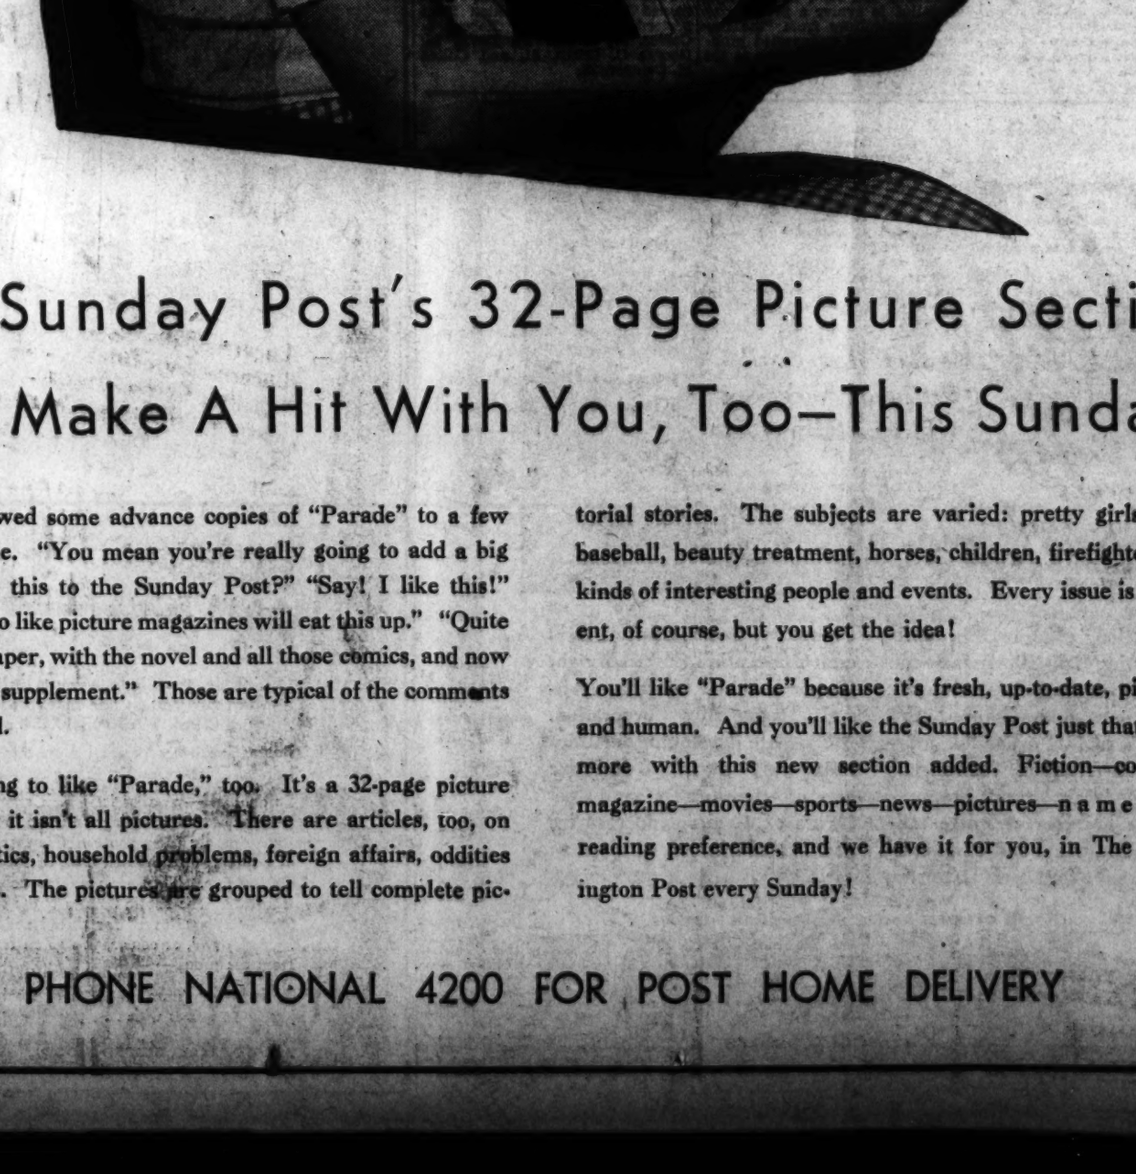
"Say! I like this 'Parade!'"



The Sunday Post's 32-Page Picture Section Will Make A Hit With You, Too—This Sunday!

WE showed some advance copies of "Parade" to a few people. "You mean you're really going to add a big section like this to the Sunday Post?" "Say! I like this!" "People who like picture magazines will eat this up." "Quite a Sunday paper, with the novel and all those comics, and now this picture supplement." Those are typical of the comments we received.

You're going to like "Parade," too. It's a 32-page picture section, but it isn't all pictures. There are articles, too, on sports, politics, household problems, foreign affairs, oddities in the news. The pictures are grouped to tell complete pictorial stories. The subjects are varied: pretty girls, war, baseball, beauty treatment, horses, children, firefighters, all kinds of interesting people and events. Every issue is different, of course, but you get the idea!

You'll like "Parade" because it's fresh, up-to-date, pictorial and human. And you'll like the Sunday Post just that much more with this new section added. Fiction—comics—magazine—movies—sports—news—pictures—name your reading preference, and we have it for you, in The Washington Post every Sunday!

Radio Tax Called Discriminatory

Alvord Makes Charge At Hearing; Levy 'Dubious,' Fly Says

Copyright by New York Times

The proposed tax on broadcast time sold by radio stations was assailed before the Senate Finance Committee yesterday as "dubious" and "discriminatory" as the committee began what is expected to be the final week's hearings on a bill planned to raise around $4,500,000,000.

At the same time, the committee received an appeal from Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, that present individual income tax exemptions be cut at least in half and that individual and corporate rates be further increased as a substitute for new nuisance taxes.

Both James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and spokesmen for the broadcasters criticized the broadcasting tax, which is estimated to raise some $12,500,000 in its first full year of operation.

Precedent Admitted

Fly said that he thought the levy "a very dubious tax." To Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, he admitted it might set a precedent leading to the taxing of newspaper advertising.

Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, asked if the levy might not be considered as a tax on freedom of expression inasmuch as the radio chains give considerable free time for discussions of public questions. Fly replied that they did give such time and that this offset the contention that the stations should be taxed because they are given valuable franchises free.

The FCC head also suggested that the Senators should consider the fact that broadcasting stations generally must be on the air continually and if the oil shortage and other factors should cause large radio advertisers to cut out such advertising the stations would still have to fill in that time. The fact that competing media like newspapers and magazines are subject to no comparable tax also should be considered, he said.

Ellsworth C. Alvord, tax attorney, speaking for the National Association of Broadcasters, said the proposed levy was discriminatory because levied on an industry performing a real public service in normal times and one of "utmost importance" in times of national emergency.

Monopoly Denied

Commenting on one of the House arguments for the levy, Alvord denied that radio stations have any monopoly, asserting that no locality in the country lacks competitive broadcasting, sometimes from as many as a score of stations. Excise taxes on other products, he said, are passed along to the ultimate purchasers, but the radio broadcasters could not do this and retain their competitive position.

O'Neal told the committee he believed the public generally would support reduction of exemptions for single persons to $400 and of married couples to $1,000. He urged revision of the bill to require everyone to contribute to national defense on the basis of ability to pay, an end of profiteering involving the national defense use of tax powers to prevent inflation, and abandonment of efforts to increase excise taxes, or establish a sales tax "at least until other tax sources have been more celarly exhausted."

In asking the committee to broaden the income tax base, O'Neal said that 13 billion dollars of the Nation's estimated income this year of about 90 billions would be exempt.

"At Expense of Defense"

It is essential that the Government prevent profiteering in wages and salaries," he continued. "Millions of persons are receiving very substantially increased incomes as a result of the enormous expenditures for defense . . . We are against profiteering at the expense of national defense—whether it be in agriculture, industry or labor. American farmers will match dollar for dollar on the basis of ability to pay and sacrifice for sacrifice with labor and industry to help finance the national defense program."

The committee also heard opposition yesterday to a proposed tax of $15 per alley bed on bowling alleys, the critics asserting that a $5 tax was about all the industry could stand, due to the very heavy local and State levies. The Retail Manufacturing Furriers of America, Inc., also assailed the 10 per cent tax on furs of all kinds as "uneconomic, inequitable and so difficult to police and collect that it would prove unprofitable to the Government."

Charles Gold, general counsel of the association, said the association favored a fur tax, however, that should be imposed at the point of dressing.

Brigadier Is Captured In War Game

By Stuart Welch
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Army in Southwest Washington, Aug. 18.—A brigadier general got right up in the front ranks with his troops today and was captured by an invading enemy in the Pacific Northwest war games.

The officer, Brig. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea, commanding officer of the Eighty-second Brigade, Forty-first division, was taken in the lower Puget Sound area near Shelton so quickly none of his staff could escape into surrounding woods.

Enemy tank battalions, represented by yellow-hued jeeps, raced through road blocks and past anti-tank forces to effect the capture only a few hours after the war games opened last night.

Town Changes Hands

The invading force captured, then lost, the lumber and pulp mill town of Shelton, 20 miles from the State capital at Olympia.

The command of the Eighty-second Brigade, which includes the two Oregon regiments of the 162d and 186th Infantries, will now be under Col. Harry C. Brumbaugh, who regularly leads the 162d.

It appeared the hard hitting Forty-sixth Division, made up of National Guard troops from four Northwest State, was bearing the brunt of the battle during the first 24 hours of the mock maneuvers in which an enemy force gained a foothold at Aberdeen, on Gray's Harbor just off the Pacific Ocean, and made paper gains into Southwest Washington.

Found Him by Accident

Some 50,000 troops from Fort Lewis were deplored through the farmland and timbered sectors to hold off the enemy until California troops arrive sometime Wednesday.

Maj. Gen. George A. White, commanding the Forty-first, rushed thousands of reinforcing troops into the Shelton area and latest reports gave the city a gain in the hands of friendly troops.

Army officials suspected the invading tank battalion was looking for the command post of the Forty-first Division, where Gen. White is operating, when it accidentally ran into the brigade post and captured Gen. Rilea.

Unit Formed Here for War Now on Axis

Formation here of a branch of the Fight For Freedom Committee, a national organization advocating immediate war on the Axis, was announced yesterday by Mrs. Raymond Clapper, acting chairman.

"A program calling for action on the part of those who believe as we do, that events of the last week demonstrate the purpose of Axis combination ultimately to dominate the world, will be announced shortly," Mrs. Clapper said.

"Need of Fighting Hitler"

"Twin developments in connection with both the Vichy government in France and in the Far East show unmistakably that the menace of totalitarianism to western civilization is more gravely acute than ever before. The Fight For Freedom Committee, which is a movement and not merely an organization has been trying for the last six months to arouse Americans to the need of fighting Hitler where he is, instead of waiting for him to attack us in this Hemisphere after he and his partners have gained new footholds in the Pacific and in North Africa," she declared.

"With special awareness of the lack of realism in Congress over the danger to this country, the Washington group proposes to make a militant fight to bring this Capital into line with the rest of the country in recognizing this danger."

Headed by Mrs. Clapper, acting chairman, the local group consists of the following temporary officers and members, according to the announcement:

Michael Straight, acting vice chairman; Mrs. Helen H. Miller, acting secretary; Mrs. Ulric Bell; E. C. Acheson; Miss Esther C. Brunauer; David Cushman Coyle; Coleman Jennings and Donald R. Richberg.

National officers of the organization were listed as Senator Carter Glass, honorary chairman; the Rt. Rev. Henry Hobson, chairman; Wayne Johnson, treasurer; F. H. Peter Cusick, executive secretary; Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, vice chairman; Francis P. Miller, vice chairman, and Ulric Bell, chairman of the executive committee.

Parents Urged To Construct Home Play Yards

District parents were urged yesterday to construct homemade play yards in the campaign against child traffic accidents, by M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of vehicles and traffic.

Eldridge made his plea following announcement that 67 entries for the Backyard Playground contest had been received by Harry C. English, assistant director of the District Recreation Department.

The contest is sponsored by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the Junior Board of Commerce, in cooperation with the District WPA, in an effort to provide safe play places for children. Contest officials will meet Friday to select judges. Eliminations will take place during the following two weeks. Prizes will be awarded to winning contestants.

Gift Dog Aids Little Girl's Fight for Life

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—A little brown dog, a stranger's gift, is helping 7-year-old Geraldine Devlin in her fight for life.

The youngster, suffering from a heart ailment that baffles doctors, failed rapidly after her pet terrier, Sandy, disappeared a week ago.

"I want Sandy," she insisted, despondently, when more than 100 persons, many of them with dogs, called at her home.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
Geraldine and her new pet

Mrs. Thelma Fish read about Geraldine's illness and offered her Brownie, a terrier almost the image of Sandy.

"Gerry fell in love right away with Brownie," said Walter Devlin, her father. "From the minute that dog came into the house, she began to pick up and change for the better."

Devlin said doctors had told him there was nothing they could do for Geraldine.

"They left her in God's hands and we trust to Him to take care of her," said the father. "There's nothing we can do but keep that smile on her face—and Brownie is doing that."

Copper Scrap Prices Fixed By Henderson

By the Associated Press

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday put a ceiling price on copper scrap which, he said, has been selling "at levels completely out of line with the price of copper."

The ceiling on scrap fixes price differentials ranging from two to four cents a pound below the price of copper, on which a maximum of 12 cents was established a week ago. Dealers are allowed a uniform margin of ¾ cent a pound for collecting, sorting, storing and shipping copper scrap.

Thus, Henderson's announcement said, the price of scrap copper has "been restored to a fair relationship" with the price of new metal. The scrap is a basic ingredient of copper and copper-alloy ingots and of electrolytic copper, both essential to defense and civilian industry.

"This situation, if allowed to continue, would have forced defense users of copper, which is subject to priority control, to draw more heavily on supplies of new metal," he said. "Thus, allocation problems would have multiplied to the detriment of the defense effort and industry at large."

The prices become effective today. The top prices fixed in the schedule are 10 cents a pound for No. 1 copper wire and No. 1 heavy copper; 9 cents a pound for No. 2 copper wire and mixed heavy copper (each containing 96 per cent of copper) and 8 cents for light copper (containing 92 per cent copper). The ceiling prices apply to sales by "makers" of scrap delivered to the buyer's warehouse or plant.

A ½-cent a pound premium may be charged on shipments aggregating 400,000 pounds or more and delivered at one time.

Blonde Arrested In Hotel Lootings

Ann Simpson Goore, 25-year-old blonde, of Charlotte, N. C., was charged with three cases of housebreaking last night after police questioned her in connection with a series of hotel lootings. She was arrested yesterday in a downtown hotel after a guest awoke to find a woman run from his room. A hotel aide called police.

The suspect will appear in police court this morning.

Chinese Dollar Value Fixed at Higher Level

Shanghai, Aug. 18 (AP).—The American-British-Chinese stabilization board, acting to improve the value of China's currency, fixed the Chunking dollar exchange rate today at five and eleven thirty-seconds American cents.

This rate is approximately 10 per cent above the current black market exchange.

American and British banks licensed to sell foreign currency under freezing regulations will furnish American dollars at the new rate to legitimate importers, it was announced.

Ansel Messerall Funeral Services Held in Riverdale

Funeral services for Ansel Messerall, 52, a guard in the Labor Department, who died en route to Emergency Hospital Friday after suffering an attack while working, was held last night in Chambers funeral home in Riverdale, Md. Plans for burial have not yet been decided upon.

Mr. Messerall was a member of Sergt. Jasper Post 13 of the American Legion. During the World War he served as a sergeant in Siberia. He had worked here as a guard in the Labor Department for the past eight years.

He was born in Hastings, Nebr., but made his home later in Los Angeles, where his nearest relatives reside at the present time. He leaves his father, Jefferson Messerall, and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Jacobson and Mrs. Laura Chapman.

The Picture Business Takes an Upward Swing

Traveling Observer Forecasts a Boom Year; Maurice Evans to Appear Next in 'Macbeth;' News Notes and Bits of Gossip of the Theater

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY is pointed toward the greatest year it has enjoyed in decades, according to Mr. Barrett Kiesling, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's transcontinental pulse-feeler, now in the midst of one of his most comprehensive junkets over this country and Canada to determine precisely which way the wind is blowing. It is blowing right down the producer's, the distributor's, the exhibitor's and the public's alley, Mr. Kiesling has discovered. What has led to his conclusions was explained at Carter Barron's press luncheon in his honor at the Willard yesterday.

MAURICE EVANS

Contrary to some of the opinions held and frequently expressed here by this department, Mr. Kiesling perceives in the Government's "Consent Decree," the chief impetus to a revived competitive spirit in all branches of the film industry. Whereas, under the old system of "block booking," all segments of the industry had slipped into a bit of a rut, they now find themselves confronted with the necessity of marketing pictures five at a time, with the exhibitors picking and choosing with greater care than at any time since 1920, when block booking became the usual custom.

Exhibitors, Mr. Kiesling has found, are canvassing their patrons to determine exactly what type of film entertainment they most desire. The response, so far, has been preponderantly on the side of "escapist" diversion. Hence the increased number of light comedies and musical productions on the schedules of the producers.

The ramifications and extent of the "defense prosperity" that is sweeping both the United States and Canada have produced results that have been slow in manifesting themselves and difficult to analyze in terms of box-office. The sudden acquisition of earning capacities beyond anything they have known in years has completely altered the design for living pursued by a vast number of the public. Increased buying power invariably is found to express itself in the increased purchase of heavy goods first, clothing next, "luxuries" next and amusements last. Once the novelty of money in hand has worn off, the quest of entertainment of conventional mold begins to reassert itself. That urge now is being felt all over this continent. Mr. Kiesling has charts, indices, graphs and whatnot to prove it.

Oh, Elmer, Where Are You?

Elmer Kenyon, former professor of English and dramatic literature at Carnegie Tech and now a stentor of the better things of the theater, is a versatile fellow in his correspondence. Comes a letter from him. It is written on a Hotel Traymore (Atlantic City) letterhead, is dated Pittsburgh, August 17, and was mailed in a Hotel Sherman (Chicago) envelope. That is a bit of getting around for any one piece of news. But it seems to have been worth it. Says Mr. Kenyon:

"'Mac beth' as Maurice Evans' next production, once reported, is now assured, Judith Anderson, seeming the most potent Lady Macbeth in sight, was finally won to leaving Hollywood and joining rehearsals September 21. Margaret Webster will direct and I gather that 'Macbeth' more than any of the other Shakespearean plays she has done happens to be her especial love—I suspect because she has always cherished the wish to play Lady M. herself. She has a conviction of more complete mastery of this play than even of her accomplished successes.

"As 'Macbeth' has been read by every adult who attended a secondary school, whereas the other three plays associated with Mr. Evans are not read in most high schools, it should be interesting to see if audiences have ideas as to how they expect the story staged. Will they see in Macbeth's bloody rise to power, his purges, his dictatorial rule, etc., something of the vivid contemporaneousness of Shakespeare?"

Could be. They did in Orson Welles' "Julius Caesar."

Tonight is the night Arch McDonald, the old oracle of Mr. Griffith's apple orchard, deserts his diamond dust and delectable breakfast dishes long enough to launch a revived run of Don Marquis' comedy of "The Old Soak" that will continue at the Cross Roads Theater through August 31, barring next Monday's regular dark night. The no plus ultra cast selected to surround the star—and that's quite a job all by itself—bids fair to support him so well that there will be no excuse for his cracking another ankle, as so unfortunately happened when he was sliding for home back there in 1933.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

With a good six weeks to go before the opening play of the new subscription season of the Theater Guild and American Theater Society, at the National—despite the early opening of the house—the number of reservations already exceeds all previous records by 30 per cent, as of August 15. Reservations number more than 5,000, with the paid-up total 4,300. So it is announced by local Sales Manager Bess Davis Schreiner that all subscriptions must be finally negotiated prior to September 1—or else. Or else the seats won't be there, the demand is so great.

Extension-of-the-Remarks Note

JAMES GLEASON, ROBERT MONTGOMERY, CLAUDE RAINS

reading in the usual direction, as they will appear in the three leading male roles in "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," the new Columbia comedy-drama opening Friday on the screen at the Earle Theater. Evelyn Keyes, Rita Johnson, Edward Everett Horton and John Emery are other important members of the cast. First known as "Heaven Can Wait," this subject is said to be unique among modern comedies as to theme

HEDDA HOPPER

Tally-Ho! Here Comes a Hit!

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 18. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul?" But this has nothing to do with three men who will have their reward here.

BETTE DAVIS

These are Sam Goldwyn, Director Willie Wyler and Cameraman Gregg Toland. They're the stars of "The Little Foxes." Sam, because he had vision enough to buy a play about a most sinister family; Willie Wyler because, even though he had Star Bette Davis to begin with, made every member of the cast a star of equal importance; Gregg Toland for his extraordinary way of lighting his characters. He highlights people and scenes with sunlight and shadow as a painter does.

It's an amazing human document, yet most of the characters in it are inhuman. Picture's so much better than the play that even hard-boiled New York critics, who often wax sarcastic, will go overboard. I haven't space to dwell on each individual performance. They do an ensemble job which is something to shoot at in the future. Too often we have a couple of stars, and the rest are supernumeraries. Willie Wyler has made every member of the cast a star. After seeing "The Little Foxes" you walk about in a daze.

George Brent is an actor, but I'd call him a businessman, too. Before having that operation, he sold his big boat to his boss, Jack Warner, at a profit. No that he's on the mend, he's bought a little one for himself . . . The accident on "The Corsican Brother" set was more serious than reported. The head cameraman had to be taken home and several others of the camera crew have arms swollen as big as a battleship.

I don't understand why Benny Rubin doesn't get more jobs. He was promised a part in a current picture at Paramount, didn't get it. He was supposed to become dialogue director at Warners, didn't get that. He was set for a New York play. That fell through. I hope Orson Welles gets back into production soon. Orson appreciates his talent and puts him in his pictures and on the air. Yet here they call Orson a so-and-so.

Ruth Ward will need that philosophy she taught at the University of Mississippi. Brought to Hollywood, the former professor was shoved into "Secrets of the Lone Wolf." First scene showed her lolling about in scanties . . . Here's E. H. Griffith's story about the two Hollywood tailors who discussed another tailor. "I saw him in a club last night," said one. "How was he?" "Well, he was as tight as Lana Turner's sweater and as low as Veronica Lake's V-neck."

Nice birthday party Paramount gave for Cecil De Mille on his sixtieth birthday. Y. Frank Freeman, president of the company, made a charming speech. As a compliment to Susan Hayward, they served ice cream from her shop. The chef wheeled out a mammoth cake. Unlike the one Metro gave Marie Dressler some years back, it was all cake. Marie made the mistake of cutting into the wrong side of her—which was wood!

Speaking of Freeman, last week he came over to Ann Bauchens, who got an Academy Award for being best cutter in town, handed her a present, a gold pen and pencil, and said, "I've had this in my desk for you ever since that memorable night, but wanted to hand it to you in person. I'm sorry it's taken me so long to do it."

Last week Designer Edith Head came on the set of "Reap the Wild Wind" wearing a dress with her name embroidered on it. De Mille said, "I'd like a shirt like that. People would know me then." Well, he's got it. Edith did one for his birthday.

I asked Ed Estabrook, still man at Universal, which star is the most photogenic. "Baby Sandy," said he. "You can snap her bottoms-up and she's still photogenic. Couldn't say that about the rest."

Speaking of that, Carmen Miranda and Cesar Romero did a twirling dance at Fox that had the studio in a dither. The South American firecracker had forgotten her undies . . . If Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels can get a round-trip passage, they'll be over here shortly for a two weeks' vacation. They've got passage over, but won't leave England unless they can get back in. That's what I call fine people. They're Americans.

In Dual Capacity

JAMES BARTON,

to be seen as headliner of the stage bill at the Capitol and in Paramount's "Shepherd of the Hills," in Technicolor, at Loew's Palace, both opening on Thursday

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Film Pointers on West Point

Hollywood, Aug. 18 (INS).—Stuuudents! How much do you know about West Point? For instance, that it was founded about 150 years ago? That it was once abandoned because of political intrigue? That the actual story back of our national pride and joy is far more dramatic than any fictional movie that ever attempted to glorify it? These facts will be the basis of "Ten Gentlemen from West Point" which Twentieth is starting October 6 with Henry Fonda, Randy Scott and John Payne in the top spots. Well, it's time, for Americans have never been so interested in the training of our young men.

ANN SOTHERN

Interesting that John Payne will get his best break in this military yarn. Even Twentieth Century-Fox bosses were surprised to find young Payne so high on the exhibitors' poll. So far, John has been limited to straight romantic leads, but here he will get his chance to rise and shine.

Chatter in Hollywood: Ann Sothern, who has been in the hospital since last Saturday, came out just in time to start work in "Panama Hattie." She told me that she was so exhausted she had to drop out of circulation just to get a needed rest. There has been a lot of talk that Ann and Roger Pryor were about to tell it to the judge, but Annie says t'aint true. Seems they had a fire in their home awhile back and because they have only two bedrooms and Roger's daughter Priscilla is spending the summer with them, Roger moved down the street to a hotel. From time to time there has been talk that the Pryors were separating and this is the second time they have lived apart, but perhaps that's one way of avoiding a permanent separation.

"Hit The Deck," the old musical favorite, grossed $3,000,000 for RKO, even though its release came just after the crash beggared many moviegoers. It gave Jack Oakie his first big recognition and made the hit song, "Hallelujah," a household anthem. Now RKO is remaking it with Ray Bolger in the Oakie role and Bert Lahr and Buddy Ebsen as a comedy team. Good to hear "Hallelujah" will also be revived. Too often these musicals are made with the old songs forgotten and new tunes substituted.

On the heels of a long distance call from New York, saying that Teresa Wright and Niven Busch, Goldwyn writer, had romantic ideas and would probably wed when his divorce from Phyllis Cooper is final, came some very interesting news about the talented young actress. Seems Samuel Goldwyn, for the movies and Oscar Serlin, for the stage, are combining to give Miss Wright stardom. She was supposed to return to the "Life With Father" company after she finished in Hollywood, but her reviews on "The Little Foxes" were so glowing that Serlin, intead, has given her the stellar role in Ferenc Molnar's play, "King's Maid." Goldwyn is talking of giving her the Mrs. Lou Gehrig role, but isn't she too young?

Noted Author Has System All His Own

By Frederick C. Othman
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywod, Aug. 18.—Louis Bromfield, the Pulitzer Prize winning novelist who looks like an Ohio farmer—and is—reported today a new method of selling stories to the movies: he peddles 'em first, guarantees they'll be best sellers, and then writes 'em at his leisure.

He sold one novel to Columbia studios and then wrote it afterward. Then he sold another to Metro-Goldwin-Mayer. He didn't have a word written down, so he took the $50,000 (which is a good guess as to his fee) and retired to his Ohio farm to write the story. The title now is "Mrs. Parkington," but Bromfield will think up a new monicker when he finishes the job.

That may be some little time, because he's busy now rewriting Hemingway in preparation of the movie script for "For Whom the Bell Tolls." He finished the first draft of this chore on his 1000-acre farm near Mansfield, Ohio, and then he brought it to Hollywood for the Paramount moguls to see. When they have their say, he'll return to the farm to complete the scenario.

You don't catch Bromfield trying to do any writing in Hollywood. Too many pals out here. The lights are too bright and the cocktails too strong.

Nix on That Weekly Check

"And anyway, out here a writer gets paid by the week," he said. "So he either worries about how he's cheating the studio if he has to take an extra week—or else he stretches out the weeks as long as he can. Furthermore, a writer can't sit in an office from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. and turn out literature. He simply can't do it. I'll never try it again.

"I take a flat fee for a movie writing job. Then I go home and do it. I work an hour or so on the story and then I go out and work on the farm for another hour or so. It works out pretty well."

As for selling unwritten novels to the movies and writing them afterward, the tall gangling Bromfield said this was the best method of all. He's been writing novels for 22 years. That adds up to 14 books and every last one of them has been a best seller.

"So now when I write a book," he said, "the advance sale to the stores automatically makes it a best seller. So I go to the studio chief and tell him he'd better buy it before I write it, so he'll be ready to release his picture about the time the book comes out. This gives the picture some good advertising. And I don't hesitate to say that the picture advertises the book. We both win.

"If the studio waits to buy a novel after it has been published, it frequently is three or four years until the film finally is exhibited and by then all interest in the book has died down. That is bad. It cuts into everybody's profits."

Dismantling, But Not Denaturing

Paramount, as you'll demember, paid Hemingway $150,000 for his book about love during the war between the rightists and the leftists in Spain. Bromfield said he was taking out all the political implications in the book and not even mentioning the name of the country in which the action occurs.

"What we're trying to get is a classic love story, with a great civil war for a background," he said. "What we're interested in is the romance between Robert and Maria; we don't much care about the Socialists and the Falangists, except in so far as their fight affects the love story."

Second Corps Will Exhibit Modern War

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Aug. 18.—A dozen general officers of the Army were here tonight, or expected tomorrow, to see an all-out demonstration of mechanized war, from parachute troops to liquid fire.

In a natural amphitheater in the northwest corner of this 70,000-acre reservation, all methods of fighting tanks so far developed in the Second Army Corps will be shown in action. Engineers will lay mines and build road blocks against which tanks will hurl themselves.

Flame throwers of the Chemical Warfare Service and "Molotoff cocktails," blazing bottles of gasoline, will be used against the attacking tanks. Approaching tanks will be located by sound devices of the antiaircraft artillery, and antiaircraft guns will attempt to halt them.

Airplanes of the 104th and 119th Observation Squadrons will join with tanks, as the Stukas did in France, to lay a path of destruction over which the ponderous monsters may advance. And antiaircraft and antitank units will show how to stop the combination in the air and on the ground.

More than 7500 troops, comprising antitank organizations of the Second Army Corps and its three divisions, as well as tanks, engineers, aviation, mechanized cavalry and parachute troops from the Marine base at Quantico, Va., will take part under direction of Maj. Howard R. Johnson, antitank officer of the Second Corps. The antitank units have been maneuvering here for the last two weeks.

Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff, General Headquarters, and Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army, will head a list of high ranking spectators.

Present at a conference held at Mica Postoffice on the reservation, tonight by Maj. Gen. Carl Fredendal, new commander of the Second Army Corps, were the commanding generals of the three divisions in the corps. They are Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, Twenty-eighth Division; Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Twenty-ninth Division; Maj. Gen. Clifford R. Powell, Forty-fourth Division.

With the division chiefs were most of their brigade commanders, including Brig. Gen. George M. Alexander, Eighty-eighth Brigade (Virginia), and Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, Fifty-eighth Brigade (Maryland), both of the Twenty-ninth Division.

After tomorrow's demonstration all antitank forces will be combined Wednesday in a maneuver in which they will be charged with defense of a division front against mechanized, airplane, and parachute attack.

History vs. a W. S. C. Hat

AND IT FITS, TOO—When the camera recorded this historic scene, Harry Hopkins (left), lease-lend administrator, was caught showing a hat initialed W. S. C. to W. Averill Harriman, lease-lend coordinator. Seeing Hopkins bareheaded, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said: "Here, you can't go around like that. You will catch cold." A new gray hat was offered. Hopkins slapped it on his head and found it an exact fit

26 Projects for Facilities in Defense Areas And Service Recreational Centers Approved

By the United Press

The Federal Works Agency announced last night that President Roosevelt had approved 26 projects in 12 States, estimated to cost cost $5,765,531, to inaugurate its program of providing community facilities for defense areas and recreational centers for service men.

Four of the projects are for school facilities in Michigan and Mississippi; 18 for recreational centers in Illinois, North Carolina, Texas, New York and Virginia; three for community buildings in New Jersey; a hospital addition in Ohio, a hospital for Negroes in Virginia and waterworks improvements in Virginia.

FWA Administrator John M. Carmody said that applications are being considered for other projects which would cost about 395 million dollars. He said he expects "to maintain a flow of project recommendations, almost day by day," to the White House, for Presidential approval.

He said local sponsors will bear part of the total cost of 11 of the 26 projects. The Federal Government will bear the entire cost of the 15 recreation centers, he said, because they "have been found to be urgently needed by the armed forces . . . No sponsors' funds are available."

Norfolk Benefits

The projects were:

Norfolk, Va., waterworks improvement, $2,240,500.

Virginia Beach, Va., recreation center and athletic field, $124,000.

Newport News, Va., hospital for Negroes, $348,800.

Newport News, Va., recreation center, $398,000.

Hattiesburg, Miss., schools for Negroes, $400,000.

Rantoul, Ill., recreation center, $126,000.

Rockford, Ill., recreation center, $35,000.

Waukegan, Ill., recreation center, $111,800.

Gratiot Township, Mich., school building, $82,900.

Battle Creek, Mich., school addition, $198,250.

Livonia and Nankin Townships, Wayne County, Mich., school addition, $27,510.

Other Projects

Wrightstown, N. J., community building, $82,195.

Pointville, N. J., community building, $82,195.

Near Pointville, N. J., community building for Negro soldiers, $82,195.

Fayetteville, N. C., near Fort Bragg, two recreation centers, $155,000 and $75,000 respectively; recreation center for Negro soldiers, $75,000.

Spring Lake, N. C., near Fort Bragg, two recreation centers, $21,820.

Brownwood, Tex., recreation center, $65,000.

Leesville, La., sewerage system and sewage treatment plant, $424,596.

Watertown, N. Y., recreation center, $70,000.

Wilmington, N. C., two recreation centers—one for white soldiers and one for Negroes—$150,000.

Ravenna, Ohio, hospital addition and nurses, home, $250,000.

El Paso, Tex., recreation center, $38,650.

Corpus Christi, Tex., recreation center, $80,000.

British Naval Planes Bomb Bardia, Tripoli, Strafe Troops

By the Associated Press

Alexandria, Egypt, Aug. 18.—Using American airplanes, pilots of the British Mediterranean fleet blasted today at the Axis positions in Libya, dropping a steady stream of high explosive and incendiary bombs on supply bases, troop concentrations and ports in a series of coastal raids.

Navy planes also attacked every Axis convoy warship they could find to hinder Axis attempts to reinforce Libya. The Axis-held ports of Bardia and Tripoli were bombed heavily.

Fliers of a squadron just returned from Bardia reported they had dropped 25 tons of explosives on that port, causing heavy damage and fires. It was the tenth raid there in a week.

Some fleet air arm torpedo-carriers attacked an Italian submarine based at Bardia, but observers did not learn the result.

The airdrome at Gumbut was declared to have been hit.

The fleet air arm for the first time is starting the use of the speedy American-built Martlet Gruman fighter planes. An American Navy air force observer, Lieut. Clifford Cooper, of Norfolk, Va., said in an interview that the Martlets performed excellently.

More American planes are expected shortly.

Raid Fires Syracuse

Cairo, Aug. 18 (INS).—A violent fleet air arm attack on the Sicilian harbor of Syracuse, in which the whole port area was left "one intense" blaze, was announced officially tonight.

Rail sidings and the Mole at Syracuse were repeatedly bombed.

Stitching on Plane That Sank Bismarck Done by Ma Coskey

By Vesta Kelling
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 18.—When the German battleship Bismarck was located, trailed and marked for destruction by an American-built flying boat, Veronica A. Coskey, 165-pound New Jersey blonde, had the satisfaction of knowing that she had done the hand-stitching of the airplane's fabric parts.

Veronica started out as a sewing woman for aircraft in 1925 at Anthony Fokker's Teterboro, N. J. plant and today is known all over the country to famous fliers as "Ma" Coskey, whose exact workmanship has never let an aviator down.

Veronica sewed some very fine seams for Admiral Byrd's Josephine Ford, the plane which carrid him to the North Pole and his Americas, which spanne dthe Atlantic with Byrd, Bert Acosta, Brent Balchen and the late Floyd Bennett aboard.

She repaired Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis after it made the first solo Atlantic flight and her name is written on a tag inclosed in the rudder covering of this ship, which now hangs in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

She wept when Old Glory, another aircraft on which she had worked, perished trying to make the same journey in 1927, piloted by early air mail pilots Bertaud and Hill.

She has wielded a perspicacious thumb on Army Air Corps bombers, on Gar Wood's flying boats, on flying hospital ships and on the fabric and upholstery of early passenger transport ships, the "flying box cars" made by Fokker.

Aircraft upon which Veronica now is stitching at the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation on Newark Airport include flying boats for the United States Navy and Brewster fighters bound for England, Australia and the Netherlands East Indies.

She is in charge of the covering department, directing the work of 18 girls. Because the Brewster company has a subcontract for wing panels, floats and braces on the Catalina flying boats manufactured by Consolidated, she worked on the ship which harassed the doomed Bismarck.

Veronica opened up the covering department of the factory's Long Island branch in 1933, sewing on Navy shipboard fighters and initiating novices into the mysteries of trailing edges, ailerons and cutouts and teaching the technique of the rip-and-knot stitch. There still are many fabric parts on so-called all-metal airplanes.

Large and kindly, Veronica bounds with that independence of spirit and self-reliance we have come to regard as American.

Born in Jersey City, she is one of a family of nine children. Her parents migrated from Russian Poland and her father, now nearly 80, has been a huckster all his life.

She started work at 16 as a fowl and meat cutter in a New Jersey canning factory, quit to get married, but always did seasonal sewing work at home, like making lampshades and doll clothes for the Christmas trade.

She has been married 25 years, has no children, and lives with her husband, John, at Arlington, N. J. When he was obliged to go to Arizona for his health in 1925, she talked Fokker into letting a woman fill a responsible job in the aircraft business.

Her first act was to don a pair of overalls and conquer the art of doping fabric. Today she always wears slacks at work because she frequently has to climb around on airplanes.

Later Fokker asked Veronica to go to Holland to train aircraft workers in his factory there in American methods, but she refused to go that far from home. She did, however, supervise installation of the covering department at his plant at Wheeling, W. Va.

Veronica has a sort of sewing kit for aeronautical purposes and is often summoned to Newark airport hangars to whip out quick jobs of patching and doping, guaranteed not to rip off in a 200-mile an hour slipstream.

Arms Output Is Stepping Up Hearteningly, May Reports

Ninety per cent of the Nation's defense program is nearing a stage of mass production, Chairman Andrew May (Democrat), of Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, disclosed last night.

In an optimistic, comprehensive report to the Nation by radio on the progress of the rearmament effort, May asserted that tremendous gains in production of planes, tanks and guns soon will give the United States "the best trained and equipped Army in the world."

After "heart-breaking delays," he said, the entire program is now in high gear, and when organization of certain tank units is completed this Nation will have a "greater proportion of our Army mechanized than

After furnishing specific examples of production progress, based upon official data from the Army and Navy, the committee chairman declared:

"If we do have war—and God forbid it—we must win, and we will win!"

"We are not yet out of the woods. There are still bottlenecks, shortages of raw materials, of skilled labor and of plant capacity. However, the outlook is improving. The factories are humming and the new equipment is rolling off the assembly lines at accelerated speed.

"The quality of our munitions is definitely improved and in many respects is superior to weapons used by the warring nations."

Production of heavy artillery and antiaircraft guns, May said, is "necessarily slow," and some regiments still lack sufficient equipment for combat purposes, but rapid deliveries are expected soon.

Plane production, he reported, increased by 26 per cent from December to July; tank production increased 900 per cent; output of Army trucks and vehicles went up by 600 per cent; monthly machine gun production doubled, antiaircraft gun manufacture quadrupled and power output increased by 400 per cent.

May, who guided the one-vote margin passage of the Army service extension bill in the House, defended the action of Congress against the "breaking-faith" charges of what he called a "small yet noisy group of isolationists." He asserted:

"Was the Congress justified in declaring the Nation in peril? I answer Yes—a thousand times Yes.

"With Germany's conquest of the entire continent of Europe moving forward on scheduled time, with ever-increasing intensity; with once Free France joined with the Axis powers; with Japan rampant and bent on conquest in the Far East as an Axis partner; with England fighting heroically and doggedly for the last stand for human liberty in the Eastern hemisphere; with German fifth columnists seeking and securing striking inroads in the Western hemisphere—what else was there for Congress to do?

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

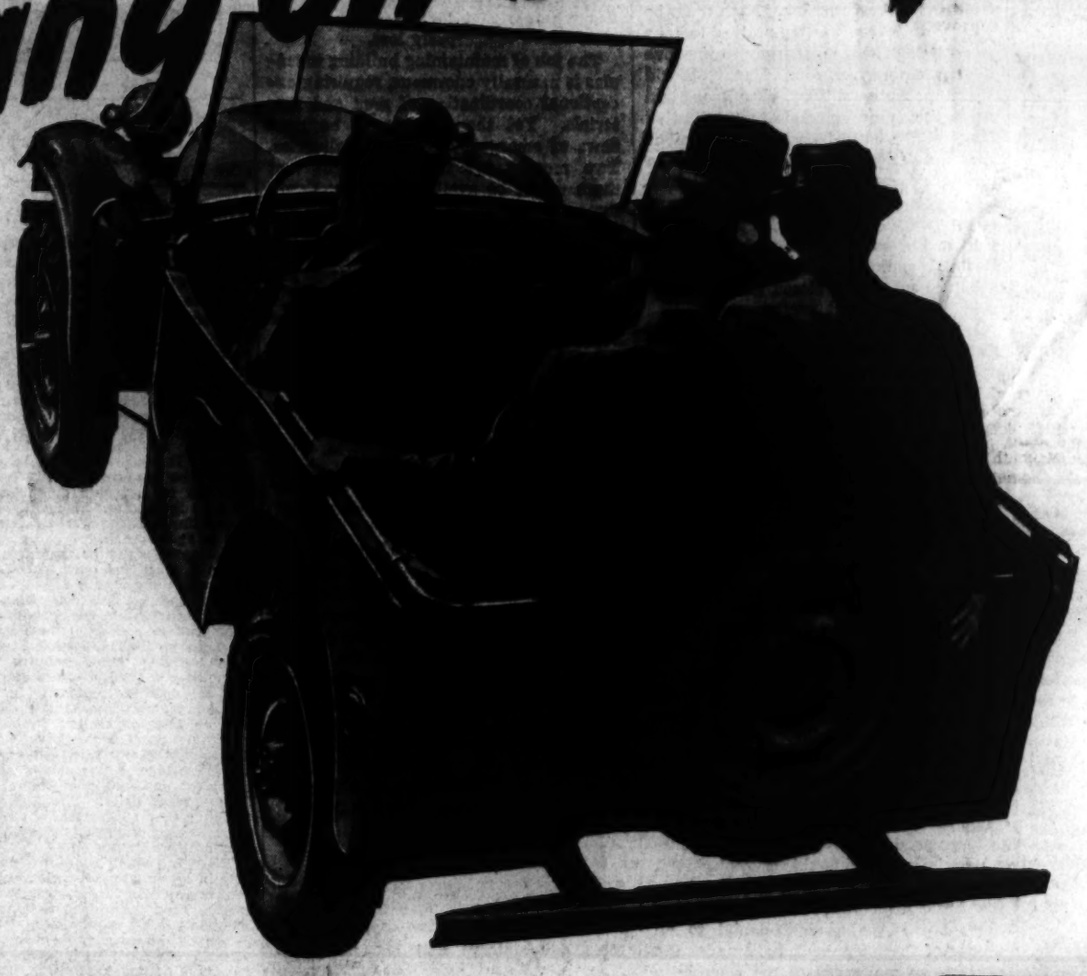
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hang on Buddy...



America is Off!

. . . off as a nation on the greatest defense program in the history of the world. American men and American machines everywhere, like parts of a giant jigsaw puzzle, are dropping into their proper places. Thousands of manufacturers are at work supplying the "hidden" things—things you never see, but which are assembled into big things, like the scouting car above.

Manufacturers of these "hidden" things—tapered roller bearings for example—must keep well ahead of schedule to prevent bottle necks; to prevent slowing down the entire program. To guarantee the nation's supply of these bearings, Timken last year invested millions of dollars in expansion and facilities to increase production. New machines, new buildings, and new steel making equipment. There will be further expansion if necessary to answer America's cry for speed and more speed in the building of armaments. Timken re-scheduled its work-shifts to keep machinery running 160, and sometimes 168, hours a week.

Other factories making the equipment of defense use machine tools and steel rolling mills that work faster and more dependably because heavy-duty, tapered roller bearings are on the job.

We will continue to supply these bearings, as we have supplied them to industry for 43 years.

Less Consumer Credit

The first tentative regulations announced by the Federal Reserve Board for control of installment credit are essentially moderate. In the case of automobiles, both new and old, a maximum payment period of 18 months will be permitted, with a down payment of one-third of the purchase price. A down payment of 20 per cent will be required of the purchasers of durable household goods, such as electric refrigerators and washing machines. Since the prior claim of defense industries upon raw materials is cutting heavily into the production of many articles customarily sold on time, it seems doubtful whether the board's regulations will have much effect upon the actual volume of consumer buying. But the stricter terms of sale will unquestionably discourage some potential consumers and thus help to relieve the pressure that is pushing prices upward.

The regulation of installment credits should not be limited to periods of emergency. It may also be used to advantage to check unsound developments in normal times. Efforts to stimulate sales often result in unduly liberal concessions to customers buying goods on the installment plan. Extremely long terms of sale and very small down payments increase the danger of loss to the seller, encourage individuals to spend more than they can afford, and create an undesirable kind of competition among retailers. That is why a good many retail executives are said to favor permanent regulation of installment selling practices by the Federal Reserve Board.

With employment rapidly expanding and wages increasing, workers are becoming much less dependent upon installment buying to satisfy essential needs. And this is certainly no time to encourage spending on goods that are not urgently needed. Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board sees in the tightening of control over installment credit a means of building up a backlog of orders for durable goods when Government defense spending begins to slacken. In any event lack of such control heretofore has tended, as he says, "to be an unstabilizing influence on the economy when it might have been made a stabilizing influence."

Promising Tax Plan

Senator Vandenberg's proposal to levy a 5-per-cent sales tax upon manufacturers, with exemptions for food, clothing, and medicine, is worthy of careful consideration. For it would not only produce greatly needed additional revenues; it would also permit elimination of some of the discriminatory new sales taxes that would be imposed by the House bill.

General sales taxes are usually opposed on the ground that they put an unfair burden upon consumers in the low-income classes. That objection loses some of its force if articles of necessity, such as food and clothing, are exempted from taxation. Moreover, we are now confronted by conditions which necessitate throwing overboard some of the principles that would ordinarily guide us in levying taxes. There is pressing need for more revenue, and there is no way of getting the amounts required except by heavier taxation of low-income groups. Lowered income-tax exemptions would supply some additional revenue, but Congress balks at that unpopular suggestion. Furthermore, sales taxes provide a convenient and, politically speaking, comparatively safe method of getting people to contribute to the support of the Government. Congress recognizes that fact by relying heavily upon special excise taxes to supplement returns from individual and corporate income taxes.

The bill passed recently by the House carries long lists of new manufacturers' excise taxes and retailers' excise taxes, besides increases in the rates of such special sales taxes now on the books. Every time new levies of this kind are imposed or existing ones increased, the industries concerned complain of discrimination—and with reason. That undoubtedly helps to explain why the National Association of Manufacturers is on record in favor of a general sales tax, either in the form of a tax on retail sales or a manufacturers' excise tax. Of course, the established excise taxes on tobacco and liquor are in a special category, as Senator Vandenberg points out, and for obvious reasons would not be included under a limited general sales tax proposal.

Thus far Administration opposition to any kind of general sales taxation has been a stumbling block in the way of action. But as the search for more revenue continues, the pressure to extend the sales tax until it covers industry in general instead of selected groups of industries will almost certainly become irresistible.

Defense Labor Policy

Reports that President Roosevelt gave a good deal of attention yesterday to the ship workers' strike at Kearny, N. J., lend encouragement to the hope that a more satisfactory defense labor policy is in the making. The immediate problem, of course, is to get the 16,000 men employed by the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. back on the job. Work on nearly half a billion dollars worth of warships and commercial vessels that are vital to our national defense has been at a standstill for 12 days. The Government cannot stand by and see this inexcusable waste of time and energy continue indefinitely. Presumably it will have to take over the plant unless the appeal which the President is said to have made to the company brings the strike to a speedy end.

The issues raised by this controversy are nevertheless important, and they ought to be met in a forthright manner. The objective to be sought is stabilized working conditions so as to insure a maximum of production in the defense industries. If that objective is to be attained, the cooperation of both labor and industry must be forthcoming. Each must be willing to forego the temptation to take advantage of this emergency to improve its bargaining position. During World War I the National War Labor Board laid down the sound principle that collective bargaining should be upheld but unions should not use the war emergency as a means of extending the closed shop. Open shops were left open and closed shops were kept closed. The board clearly saw that only in that way could it avoid endless disturbances aimed at achievement of the closed shop or some modification of that arrangement.

In the case of the Kearny strike the National Defense Mediation Board did not recommend a closed shop. Rather it asked the company and the union to accept a union maintenance arrangement under which members of the union would be discharged if they failed to pay their dues or resigned from the union during the existence of the contract. This expedient is objectionable, however, because it would permit the union to move a step closer to the closed shop by striking in the midst of a national emergency. It is said that since the union is asked to give up the right to strike during this critical period, it must have protection of its membership in return for that concession. But a comparable sacrifice would be made by the employer in his agreement not to fight a strike. It is not sound policy to grant an enormous concession to one side for an agreement to continue production without stoppages and at the same time to penalize the other side.

If we are to achieve stability in industrial relations during this critical period, all groups must be asked to abide by a few basic principles. And chief among these should be a rigid denial to all groups of special gains sought under the pressure of a menace to the country, a menace that threatens all that America—labor and employer alike—holds dear.

Warning To Iran

The capture by the Nazis of Nikolaev, important Russian naval base and shipbuilding center on the Black Sea, gives special point to the latest warning jointly issued by Great Britain and Russia to Iran to rid herself of the "excessively large" number of German "tourists" now in the latter country. Concern over developments in Iran began to be expressed in London as far back as March of this year. At that time the British position in the Middle East was threatened by establishment of a pro-Nazi government in Iraq and the steady infiltration of Axis agents into Syria and Lebanon. The elimination of the Rashid Ali government at Bagdad and the victory of the British and Free French in Syria temporarily removed the dangers of a German drive in the Suez Canal from the north. But now, with German armies pressing deep into the Ukraine and establishing a foothold on the Black Sea, that threat is revived and the equally dangerous possibility of a German drive toward the oil fields of the Caucasus must again be taken into account.

Should the Nazis succeed in establishing a real foothold in Iran, the Russian forces east of the Ukraine might ultimately be placed in a vise. Nor is Iran's importance to the British and the Russians purely strategic. The oil of Iran is of great value to the British. It may be the only effective alternative source of supply for the Red armies if the Caucasus is overrun by the Nazis. In the circumstances it is hardly surprising that the government at Teheran is being warned by Moscow and London to stop the infiltration of Germans into Iran. Neither Great Britain nor Russia is prepared to tolerate in Iran the kind of pro-Nazi coup which gave the British an endless amount of trouble in Iraq some months ago. The presence on Iran's northern and southern borders of Russian and British troops gives emphasis to the warning. And failure of Reza Shah Pahlevi to rid his country of German agents may lead to strong action by the Anglo-Russian bloc.

New Ships

Chairman Land of the Maritime Commission pointed out the other day that we are now prepared to produce ships twice as fast as we did 23 years ago. To those who recall the accomplishments of the shipbuilding industry during and after the first World War Chairman Land's claim may seem hard to believe. Yet the truth is the shipbuilding program today is virtually at the point reached when the Armistice was declared in 1918. For the bulk of our emergency shipping at that time was not ready for service until after the end of the war.

It is true that we built some 2,300 ships during 1917-1921 and that in comparison the present program of some 1,300 ships to be finished by the end of 1943 is numerically smaller. But the rate of production today, as Chairman Land rightly stresses, is the important thing. In 1939, when the shipbuilding industry showed signs of life for the first time since the post-war boom, 28 new merchant vessels were launched. Last year the output rose to 53. This year it will probably be close to 125. And during both 1942 and 1943 between 500 and 600 new ships are expected to be put into operation. This means that, barring unforeseen difficulties, mass production will come when it is likely to be most needed—early next year, when British authorities estimate that tonnage reserves will have fallen dangerously low.

The job of maintaining building schedules is naturally enormous, requiring exceptional coordination of men and materials. Yet there seems to be good news of emergency freighter deliveries. Two months ago it was thought that there would be available this year only three cargo ships of the 312 to be built and to be designated as EC-2s. But special yards have so speeded up construction that a minimum of 19 is regarded as likely before the end of the year. The OPM has just recommended that the Maritime Commission arrange for the construction of 25 Great Lakes iron ore vessels, which will be needed to help carry out the contemplated steel expansion program. Superimposing new shipbuilding programs upon existing ones naturally complicates the supply problem and should not be allowed to interfere with the immediate goal—two ships a day for the next two years.

This was the slogan suggested by Chairman Land at the launching in California of the first of 60 10,000-ton freighters for Britain. It is an incredibly ambitious slogan; yet it has been proved repeatedly in the past that the surest way to incite industry to phenomenal accomplishment is to invite it to achieve the impossible. And it should now be clear to all that the issue of the war turns, in large measure, on the contest at sea and on this country's ability to produce ships and more ships in time.

Chance To Help

During the next 12 months, Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia announces, 100,000 volunteers will be trained to serve as nurses' aids. The course will require 80 hours of instruction, and cover 7 weeks. The first half will be given in local Red Cross centers, to be followed by supervised practice in hospitals designated as training centers. While nursing aids cannot take the place of trained nurses, they can relieve the latter of many relatively simple and routine duties and thus lighten the strain upon a numerically inadequate personnel. We all hope that the services of thousands of volunteers will never be needed to help take care of wounded soldiers. But it is absolutely necessary to be prepared to meet such contingencies. The nurses' aids are, therefore, an integral part of the defense organization—a fact that will, no doubt, make a strong appeal to women who want not merely to serve their country but also to feel that they are performing vital and indispensable work.

DAGDA

As I come out of Clune's wid me eggs in me han'
I met on the corner a handsome old man.
He'd a harp in his fingers, a fiddle, or lyre,
His clothes were all yellow, his beard red as fire.
I spoke to him civil ('tis allus me way)
And he smiled as he gave me the time of the day
(He'd the plixuntest smile as ud make your heart warm)
And he started a-striking the harp on his arm.
Oh, gloryful angels, what jigs he cud play!
I went laughing and lepping, me wits gone astray
Wid the power of merriment strong in me legs,
And damned if I didn't drop all of me eggs!
When I'd laughed till I thought to burst out of me hide
And me heels were still tickling . . . the old fellow sighed.
Wid hard bitter tones rang his fiddle of gloom,
Wid heart-breaking sobbing and mournfulest doom.
I wept to remember the world and its moan
And me poor broken eggs split and ruined, ochone;
But he plucked at the strings of his fiddle again
And the tune began soothing and healing me pain.
I thought I was home in me mither's own bed,
A drowsy wee babe wid no hair on its head,
And her rocking and lulling and keeping me warm,
And me falling like feathers asleep on her arm.
Och, you can go scold wid your nagging hubbub!
I didn't stop in at O'Sullivan's pub.
'Twas the old chap in yellow I met in me walk . . .
Our tuppence and shilling's not worth all the talk.

No Room

There is not room for 20,000 to 40,000 employes to pass in the morning between the Lincoln Memorial and the river to get upon the Arlington Bridge, en route to the proposed Army Building. Likewise, in the afternoon, there is not room for this crowd of people to pass between Lincoln Memorial and the river en route back to the city. It will be impossible for so many people, afoot and in vehicles, to pass between the Memorial and the water. It cannot be said it will merely be crowded; it will be impossible for all this daily traffic to pass that point. You will have a building, but the workers cannot get to and from it.

Let any Senator or Congressman go in a vehicle at once to the entrance to the bridge at Lincoln Memorial and see the congestion of cars now trying to get around that Memorial to and from the bridge. To open up that bottleneck for the new building would require the demolition of the Lincoln Memorial. Not only will the congestion at the Lincoln Memorial make the whole scheme impractical, but the mass of traffic through the park roads there, on the city side, converging on the bridge, will make a maelstrom of uncontrollable traffic for blocks twice daily. The bill embodying this appropriation should be amended immediately by cutting out this clause.

There is enough run-down property in Washington on which to put four or five War Department buildings. They should not contain more than 8,000 people each, at the most; be approachable over the street system of Washington, and have five or six stories each, using elevators, instead of three stories, as proposed, without elevators, and necessitating the walking of personnel and business visitors to death.

About That Tea Party

Self-respecting God-fearing Northern New Englanders are deeply stirred by the trend of events which appear to be heading our country into dire disaster. These New Englanders are accustomed to toil, to meeting squarely their honorable obligations, and to a provident outlook upon life.

They are appalled by the leaping indebtedness of our country, by the more billions of lease-lend aid for England now being asked, by the mounting taxes and increasing inflation, by the lessening average of employment and of income-return, by the curtailment of automobile facilities for covering the extensive areas of northern New England.

During the aftermath of discussion following upon the recent Roosevelt-Churchill conference, comment is frequently voiced that in the (purposefully) dramatic grouping of Magna Charta and Declaration of Independence no inclusion is made of the Boston Tea Party, an event which had important bearing upon the Declaration of Independence and contains a poignant reminder for our present consideration.

Peace Prayer Sunday

Because peace is the great will of God, please will our good President and American leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, proclaim a near Sunday to be dedicated as an All American Peace Prayer Sunday; that day to be a day of atonement and prayers to plead with our God to send peace to the world.

Humanitarian Points

The Roosevelt-Churchill's peace plan pronunciamento is a refreshing contrast to the totalitarian's design for New World order. It recognizes man as a human being and not a mere cog in a gigantic war machine. This eight-point declaration is in truth a restatement of the principles of the American Constitution and a broadening of the application of the Bill of Rights.

It is too early to tell what the effects are of the publication of this historic document, but it is reasonable to assume that it must have rekindled a new hope and fresh courage in the hearts of conquered peoples. It also should inspire those who are engaged in the struggle against the aggressors because it defines democracies' war objective — the destruction of tyranny and the establishment of universal peace in its place.

By the generous terms contained in the Roosevelt-Churchill's eight-point peace aims, it appears that the present leaders of democracies have learned lessons from the failure of the League of Nations to function as it was intended, and the futility of the attempt of the victorious to bleed and starve to death the vanquished nations. They no doubt realize that there can be no permanent peace unless its structure is based on justice.

There seems to be no sound reason why human beings, whose intelligence has enabled them to overcome the elemental obstacles on land, sea, and air, can't work out a fair economic and political system which would eliminate the causes of frequent wars. The people of the whole world are sick unto death of the ravages of wars and are only waiting for deliverance. It may be that Providence—please God—has at long last raised enlightened leaders who will create the foundation of a just and enduring peace after this bloody conflict is over!

Congressional Fantasy

They told me back home to be sure and go see the Senate in action. So yesterday I went. You're supposed to have a card, but I slid in between a farmer from Kansas and his wife and got in. Man, what a shattering of old ideals was in store for me! There must be a mistake, I thought. Why, I found myself standing right under a mass of steel beams like it was a big cage. Fact is, I did think at first that somehow I had got into a lion tamers club.

I noticed the old Kansas farmer studying the steel beams with a critical gleam in his optic. And I heard him whisper to his spouse, "Maw," he said, "let's get outa here. They got this place propped and she's liable to cave in any minute."

Then I got to examining the structure myself. And, believe it or not, it's a fact; the whole thing wobbles. And just about that time somebody down there started to call a roll. And there were exactly 13 men in that pit. It made the chills run up my spine. Think of it! Why they were just inviting their own doom, daring Providence to go ahead and do its worst. I eased myself out of that place before I got mixed up with the personal destiny of that senatorial assembly.

Carry Out The Program

The momentous, history-making interview has taken place; Roosevelt and Churchill, the leaders of the democracies have spoken. They have counted their chickens before they are hatched. They have made a commendable declaration of what they will do when Hitlerism is destroyed. But who is going to destroy Hitler? It is still a condition of Uncle Sam crying in trepidation to John Bull, "John! John! Take your guns; don't let them touch me."

Daily it becomes more evident that America's first line of defense lies across the Atlantic. If the final destruction of Nazi tyranny is to be accomplished it must be done in Europe. The preliminary step, obviously, is the winning of the Battle of the Atlantic, that attainment of the United States and Great Britain of indisputable supremacy and control of the Atlantic Ocean. To this task the combined might of the American and British navies and of their aerial forces should be immediately devoted.

Actions speak louder than words, and the time has arrived for America to act. Dakar or any other dangerous African base should be seized. Every French possession on or near the American continent should be occupied by American forces. To refrain from taking these possessions because, as has been suggested, it would give France the opportunity to denounce America as an aggressor is absurd. France is already the aggressor and the Ambassador in Washington of the Vichy crowd should be given his conge.

Every lover of liberty is now eagerly awaiting some pronouncement from the President of the United States which will indicate how he proposes to carry out the program upon which he has agreed with Mr. Churchill.

Japan's Decision

Japanese-American relations have been almost to the breaking point. Japan would not provoke a complete split with the United States.

With a complete break there would be war. Japan's plan for Asia would be curtailed indefinitely. Japan is staging an international bluff for Japanese consumption. Japan can only gain her Asiatic objectives through cooperation with the United States.

Minister Kaname Wakasugi warned Japan that the United States was determined and prepared to meet all eventualities. Strong language for Japanese press. A Japanese newspaper that dare print such a statement is sitting on political T. N. T.

Statement from such high authority precludes a change in Japanese policy. Possibly Japan fears German successes in Russia. Japan now will maintain a conciliatory attitude toward the United States in order to gain Asiatic objectives.

Present activities and attitude indicate a possible change in the Japanese cabinet leadership, at least temporarily. Support for such change undoubtedly comes from Japanese industrialists, financiers, and the navy. Naval groups have been antagonistic toward the army activities and supporters for a considerable time. Japan is preparing for a campaign of liquidation of cabinet members. Comes the liquidation! Comes the changed policy!

The Post Impressionist

Good Neighbor Number One

Two men, acquaintances, meet on the street corner in a great city of the Americas, and while waiting for the traffic light to change, the following conversation takes place:

"Allo, Keed, 'ow hare yoo?"

"Hime ho-kay, Bay-bay, 'ow hare treeks wit' yoo?"

English? Well, hardly. American-English. Well, possibly. Specifically, it is American talking-picture English, as spoken, a few halting phrases at a time by thousands of Brazilians, and especially by hundreds of the gay inhabitants of that gorgeous capital, Rio de Janeiro.

Do you remember the slogan that had brief circulation with the advent of repeal, some seven years ago? "Make it smart to be legal." I think there must have been some such slogan circulating throughout Brazil these recent years. "Make it smart to be (North) American." Most of the Latin-Americans can take us, or leave us alone, and are inclined to do the latter. But the Brazilians, somewhat to the scandalized amazement of their Spanish-speaking cultural cousins, are definitely pro-Yanqui. Nor is this inclination anything very new; it's well-established. Just as the Portuguese of their parent country have always been pro-British, and are probably the sincerest friends Britain has in Continental Europe, so the Brazilians of the daughter country have been pro-(North) American for several generations, and are probably our sincerest friends south of the Rio Grande.

After having consulted Brazilian friends on the subject, I'm inclined to think that this amity dates from the reign of their last Emperor, the liberal-minded, democratic Dom Pedro, who visited these United States in the seventies of last century, and having been the first reigning monarch ever to do so, was received not only with all the protocol-imposed honors due his position, but was also lionized by American society. He and his entourage returned with good impressions of this country, and an American orientation of Brazilian culture was soon apparent. In a good many visits spread over the last 35 years, I've noticed many subtle indications. Brazilian newspapers resemble their Yankee contemporaries in format. Many men, at least in the large cities, dress in the American style, and are the only Latin-American men, as far as my observations go, who do, the others nearly all following European models, plus, of course, the local style peculiar to each country. In the big hotels and beach casinos American floor shows are all the rage. The Brazilian equivalent of the "five-and-dime" is going strong. To Washingtonians it is interesting to note that Rio de Janeiro is not situated in any state, but is a self-contained federal district—but the inhabitants thereof are definitely not voteless. And, finally, instead of the reserved suspicion all too common in other countries down there, the average Brazilian breaks into spontaneous smiles, when he realizes the visitor is a North American, and does his best, in Portuguese, French and talking-picture "English" to be friendly and hospitable. It's nice to be liked!

In one respect, the cultural economic histories of the United States of North America, and "Los Estados Unidos de Brazil" have been parallel: both countries harbored the cancer of Negro slavery long years after their colonial epochs, while the rest of the world looked on askance. But Brazil had no great civil war; instead, her kindly Emperor, Dom Pedro, proclaimed emancipation, at the cost of his throne some two years later. Probably the empire would have ceased, in any case; monarchies do not thrive in the Americas.

During the brief two decades between the end of our Civil War and the end of slavery in Brazil, quite a number of "unreconstructed" former Confederates, with their families, trekked down to Brazil, unwilling to accept the verdict of Appomattox, and determined to continue slave holding in the only remaining country where it was still possible. Most of their descendants are there yet, but have become pretty thoroughly Brazilian, through environment and intermarriage with Portuguese stock. It's a bit startling to meet swarthy "cavalheiro" answering to the name of Senhor Dom Jao Jackson (pronounced "Schackson"), who speaks no English, knows not the gentle mint julep, but claims descent from Old Virginny, or the Carolinas.

Rio de Janeiro does not overshadow the rest of Brazil, as Buenos Aires overshadows the rest of the Argentine; the country is too big. Perhaps you remember teacher telling you it is actually somewhat bigger than the continental U. S. A.? Well, teacher was right. The different parts of that great land have their regional differences, dialects and jealousies. The Amazonian North is the "black belt." Rio is on an imaginary "Mason-Dixon line," while the wealthy cattle-raising, coffee-cultivating, industrial states of the South correspond to New England, New York and Pennsylvania. There are important provincial cities, bigger than Cleveland and St. Louis, of which we rarely hear, up here.

But if Rio doesn't overshadow the country, nevertheless what a capital it is! The city has the finest natural setting in the world, and the "Flumenslans" (People of the River) have improved on nature. The ultra modern and the early colonial are in juxtaposition: skyscrapers, palaces, hotels, hovels, avenues, boulevards and a solid-marble waterfront five miles long! Now that our visiting "menace," with her piled-up turban, has made our public conscious of the pulse-quickening tempo of Brazilian music, why not go down South, next time "a carnaval" rolls around, and pay a call on Good Neighbor Number One.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

What To Do When Hitler's Caught

I HAVE RECEIVED a startling question from some member of the Spelvin family of America which I herewith pass on to the whole Spelvin tribe for discussion.

PEGLER

What, my correspondent asks, are we going to do with Adolf Hitler once we catch him, supposing we do?

Would we execute him?

Well, undoubtedly most of the world would regard his extinction as a blessing, but after all, the Americans would have to insist on some sort of trial and that would mean that we would have to create a court. The other nations which have suffered from Hitlerism would want a voice in this trial and the impossibility of obtaining an impartial judge without prejudice against the defendant reveals itself at once. The site of the trial raises an important question, too, because Poland, Norway and Holland, which have suffered most on the least provocation, all would bid for the right to give the party, and our British friends probably would like to hold it in some reminiscent ruin in London, possibly the House of Commons, where prejudice would pervade the proceedings in scandalous violation of the scrupulous British system of justice. Russia, of course, would be out of the question, for the Russian method is to condemn the accused before trial and then hold proceedings to validate the sentence which has been carried out beforehand.

Now assuming that Adolf Hitler is this country's prisoner, we have to go through the motions of a regular trial, and I leave the procedure in the realm of speculation to rush on to the question of the charge against the prisoner. What do we charge him with, anyway? Murder? But only the people he has murdered were Germans, and they were murdered according to law by a man who authorized himself to commit murder in the public interest. He would beat a murder rap in his own country, because the law there says these murders were not crimes. The hundreds of thousands, millions, all told, of other killings which will have marked the course of Hitler's war by the time of his capture which my correspondent envisions, will be casualties of war, and I believe it has been the custom in civilized times to waive personal responsibility for the slaughter of war when the head of the offending state is caught. There was bold talk of hanging the Kaiser in the hot days of the other German frolic, but he was allowed to hole up in a quiet place in Holland and live out his allotted time in luxury. Some Americans who tried to snatch him were put through an outward form of mild discipline for this breach of international decorum and the gist of the matter seemed to be that any personal punishment of the old man might be a dangerous precedent to be invoked later against the heads of other nations.

If we execute him, though, having arrived at that decision by some process which we have persuaded ourselves to regard as fair and impartial, how do we do it? Surely, in this case, popular opinion, not only here but in most of Europe, will hold that death should be neither quick nor painless, but, on the other hand, if we permit our Nation formally to take part in an execution of torture, then there goes our pretense of a fine, intellectual civilization. Justice is supposed not to act in anger, as the Germans themselves have found in their own case, such conduct by a government tends to degrade its people. The decent Germans were shamed and the rest were bestialized by the pogrom which followed the assassination in Paris of a third-rate diplomat in their service, and we know too much about the way excitable low-grade people are affected by impromptu butcheries and burnings with the tacit consent or connivance of the sheriff.

SO the method is something else that is referred to the tribe of Spelvins for consideration while the discussion passes on to the possibility that having caught Hitler we then decide to put him in a cage, and keep him until he died a natural death, because we figure that no one man could atone even by death by whatever means, for Hitler's mountainous score of horrors. Where would we put him? Key West in summer would be pretty bad, and Washington, D. C., is hardly preferable, and for winter I could recommend Chicago, but who guards him and why take a chance on a jail break, and the same old thing over again with Hitler squalling that the German people must arise and avenge another humiliation, this time even more so.

I pass it up, but if anyone wants to know what to do with Mussolini, I don't have to hesitate. Mussolini isn't dangerous. He is just a bombastic bum, and nothing could hurt him worse or better atone for his crimes than to bring him over here and let some little squirt slap his face in public at high noon every day for the rest of his life. That would slay the bum.

Cuba Nips Pro-Axis Activity Before It Can Gain Foothold

By the Associated Press

Havana, Aug. 18.—Col. Manuel Benitez, 30-year-old Havana police chief, says he has nipped pro-Axis espionage and propaganda activity in Cuba before it had a chance to get a real foothold.

A counter-espionage bureau created by the young police chief has reported the arrest of dozens of persons on charges of espionage, and the seizure of many bales of pro-Axis propaganda.

The bureau recently took 150,000 bronze and silver medals addressed to the Spanish Consulate here. Genaro Riestra, a Spanish consul and leader of the Spanish Falange, Fascist Party, left Cuba after he had come under fire in congress. The medals had been sent here to be sold to raise funds for the Falange activities in Cuba.

"We keep close tab on Nazi-Fascist activities", said Col. Benitez. "How well the job is done is demonstrated by the lack of active propaganda now. But the Germans and Italians are not our chief problem—it is the Spanish Falange. (Cuba has a large Spanish colony.) But we watch the Falange closely."

'Under Absolute Control'

"Subversive activities," he said, "are under absolute control in Cuba."

In the counter-espionage bureau, he said, "there are 75 men, specialists in languages and in technical subjects. Some are known publicly. We call them the shock troops. They direct the bureau, make arrests, question suspects and appear in court. But most of the 75 are secret agents, drawn from the navy, army and police.

"We know who are the people who think contrary to our democratic ideals. We know what they do from day to day.

"When the bureau was set up, we prepared to combat large-scale espionage activity. But it turned out to be on a smaller scale than we anticipated, and we have been that much better equipped to keep things under a constant watch."

Cases are brought before a special court from which there is no appeal.

Benitez is getting considerable support in congress, where bills have been drawn by various parties to put more teeth in anti-espionage legislation.

Struck Hard at Bund

The bureau struck vigorously at the Cuban organization of the German-American Bund and detained eight members.

Kurt Hoffman, official of a German steamship line and attache of the German Legation, was ordered out of the country by the Cuban government, and escorted by Cuban police to Miami, whence he was taken to New York to leave with other Axis representatives on the transport West Point.

An Italian consulate general whose name appeared on the United States' blacklist lost his diplomatic privileges in Cuba, and the consulate was closed.

All this means, says Benitez, that Cuba is playing ball with the United States.

"Cuba," he says, "is democratic. It is one of the firmest friends the United States has. Where the United States goes, there goes Cuba also. That is how we feel about things."

Birth Rates On The Rise

Statisticians Refuted

By Stephen J. McDonough

Associated Press Staff Writer

The United States and England are entering a period of population expansion.

Until now many statisticians have maintained that the two countries had passed the period of "200 years in blossom" and that their civilizations were beginning to decline.

The newest figures, however, indicate that these experts have been wailing at the wrong wall. England, despite all the bombings, is holding her own in the number of babies born; there are as many or more marriages today than there were in peacetime, and the birth rate in the United States is climbing.

Guy Irving Burch, director of the Population Reference Bureau and one of the country's leading analysts of population trends declared that at the present rate the population of the United States will rise from the present 132 million to about 152 million in 1980, providing the country can support and properly educate the 20 million additional children.

Nation Will Be Better Off

In 1980, he predicts, "from both productive and manpower points of view, the Nation will be in a better condition than it is today," with machinery taking a greater and greater burden off the average job, allowing higher wages to be paid and giving the average individual more time and money for recreation and education. In addition, he predicts that by 1980 at least five million more people will be in the "productive" age group, between 20 and 64.

Meanwhile, Miss Irene Barnes Taeuber, coeditor of the population index, declared that figures reported recently from England, Scotland and Wales show that the birth rate in England in 1940 was only three-tenths of 1 per cent lower than in 1939, but was much higher than in 1933. The number of marriages in 1940 was the highest on record for the British Isles. She added that German bombs have apparently not caused any defeatism or as many casualties as might be expected.

The dramatic destructiveness of the all-out air war over Great Britain gives an exaggerated impression of the general hazards to life in that country, she said. "Horrible as the events have been, they have affected the total death rate surprisingly little—an increase of only a little more than 2 per cent in the civilian population. In the Netherlands, Norway and other German-occupied countries the death rate among civilians has increased by only about 1 per cent. Statistics from these countries were admitted, however, to be scanty.

Scoffs at "Race Suicide"

Burch declared in his prediction of a 20 million increase in the population of the United States that "this should dispel the all too common illusion that a lower birth rate and the slowing down of population increase will result in 'race suicide' and cause the American people to become a race of senile and dependent oldsters, unable to support themselves in time of peace or to protect themselves in time of war."

The principal factor in the population increase is not the number, he added, but the quality, of the children to come. At the present time 45 million persons "are existing at a level of living below the requirements for health and efficiency," and two-thirds of the children are born and grow up in this least fortunate bracket of the population.

"It does not take much imagination or foresight to see that the uneven distribution of children among economic classes is endangering our national economy, our national defense and our democratic institutions," Burch declared.

Many authorities agree, he declared, that the solution of the problem is a "democratization" of birth control information among all economic classes, particularly among families in the lower income brackets, in order to lighten their responsibilities and enable them to support and educate fewer children more adequately."

Marshall Hall Jousting Tourney Set Tomorrow

Trade With Japan

By I. F. Stone

Exports Deplete Defense Supplies

WE ARE a generous people. Iron Age says steel production may fall 10 per cent below capacity in the next few months because of the shortage in scrap iron. Steel is made half of scrap, half of pig iron. One reason we are short of scrap is that we have been shipping so much of it abroad. In the last eight years we exported 25 million tons of this basic war material, most of it to Japan. If war comes in the Pacific, Japan may send some of this scrap back to us, in the form of shells.

No people is quicker to condemn an aggressor, or slower to conceal an order. We not only sold one million tons of scrap last year to Japan, we also sold 350,000 tons to Italy. It has since been learned that Italy is ruled by a Fascist dictator named Mussolini who turns out to be an ally of Hitler, and State Department officials admit privately that selling scrap iron to Italy was a mistake.

MR. ROOSEVELT explained recently that had we cut off oil sale to Japan, the Japanese "probably would have gone down to the Dutch East Indies a year ago, and you would have war." Lin Yutang, who people dislike dying for the Dutch East Indies, suggests that, if this was the reason, we will go on supplying "oil for the bombers of Japan."

Lin Yutang thinks "every element that makes for the policy of continuing to pay blackmail to Japan by furnishing her with oil and ammunition to attack China in order to bribe her off from a march down Singapore and the Netherlands Indies is still there." The closer Japan comes to the Indies, the bigger the price she can extort.

The case of scrap iron makes one wonder whether a concern for the Dutch East Indies entirely explains our export of war materials to Japan. It may or may not account for our failure to place an embargo on scrap. One disrespectful source suggests that if we gave the Japanese oil to keep them from seizing the Indies, we may have supplied them with scrap iron to keep them from taking Pittsburgh.

IT is unwise to look too closely into rationalizations of our policy of encouraging the Chinese people to force their Japanese aggressors to buy more and more war materials from America.

The Japanese war machine has depended on us for four essentials—oil, scrap iron, copper and machine tools. Only oil is available in the Dutch East Indies.

Since last September we have had an embargo on scrap iron, but for months we allowed Japan to buy huge quantities of steel to make up for the loss of scrap supplies and we were still sending Japan large amounts of copper and machine tools when the Department of Commerce decided to stop publishing the embarrassing figures.

It may be that we did not wish to antagonize the Japanese, but we have had a fair excuse for shutting off the sale of steel, copper and machine tools to Japan. We need them at home.

An example is provided by steel plates. Steel plates are used in shipbuilding. Japan bought 11,317,000 pounds of steel plates from the United States last year. So soft-spoken a publication as the New York Times blamed these exports in part for the shortage of steel plates which has delayed our own naval program. I realize that Japanese standards of politeness are high, but I doubt whether they expect us to carry etiquette this far.

Steeel exports to Japan this year have been reduced to a trickle, but the last quarterly report published by the Department of Commerce on our trade with the Far East showed that American machine tools and copper were still being furnished the Japanese in large quantities.

Machine tool exports were down from $8,490,000 in the first quarter of 1940 to $1,342,000 in the first quarter of 1941, but copper exports had risen slightly. We sent Japan and Manmchukuo 41,957,000 pounds of copper in the first quarter of last year, 42,500,000 pounds in the first quarter of this year.

The OPM has just imposed full priority control on copper, after Japan helped itself to our dwindling supply.

We ought to impose an embargo on these and other war materials. Instead we have an embargo on the facts. On May 29, five days after the release of the trade report here cited, the Department of Commerce announced that it would "cease publishing detailed statistics concerning the country of destination of our exports." This means that press and public will no longer know what war materials we are shipping to Japan and there will be no way of checking on efficacy of the new licensing controls on oil announced by the President.

It has too often been assumed that licensing is the equivalent of an embargo, a mere resort to diplomatic euphemism. The figures on machine tools show that this is a risky assumption.

Machine tools have been subject to license control since July of last year, but the curve of machine tool exports to Japan seems to have been rising when the Department of Commerce dropped the curtain on the figures. Of $1,342,000 in machine tool exports to Japan in the first quarter of this year, $1,016,000 was licensed in March as against but $58,000 worth in February.

The word "embargo" fits more easily into a headline than "new licensing regulations" but that doesn't make them synonymous.

IT WOULD have been a noble gesture to have said months ago, "We will not profit by the suffering of our friends, the Chinese people. We will sell no war materials to Japan." There is brotherhood in oppression, and the news would have thrilled the grapevine that runs through the barred corridors of the New Order in Europe as well as Asia. There are the seismic whispers despotism fears.

It is too late now. The opportunity is gone. It may soon be too late to stop another kind of whisper: "Who were these men who permitted the sale to our enemies abroad of the scrap iron, the copper, and the tools we need to defend ourselves at home?"

Today's News Sidelight

German Capture of Krivoi Rog Blow at Russia's 'Pittsburgh'

By their onslaught into the productive mine-and-mill area of Krivoi Rog, German mechanized forces have struck at the "Pittsburgh" of the Ukraine's all-important iron and steel industry, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Around Krivoi Rog, north of the Crimean Peninsula and about 150 miles northeast of Odessa, lie some of the world's largest and richest deposits of iron ore," the bulletin continues. "The metal content is unusually high, ranging up to 70 per cent. Production and smelting have developed to the point where more than half of Russia's iron and steel comes from the Ukraine, ordinarily regarded as an agricultural region.

"The basis of the Ukraine's industrial development stems from the fact that rich coal fields extend throughout the Donets Basin east of the Dnieper River. The Krivoi Rog mines are less than 200 miles to the west, so fuel can be shipped to smelters around the mines or the iron ore brought to the coal area. Moreover, electricity from the new Dniepropetrovsk hydroelectric plant supplies power for the increasing number of factories in the southern Ukraine.

"Steel production has been aided by the great deposits of manganese—vital in hardening the metal—in the vicinity of Nikopol, a short distance southeast of Krivoi Rog. These sources, together with deposits in the snow-capped Caucasus Mountains between the Black and the Caspian Seas, have provided a third of the world supply of manganese.

"Krivoi Rog itself is a typical industrial city. It lies in a deep valley along a tributary to the Dnieper. The mines, many of which are mechanized, are dug far into the surrounding hills. Besides its ore-smelting plants and cast iron foundries, Krivoi Rog has become the site of factories turning out such iron and steel products as farm machinery.

"From a small mining town, Krivoi Rog has grown in recent years to a community of 70,000. As in other Ukrainian factory centers, many north Russians have moved there to work. This has created a lingual mixture among the people, for the Ukrainians speak a different dialect."

Nikolaev, Held by Germans Was Vital Russian Station

German occupation of Nikolaev, admitted by Moscow, strikes a vital spot in Russia's Ukrainian defense set-up, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. It is an important naval base and commercial center situated at the junction of the Bug and Ingul Rivers. It also is the hub of four major railroad lines.

"The capture gives the Nazis control over shipbuilding yards and machine shops regarded as among the largest and best equipped in Russia," adds the bulletin. "Nikolaev yards have made armored ships and torpedo boats for nearly 75 years. Port and harbor facilities have been modernized and heavily fortified. Ice-breakers keep the harbor open during the winter.

"The city's central position in the Ukrainian grain belt has made it an increasingly important shipping center for wheat and sugar, besides iron and manganese ores from the Krivoi Rog region. It claims the largest elevator in Europe for storing grain. Nikolaev's factories produce goods ranging from tallow and tobacco to farm machinery and macaroni.

"Founded early in the eighteenth century by Potemkin, favorite of Catherine the Great, the city has grown until its population approaches 150,000. It lies behind the Stalin Line, roughly 70 miles northeast of Odessa."

U. S. Parries Propaganda

Countering The Axis

By Frank I. Weller

Associated Press Staff Writer

Uncle Sam believes he has overcome any menace of Axis shortwave radio broadcasting.

The process consists of listening in on German, Japanese and Italian stations contacting the Western Hemisphere and getting out counterpropaganda before their own ripens into climax.

This business is carried on by the foreign broadcast monitoring service, a closely guarded group of experts from the Federal Communications Commission who record, translate and analyze upwards of a million words a day. Some European stations send more words in one week than there are in the Bible or in all the works of Shakespeare.

They use, for the most part, the listeners say, the old devices of exaggeration, suppression, distortion, appeals to vanity, political and personal animosities, pride and self-interest, and appeals to previously existing jealousies and hatreds.

IN THE LATTER theater, the Axis never misses a chance to recall the American Revolution and the War of 1812; to ridicule the Englishman in the sense that he popularly has appeared on the American stage and in the movies; to appeal to the Irish-American's distrust of England; praise the American isolationist; and blame President Roosevelt for all the wars abroad.

It recalls in Latin-American broadcasts the era of "Yankee imperialism" and asserts that the Roosevelt good neighbor policy is a subtle move to dominate completely the entire Western Hemisphere.

All this is interlarded with praise for the "new order" in Europe and Asia, with boasts of Axis conquests over "decadent" peoples, assertions that no country would be harmed if it were not so utterly stupid as to resist Axis arms, warnings that the United States can only harm itself in aiding Britain, and continual broadsides against alleged British-American "encirclement" of Europe and Asia.

IT FITS such a well-worn pattern that experts of the monitoring service declare they can detect far in advance almost any move Germany, Italy or Japan contemplates. There is always, first, a fantastic buildup and then the sort of hair-raising broadcast used so successfully to weaken resistance among intended victims on the European mainland.

At noon every day the monitoring service sends to the White House and to the Departments of State, War and Navy a complete foreign propaganda picture for the guidance of Administration spokesmen in their official announcements, speeches and press conferences.

No, Harvard Is Not in the Hotel Business

By Gladwin Hill

Associated Press Staff Writer

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 18.— Everybody got quite a laugh the other day when Harvard University was bequeathed the Ritz-Carlton Hotel property in New York in the will of Robert Goelet—everybody but Harvard. It was old stuff here.

Harvard has assets of more than 155 million dollars, some six million of which is in real estate, so it would be strange if there weren't a hotel in the pile somewhere.

Harvard's financial interests have included at one time or another almost everything from the Keith Memorial Theater in Boston to gold mines in Guatemala, and a lot of other things in between.

Its last financial statement lists, for instance, a $2063.33 mortgage on enterprise entitled Cele's Dresses, Inc., which the university, with an evident note of skepticism, has on the books at a value of $1.

Most of Harvard's assets are invested in stocks and bonds, and the portfolio is somewhat of a barometer among professional investors. There usually is quite a flurry of interest when the word gets around that Harvard has bought a big block of United Buttonhole, or sold 10,000 shares of Boffle Ball-bearing.

Harvard may own a minute piece of your car, because its latest list of holdings includes a million-dollar interest in the major auto finance companies—along with a piece of the Chicago stockyards, and bond interests in the waterworks at Greenville, S. C., and the Iowa Electric Light & Power Co., among hundreds of other investments.

The university gets thousands of bequests, like the late Mr. Goelet's, some of which cause a lot of complications. Sometimes people leave cherished bits of property at high evaluations which turn out not to be worth much, and Harvard has to put them down for what they are really worth, such as $3.25, which is embarrassing if there are surviving relatives.

Henry Clay Frick, the steel magnate, left the university a third interest in the "coal, oil and mineral rights" in Whitley County, Ky., now listed at $1.

Often Harvard is one beneficiary in a complicated division of property under a will, resulting in holdings like a "73-150,000th" interest in an Alaska building trust.

Some people surround their gifts with precise stipulations which, after many years, become anomalous. Under one bequest, Harvard is still contributing to the support of a missionary to some of Massachusetts few remaining Indians, of the Mashpee Tribe.

The Ritz-Carlton Hotel matter is pretty prosaic. Harvard just got the land and the building, the hotel itself being operated by a separate corporation, so that the university fathers don't have to worry about room service and deadbeats.

Nevertheless, the thing has become a sore point with Harvard's treasurer, William H. Claflin, jr., a dark, stolid Bostonian.

"My friends are continually coming up to me and saying 'ha-ha, I see you're in the hotel business . . .' Actually, we aren't at all—dammit."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Roosevelt-Churchill Conference

OUT of the Roosevelt-Churchill conference there have come thus far three actions. They are closely interrelated. The first was the joint declaration of war aims which forecloses, and would render legally and and morally null and void, any secret commitments like those which defeated Wilson at Paris in 1919. On the basis of this joint declaration, and within its framework, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill were in a position to take their second public action: to ask Stalin to open negotiations in Moscow looking toward Anglo-American assistance in a common strategical plan. This move would have been impossible but for the joint declaration which precludes any possible agreement with Soviet Russia at the expense of Finland, Poland or Turkey. The offer to assist Russia required the third public action of the Roosevelt-Churchill conference: the mission to Washington of Lord Beaverbrook, the minister of supply, for the purpose both of agreeing on immediate priorities as between Britain, the United States and Russia, and of laying plans for an enlarged production in the future.

LIPPMANN

It is thus made plain that while the President and the prime minister must have discussed many other things, they look upon Russia's role in the war as the great immediate problem.

In the nine weeks which have passed since Hitler attacked Soviet Russia, opinion in the Western World has fluctuated wildly between extremes of hope and hopelessness—between the belief expressed at the outset by many isolationists that Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia would destroy one another and, on the other hand, the view of almost all military experts that the Russian armies were no match whatever for the German and that at the first impact the regime would crumble from within. The event has shown that up to this point at least the resisting power of the Russian nation is more like that of China than like that of France—that defeats and withdrawals may not produce an internal collapse and that, therefore, whatever happens in European Russia this summer, there is an excellent chance that there will remain at least in Siberia a Russian regime which separates Germany from Japan.

ENOUGH has happened already to justify the conclusion, first, that Stalin and Hitler are now mortal enemies and can never again come to terms as in 1939; second, that Stalin's regime is much more solidly established in the territory it governs than most Western observers supposed; and, third, that though Stalin is probably able to continue resistance even if he is defeated in European Russia, he has now become dependent upon British-American help in the war. Binding agreements have, therefore, become practicable on the basis of his desire to survive and of our need to have him survive. For he must stand fast, at least in Siberia and the Urals, if possible in the Caucasus, or he disappears entirely. The English-speaking peoples need not only a Russian front somewhere against Germany, but also the great Russian wedge between Germany and Japan, and they need the Russians in Siberia to hold Japan in check. It is evident, therefore, that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill dealt with the facts of life, having much to offer Stalin and much to gain from him, and that they did not meet merely to make dramatic gestures.

AGREEMENTS are most effective when a nation is compelled to do in its own interest that which is also in the interest of the other. Thus Britain could never make a binding agreement with Stalin until Hitler attacked Stalin and forced him to fight for his existence. But now that Stalin has no choice but to fight Hitler, and precisely because it is a desperate fight, practical agreements are possible because they are so obviously necessary.

Though it would be useless to speculate as to what they are, there are sure to be military agreements between Britain and Russia affecting the two areas in the West, where they can actually collaborate. One is in the North in the Scandinavian Peninsula and the other is in the South along the Middle Eastern Front. In these two theaters of the war our participation is bound to be indirect, largely through the lease-lend program. But there is a third theater—Far Eastern Siberia—which is of critical importance, where our vital interests are directly involved, where we are certain to play a leading role.

For the Siberian position presents us with a great danger and also immense opportunity. If Siberia is conquered by Japan, or if it falls under Axis control, our position in the Pacific, already so bad that it has pinned down most of our Navy, will become still worse. The loss of Siberia would at once threaten Alaska, would profoundly imperil China, would release Japan for aggression in many regions of the Pacific. With our one-ocean Navy more than ever entangled by Japan, we should have almost no defenses in the Atlantic. The Russian military power in Siberia, which Japan must always think about, is for us the equivalent of a very large part of our uncompleted two-ocean Navy. If the Russian power in Siberia is overcome, it would be for us the equivalent of a very serious naval disaster.

ON THE OTHER HAND, just as Siberia is an immense danger, so also is it an immense opportunity. By acting with the Russians in Siberia, we can turn the tables on Japan and pin down her naval power as she has tried to pin down ours. The Russians are very close to Japan, and if they become part of the united front in the Pacific, which now includes China, Britain, the Netherlands, and ourselves, we may well hope to make Japan as harmless as Italy has become.

Providing every one is prepared to fight if challenged, the immense power of the anti-Japanese combination may make it unnecessary to fight. We are in a position, if we play the cards we hold, to put an end during the coming months to the tiresome and very costly Japanese blackmail.

THE OPPORTUNITY must not be missed. Never before has there existed, and perhaps never again will there exist, such a strategic combination as now confronts Japan in the Pacific. She is isolated from Germany, her only possible ally, and, as the Japanese press loudly and correctly proclaims, she is encircled. This, therefore, is the time to consolidate our advantages and then to use them decisively in order to free ourselves of the Japanese threat of a two-ocean war before Germany can get ready to strike in the Atlantic.

This is our opportunity—the first since this world struggle began—to deal with our opponents as they have dealt with their victims—singly and when they are isolated—before they can unite their forces,—and in a place where we have powerful allies, superior forces, and the strategic advantages.

The 'Old-Time People' Oppose Re-Retrocession; 'It Would Be Just Awful,' Says One Arlingtonian

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

GEORGE MARCEY, 76, living on the same Arlington County land 76 years, shook his head slowly, rammed his pitchfork into a pile of sweet hay and said "it would be just awful."

Cupping his hands to mouth, he yelled across the bottom, "Hey Walter, come here Walter."

Walter Marcey, his younger brother, a farmer too, jumped a ditch, and came up through the field. He also fell upon the proposal to turn the county over to the District of Columbia, and with a burst of emotion that lasted 35 minutes.

Farmers—the "old-time people" as they distinguish themselves from the thousands of new dwellers who have arrived in Arlington with the larger growth of Washington—were found standing toe to toe with the Marcey brothers.

ASTRIDE his hay mower with the powerful hindquarters of two great chestnut stallions as his immediate landscape, O. W. Shreve, 60, a farmer, said: "I've been around a long time, I haven't got much longer to stay so let's keep her the way she is." He spat across the low wheel.

"The darn county is bad enough now and it will certainly get worse if it goes under the District," he said.

The county, all of whose towns, woodlands, cow pastures, gullies, creeks, school houses with Southern names, churches, homes and problems would be sucked into the District if the reretrocession plan goes through, was, however, home sweet home, sovereign, inviolate and not to be monkeyed with, to Walter Marcey.

Long ago he had been warned that the District's eyes were fixed across the river and this thing now didn't look good.

"My old daddy told me they would assess land by the foot" if the District got out here. Now, he said, a poor man willing to work could live in Arlington. "Just say that I'm teeth and toenails against it. Say I'm 465,000 times against. The Government's gotten itself into big figures so put me down that many times against it."

WHILE he spoke in his hayfield, Gov. James H. Price in the white-columned Capitol at Richmond was saying, according to the Associated Press, "we have been getting along very well with that territory."

Officials of the 24 square miles of county (the number is excluding Federal Government-held areas) yesterday cited figures describing the chunk of wealth, operations and costs the District would assume.

On basis of 40 per cent valuation, the county is worth $46,000,000. The budget, 1941-42, stands at $2,589,000. Its school department, the county's largest expense item, cost $741,439 last year.

In the county are 26 schools, employing 260 teachers, all of whom would become subject to District school requirements, or else be let go.

THE county employs 199 persons regularly. With per diem employes, the number is 499. They were seen as out—or standing in line with job hunters—in event of reretrocession.

The police department has 42 employes. If the Metropolitan Police system were extended among the county's hills and gullies, the present force possibly would keep its jobs if it could, it was pointed out yesterday by interested officials.

Into the area would be taken an estimated 80 per cent of the city of Alexandria. Its total incorporated population is 33,800. Arlington county's entire population of 56,500 would be added. The District's present population is 663,153.

If this all happens a sizable city, of much variety, would sprawl northward and southward of the Potomac. A man could say "I think I'll go uptown to a night club or downtown to hoe my corn or hunt a few rabbits."

He could get lost in virgin woods of Washington, it was pointed out.

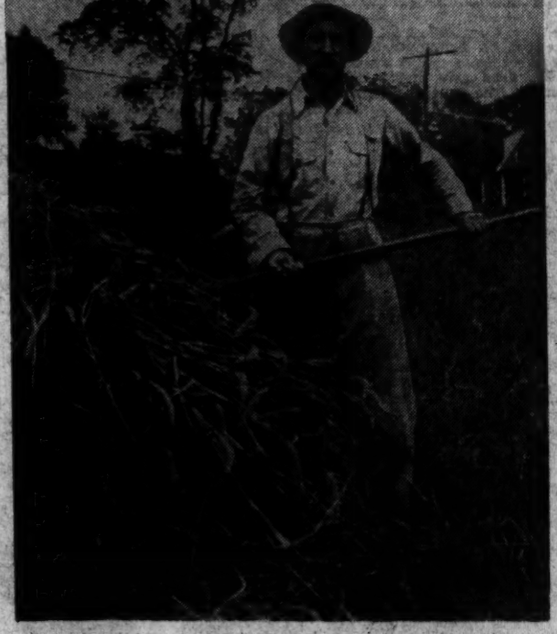
THE county, actually, is one of the smallest in the Nation of counties. It was the first, in 1932, to adopt the county manager form of government and its officials say it is called "progressive." Its growth has been phenomenal—26,000 inhabitants in 1930; 56,500 in 1941.

Thus, it was pointed out, half of the county is a comparative "new-comer," with many voting in States other than Virginia.

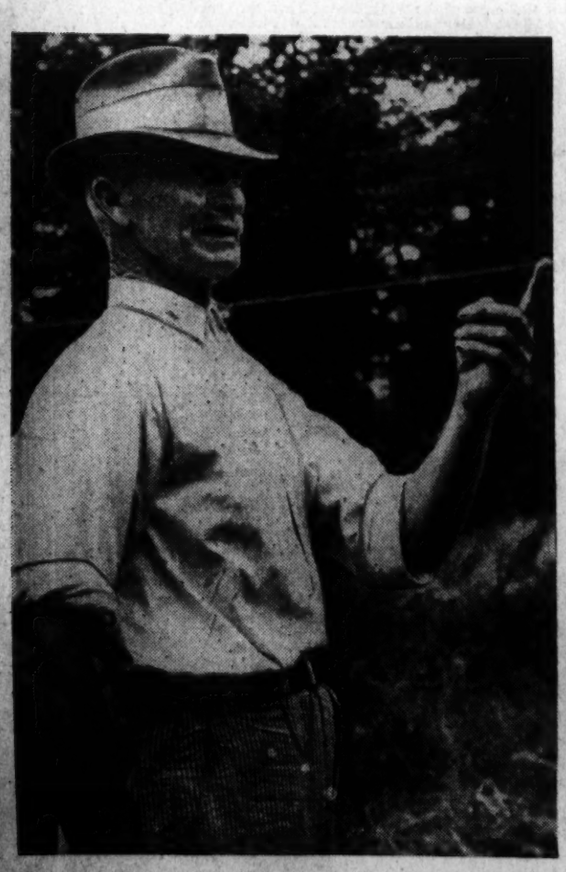
Opinion on reretrocession lined itself up yesterday about on the basis of the "new-comers" being indifferent, and the older inhabitants wanting the status quo.

Both in the slow-moving towns and back in the hay and corn fields they're taking sides. But they're much more emphatic about it in the cornfields and where the hay's being pitched.

THINGS BAD ENOUGH NOW—O. W. Shreve, astride his mower, believes things in the county are bad enough now without making them worse by turning the area over to the District



"IT WOULD BE JUST AWFUL"—That was the answer of George Marcey, shown at work on his farm on Military Road in Arlington County, when asked what he thought of the re-retrocession proposal



HE'S VERY MUCH AGAINST PLAN—Walter Marcey, whose farm adjoins that of George Marcey, his brother, fell upon the proposal to turn the county back to the District with a burst of emotion lasting 35 minutes

Large Pieces Of Jewelry Gain Favor

Elegance Is Keynote, With Precious Metals, Real Gems Used

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

PUT A MAN in a uniform and feminine minds instinctively turn to provocative ornaments to spruce up their outfits. Whether it is to lift his spirits, or to play off against his brass buttons, women are turning to larger pieces of jewelry to give them twice as much glamour.

Elegance, the double-edged weapon of women these days rules the choice in jewelry. Women are taking to the more sophisticated pieces in clips, pins and lapel gadgets. "Junk" ornaments are out of favor. The smarter appearing jewelers' pieces, especially in gold, are more popular.

Two-tone gold that is rich looking in tailored designs, without a lot of carving, is slated to be a top ranking favorite. Large stones set on gold in topaz, turquoise, amethyst, ruby and sapphire are important in massive clips and pins. The appeal of two-tone gold in lockets, crosses, bracelets and necklaces is another indication of the trend toward real jewelry.

Classic Lapel Pins

For a stable fashion that has grown to become as classic as the shirtwaist dress, the large spray-type lapel pin has no equal. The inimitable Duchess of Windsor, who first popularized lapel pins five years ago still wears her huge spray of diamond and topaz, wildflowers. Another favorite of the duchess is a pair of overlapping aspen leaves. One leaf is made of rubies and the other of diamonds. Whenever she wears small clips, she wears them in pairs.

On the whole, colored stones and diamonds in pins and bracelets are receiving the spotlight more this season because of the importance of brown. Although black is still the fall color preferred by most women, brown is expected to run a very close second in choice. For this reason amethyst, turquoise and other colored stones are preferred because they blend into a costume so well.

Longer Pearl Necklaces

In keeping with the trend toward colored jewelry for fall, a famous maker of pearls has created rich satiny strands with an opalescent glow. Very light weight, they come in such fascinating colors as "golden dawn," and "tiger eye." Other available shades are jade, brown, topaz, blue, red and black. These are seen mostly in bracelets and graduated necklaces of two or three strands.

The basic black dress, always an important item in the fall wardobe, is a perfect foil for necklaces this season because of its high-cut neck. Pearls, in natural color or with a pink cast, are still the pet of Washington women. Some pearls come in strands as much as a yard and a half in length. The college girl particularly likes this longer variety to loop several times around her throat or tie in a knot at the shoulder.

Even though junk jewelry is going out of the picture, gadget pins remain a favorite of the younger set. Noah's Ark comes to life in the form of animals that grace lapels for atmospheric touches this fall. There are lions and tigers, as well as pelicans, to add a decorative note. For the college girl, there are also novel necklaces made of wood, leather and unique plastics.

Chic Women Copy Duchess of Windsor's Taste

WHEN THE Duchess of Windsor, at right, pinned a magnificent spray of diamonds and topazes, set in wildflower design, to her suit lapel five years ago, she started a style that has remained in vogue ever since. The unique piece of jewelry is still a prime favorite in her collection, and she wears it with all her suits. Her lapel piece has been the inspiration of many variant designs, to be worn with frocks as well as suits. Mrs. Dan Topping (the former Sonja Henie), is pictured below, modeling a svelte V-necked gown that depends, for trimming, upon huge matching clips made of precious metal and costly stones, as the new mode demands

Don't Spend Less Than $500 When Furnishing Living Room

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

A PORTRAIT of an average American family—that's what you'd make of a composite picture of the people who are moving into the new Government-built houses springing up all over the country for defense workers. The houses average around $3300 in cost—the women do their own work—there is no dining room—the furnishings cost around $1000 of which $500 is spent on the living room—they have a car—they have from one to four children. About the main difference between the organization of such a household is that the rent is charged in accordance with the family income—20 per cent is the figure.

The way the bigwigs have worked out the budgets for spending this typical family's income provides many pointers for the rest of us. We were especially interested in some figures on furnishing that living room on $500. After all, the spending of that money is important for a family doesn't buy new living room furniture many times in a lifetime—mistakes have to be lived with.

In looking over several designs and budgets for these living rooms, we found that the average cost of the sofa ranged from $75 to $100—skimping too much here is poor economy. The rug investment ranges from $25 to $50. The cost of table used for dining ranged in the three budgets from $25 to $25, while the big wall piece of furniture, usually a secretary or breakfront-type of cabinet, varied from about $20 to $70 in price. One to three armchairs were included, these costing from $25 to $55 each. Three to four straight chairs for dining were listed in each budget, these priced at $11.50 to $15 each. Incidental tables ranged in price from about $10 to $15 each; in one budget, a pair of commodes with drawers and shelves were used in place of lamp tables—these cost $35 each and provided useful storage space. Three to four lamps were allowed for in each budget—one of these an indirect floor lamp at $12, the others table lamps at around $10 each. From $10 to $40 was spent on curtaining the windows in the different budgets, while accessories generally had a $25 allowance.

Three Popular Styles

Now—the way to make these figures work in your case is to balance various items against each other, keeping within the limit suggested. If you buy the $100 sofa, you probably won't be able to manage the $40 draperies and so on down the line. The three popular styles for such rooms are Early American, Eighteenth Century English and Modern.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Two Women, Wed to Brothers, Have Faith Betrayed; Heartbreak Yields to Philosophic Calm; One Leaves Her Husband; The Other Stays; Which Was Wiser?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I want to tell you the story of my sister-in-law (whom I shall call Nora) and myself. We are very good friends and our husbands are brothers. They have always had to have every luxury in life, even when it meant sacrifice on the part of their respective wives. Even so, we lived quite happily for a few years. Then, they began to think of themselves as the answer to a maiden's prayer and started "stepping out" on us—but telling us they were "detained at the office" or "in a business conference," etc.

I don't mean, however, that they strayed simultaneously. As a matter of fact, Nora's husband started "playing around" five years before mine did. And now, although my husband tries to convince me that he is going straight, I couldn't believe him under oath, because my love for and faith in him has died. It so happens that we have a child, although my sister-in-law's marriage has been childless.

Nora and I often talk about the sad ending of our marriages, which started so happily. Both of us were heartbroken when first we learned that we were being deceived, and while we have rallied from that to a state of more or less philosophical calm, neither of us is happy any more. Nora—who has separated from her husband—tells me that I have done the right thing in staying with my husband, while I, on the other hand, tell her that I think she did the braver thing, because a house without love is not a home; and life has no zest when faith is gone. What do you think?

DAILY READER.

One Who Stayed Made Better Choice

DEAR D. R.: It seems to me that the respective viewpoints of you and your sister-in-law prove the truth of the saying that "the grass looks greener over the fence." From her lonely vantage, your companioned status seems enviable, despite its flaws and penalties. Whereas, from your situation of dissatisfaction with less than heart-whole happiness, the empty sort of peace to which she has attained seems preferable. As between her elected portion and yours, however, I believe yours is the better (even though negatively arrived at) choice.

Life at best, and in all its aspects, is a more or less troubled or testing experience. And there is little reward or soul satisfaction in store for him who declines to stand up valiantly to bitter encounters, determined to hold to an approximately straightaway course, sustained by patience and unwavering purpose, even when faith is temporarily in complete eclipse. And, speaking of faith—which you say, with finality, in your case "is gone"—it is my opinion that one is primarily damning himself, when he professes to have arrived at a state of total, cynical disbelief i.. the right intentions of someone who (in the pursuit of pleasure or self-discovery) has regretfully wounded his pride or his heart.

Granted that your husband had a season of being frivolously unfaithful to you—perhaps because tempted by influential example, or as a supposed means of "recapturing his youth"—it still could be entirely possible that he would learn from that experience (and especially from the damage it was doing his marriage) just how ill-advised and self-betraying, how insidiously demoralizing, how evocative of uneasiness rather than of expected gaiety, such a performance may be.

It could be that surveying the havoc his mischievousness had wrought, he would sincerely resolve to reform and devote his life to making amends; and would turn to you in a spirit of humility, earnestly craving your forgiveness and the strong support of your faith in his best self, as a premise from which to address himself to the proposition of being a thoroughly dependable husband in future. Then, supposing you sulkily deny him a freely forgiving, cooperative vote of recovered confidence in that emergency, you are actually taking up where he left off, in the lamentable business of wrecking your relationship.

If that is your attitude, it is inspired not so much by lack of faith in his essential decency, as by lack of humility to match his own. The demon of injured pride is at work, demanding revenge. Assured that he still cares for you, there seems opportunity for equalizing the old score, by hurting him as he once hurt you. So you take (so convincingly as even to fool yourself), the attitude of no longer caring—an attitude more dangerous to the social security of yourself and the child (which the marriage exists to protect) than his casual philandering ever could be. Because that pose, if consistently maintained, will eventually drive him into another woman's arms—not in a mood of dalliance, this time, but in serious search of satisfying, permanent companionship.

However, the fact is that you do care for him; and, also, believe in him more than you admit. If you didn't care for him you would prefer to live apart from him; and would have followed Nora's example, long since. And if, while caring enough to stay on (even though rebelliously), you sincerely believed him to be an unprincipled deceiver, you would be far more wretched than you are today. A woman who cares for a man she can't trust is a woman in continuous torment; whereas you are only vaguely fretted by an introspective melancholy, occasioned by memory of past disillusionment.

In the circumstance, it is fool's talk to speak of the "sad ending" of your marriage, "which started so happily." Your marriage is in mid-voyage and you have had some rough weather. But you have avoided the reefs of divorce, thus far (although more by the grace of God than by good management, it seems); and your purpose from now on should be to keep sailing, with chin up and high heart, and without further reference to yesterday's storms.

Nazis Using The Vitamins U. S. Neglects

By Ida Jean Kain

IT IS DIABOLICAL that the science of nutrition, which has such unlimited potentialities for making a nation strong, should be used in reverse in the conquered countries to make the people weak. But that is what is happening.

One of the first things the Nazis do when they take a country over is to confiscate the yeast supplies. Yeast is one of the richest sources of the B vitimins. Lack of the B complex results in lowered morale and loss of stamina. The individual on a B deficient diet becomes steadily less alert and less able to fend for himself.

Nazis Use The Knowledge

On the other hand, the Nazis are making all possible use of the knowledge of nutrition to further the welfare of their own people. It is thought that the collape of Germany in World War 1 may have been caused by the inadequate food supplies and the resultant loss of morale.

When Germany's Goering was given the responsibility a few years ago of making his country nutritionally self-sufficient, he immediately ordered the accumulation of large stores of ascorbic acid, Vitamin C. Recognizing the value of milk as an all around food, the Nazis have greatly extended the use of dried skim milk. And to overcome the anticipated meat shortage of wartime, large scales experiments have been made in the production and the use of soy beans. The soy bean is an economical meat substitute and a good one. It is high in protein and vitamins.

Available To Americans

Up until now there has been no concerted effort on the part of Americans to make practical use of the science of nutrition as a morale builder. But every one of us should take advantage of the Government's new campaign to make us a better fed nation. We should use either the 100 per cent whole wheat bread and cereals or the enriched variety. Our yeast has also been fortified with thiamin, nicotinic acid and iron, and we have merely to ask for the reinforced brands. There is no milk shortage—all that is necessary is to use more milk. The adult needs one pint of milk daily and the child needs three glasses. In the future we may find we have to produce more fruits and vegetables, but that amounts to better business for the farmer.

There is nothing wrong with the American diet that cannot be cured by a few changes in food habits. We should be smart enough to take a lesson from the countries at war and use what we know about nutrition.

Careful Grooming Early in Life Is Necessary

It's never too early to instill in a young girl the importance of preserving the present loveliness of her skin, hair, teeth and figure as insurance against the future. She should be instructed in a daily regimen of grooming, which should include the ritual of keeping her clothes brushed and in orderly arrangement, and developing a keen eye to the importance of every form of cleanliness.

Joan Leslie, the young Hollywood star, credits the meticulous care of her nails to the fact that at 10 she was given her own little manicure kit complete to a colorless polish. It filled Joan with such a feeling of importance she became a juvenile crank about her nails from that day forward.

This point is made because there's not a youngster in the world who doesn't relish getting into mother's rouge pot and powder box. So direct this desire to "dress up" by allowing her some actual privileges in beauty. Such as:

Soap and water cleansing followed by an occasional light cream facial, talcum powder to take the shine off her nose, the promotion of the growth of her lashes with any good product for the purpose, an occasional pedicure, the use of hand lotion, and the privilege of choosing her clothes and wearing a hair-do she likes.

Cabbage An Aid to Food Budget

THE WOMAN who handles the food dollars is realizing more and more that she is going to have to think up new tricks to keep within her budget.

Cabbage is a food that does not put a strain on the budget and will bring the much needed vitamins into the meal. Whether you prepare it in the Swedish manner—roll cabbage leaves around meat filling, pickle the red kind as the Hollanders do, or make it into crispy; cole slaw, it can be an aid to both the budget and good nutrition..

Danish cabbage means combining coarsely shredded cabbage with onions, fat, dried beef, green pepper and a dash of chili sauce, to make a zestful vegetable dish. Prepare it this way.

Danish Cabbage

Slowly saute 1½ cups diced onions in 3 tablespoons butter until yellow. Add 3½ ounces dried beef, or its equivalent, cut into pieces. Add the beef and saute until browned. Add ½ cup diced green pepper and then 4 cups coarsely shredded cabbage and saute 10 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Add 3 tablespoons chili sauce and mix well. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

Cole slaw too is a dish that fits into many menus—with fish, fried chicken and cold cuts. So that slaw will not become monotonous and may also be more attractive because of other ingredients used in making it, such foods as celery, green peppers, apples or olives may be added. Try making the cole slaw with the addition of celery and olives this way.

Cabbage, Celery and Olives

Shred cabbage to make 4 cups. Dice celery to make 1 cup. Slice either ripe or green olives to make 1 cup. Add salt, vinegar, and sugar to make good flavor. Chill in refrigerator until ready to serve. Mayonnaise may be used instead of the other mixture, if desired. Serves 8.

Mrs. Askew Entertains Noted Irish Writer

Dr. Oliver St. John Gogarty Is Among Several Widely Known House Party Guests at The White Hall, Emmitsburg

The famous Irish poet, statesman, surgeon and wit, Dr. Oliver St. John Gogarty, is a visitor in nearby Maryland. He is among the guests whom Mrs. Laurin B. Askew, jr., of Washington is entertaining at a houseparty at her recently acquired farm, "The White Hall," in the environs of Emmitsburg.

Dr. Gogarty, who spends much of his time lecturing and writing, was a close friend of William Butler Yeats, who called him "one of the greatest lyric poets of our age." He was a schoolmate of James Joyce, author of "Ulysses," "Finnegan's Wake," and other famous books. He numbers George Russell, James Stephens, and George Moore among his friends and is recognized as an authority on the Irish Literary Renaissance.

Dr. Gogarty is compared as a lyricist to Robert Herrick, John Donne and Edmund Waller. Famous as a raconteur, he has been termed by George Russell "the wildest wit in Ireland," and Moore says he is "the author of all the jokes that enable us to live in Dublin."

Book on Dublin Widely Read

Dr. Gogarty's prose book, "As I Was Walking Down Sackville Sreet," was widely read in this country when it appeared several years ago. His "I Follow St. Patrick" is on the official list of recommended reading by the Cardinal's Literature Committee of New York.

Besides the famous Irish wit, others visiting Mrs. Askew are Count and Countess Robert de Veyrac Paulhan of Oyster Bay, L. I.; Mrs. W. L. Hopkins of New York and Los Angeles, and her daughter, Miss Gertrude Hopkins, well known harpist, and Miss Anne Harcourt of London, talented young English painter.

Count Paulhan is professor of architecture at New York University. He originally came to this country for the duration of the war, but now hopes to make America, which he "loves dearly," his permanent home. The Countess was, before her marriage, the Baroness de la Bruyere.

Miss Harcourt, daughter of George Harcourt, is a prominent painter and member of the Royal Academy and has made many successful protraits of people here and abroad. From her extensive travels in the Orient, Africa and Nassau she has brought many interesting sketches, which she will show in an exhibit sometime in the near future.

Mrs. Askew and her son, Laurin B. Askew, 3d, have bought the farm formerly owned by Bruce Brockley, and plan to make their home in this community.

Mrs. Askew Is Well-Known Painter

Under the name of "Joel Marhoe," Mrs. Askew has won international fame as a portrait painter. After her husband's death, she went to live in Brussels, where she still maintains a home and studio. A graduate of the Academie Royale des Beaux Arts, she and her son have traveled and studied intensively in Europe.

Since the outbreak of the war, Mrs. Askew has resided in Washington, where young Askew is a student in the Foreign Service School of Georgetown University. Her son will spend his weekends here at "The White Hall."

During his sojourn in Europe, Laurin was a guest cadet at the Belgian Annapolis, the "Ecole de Marine de l'Etat," Ostend. Last summer he was a student in the University of Mexico, Mexico City.

Ralph Hill Is Married

A few hours after his arrival yesterday morning in Los Angeles, Ralph Snowden Hill was married to Mrs. Katherine Wilcox of that city. The ceremony, which was attended only by relatives, took place at 2:30 at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Los Angeles. The bride wore a street dress and both she and Mr. Hill dispensed with attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a honeymoon at Arrowhead Lake. On their return here the end of September they will live in Mr. Hill's home on N Street in Georgetown. He is assistant legal adviser to the State Department and his bride is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Randolph Miner of this city. Their engagement was announced last month.

Mrs. Hill is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willard Sackett Strickler. She was first married to the late Alfred H. Wilcox, of Los Angeles.

The bridegroom is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Francis Hill and is descended from the prominent Maryland family of that name. He was graduated from the law school of the University of Virginia and completed his studies at L'Ecole de Sciences Politiques in Paris. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Chevy Chase Club and Grasslands.

Miss Ellen Kerl's Troth Announced

Mrs. Thomas Kerl, of Spokane, Wash., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ellen Kerl, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, to William S. Lee, of Coeur d'Alene and Washington. The wedding will take place September 7.

Mr. Lee is the son of Commissioner William E. Lee, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Mrs. Lee. He was graduated from the University of Idaho and Harvard Law School. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Phi Betta Kappa. He is now practicing law in coeur d'Alene.

Nancy Glover, A. L. Symington To Wed Sept. 6

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover have issued invitations to the wedding reception of their daughter, Nancy, to A. Lloyd Symington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Symington of Lloyd Harbor, Long Island. The prospective bride has selected Saturday, September 6, at the date of the wedding. The reception afterward will be at the Glover summer home, Nonquitt, Mass.

Among Miss Glover's attendants will be Miss Deborah Kirk, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Alan Kirk of Washington. Other bridesmaids will include three classmates of Miss Glover at St. Timothy's School in Catonsville, Md. Miss Kirk will leave the first week in September for Nonquitt.

The engagement of Miss Glover and Mr. Symington was announced at a cocktail party given by her parents July 4 at their summer home. Miss Glover made her debut here a year ago this summer at a large reception.

Mrs. Kirk will leave on Sunday for a trip of several weeks to New England. She will pick up her son, Roger, at camp in New Hampshire, and then spend two weeks at Squam Lake, N. H. She will then go to her summer home at Black Point, Conn., returning to Washington toward the end of September.

Miss Mann Sets Wedding Date

Miss Gertrude Louise Mann, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. James B. Mann, formerly of Washington, now of New Orleans, has completed plans for her wedding to George Lee Millikan, son of E. C. Millikan and the late Mrs. Millikan, of Huntington Park, Calif.

The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock on Saturday in the chapel of the University of Vermont, the Rev. P. C. Ladd officiating. Miss Anne Hale Bottomley, of Burlington, Vt., will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Audrey and Barbara Mann, sisters of the bride, Frances Scott Simmons, of Washington and Elaine Murray, of New York.

Mr. Millikan will have his father as best man and the ushers are Robert E. Long, of Burlington, Vt., Samuel H. Nichols, jr., of Danville, Ky., Lieut. Col. Irving A. Duffy, of Washington, uncle of the bride, and Ippocrates Pappoutsakis, of Boston.

Many from Washington will attend the ceremony and the reception following at Dunrovin, the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. F. E. Hopkins. Among those expected from here are Mrs. Ralph M. Sabin and Baron and Baroness von Rosenberg.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

A BEAUTIFUL, blonde Capital debutante almost ended up in the clink the other day. No matter what anybody says, she is convinced that the Capital police force is super-efficient. Here's what happened.

Dudley Harmon

On Saturday afternoon she decided to attend a sale which an expensive Connecticut Avenue dress shop was having. Entering the store, she was surprised to see that there were no salesladies around—only another woman shopper, who was looking at the clothes.

Our heroine decided that the staff was taking a holiday but thought it might be a good idea to pick out what she wanted and then return on Monday and buy it. After making some selections, she put everything back on the rack and went out.

On the door step a policeman was standing. "What were you doing in there?" he aswed. "Don't you know that the store is closed and when you entered you set off the burglar alarm? How did you get in through a locked door?"

"But it wasn't locked," said our friend innocently. "I just opened it and went in." The other woman shopper corroborated this but the policeman still wasn't satisfied. Meanwhile, a police car with a riot squad pulled up and said they must check with the manager to see that nothing had been disturbed. Several telephone calls resulted in the news that the manager was out of town.

Meanwhile, the two women were detained for intensive questioning. They even had to produce their Social Security cards. Finally, however, they were allowed to go, on leaving names, telephone numbers, and their life histories. The debutante has decided that Saturday afternoon is no time to shop in Washington.

JAY ALLEN, the newspaperman who was held prisoner by the Germans, is in Washington for a day or two. He is looking up the various State Department officials who obtained his release and thanking them in person. Mrs. Allen joined him here yesterday afternoon. She spent a lot of time in Washington this Spring working with State Department officials on her husband's plight. The Overseas Writers' Club gave a luncheon for Mr. Allen yesterday.

"WHAT'S IT LIKE to write a column?" people are always asking those who do. "Try it and see" is a stock answer, but hardly anybody ever follows it up. However, an attractive Washington couple took one scribbler at her word and bright and early yesterday handed in the following contribution:

"Saturday night in the August doldrums means that the Chevy Chase Club comes into its own. It seems to be everybody's desert isle this time of year. In mid-August those who are left in town consider themselves very much stranded. We do not wish to imply anything in the nature of a Lonely Hearts parade, but judging by the Chevy Chase Club on Saturday night, everybody still left appeared, so that the rest of their acquaintances should know they were still in town.

"As Laura Tuckerman was heard to remark, 'I have been here so long that some of my family are beginning to come back from their vacations.'

"Elsie Eckengren was there doing a very efficient conga. She, for one, expects to get away soon for a holiday. Among others dining and afterward dancing were the William van Rechterens, the John Beggs and the Walton Butterworths.

"THE MOON was shining down on the half-filled dance floor and for once there was room to dance. It felt like an early fall evening, and what, with a drop in the temperature, everyone got more than the usual quota of dancing, because it was the best way to keep warm.

"The Tom Clagetts were there, as were Alice Tuckerman and her Marine Corps husband. Pat Prochnik and Joan Dodd were getting a rush from a large stag line which included Kent Legg, Reeve Lewis, Richard Bolling, Spotty White, Tommy Thomas, Mark Sullivan, jr., and George Wheeler—the latter a temporary bachelor owing to recent fatherhood.

tained at a luncheon yesterday in Washington everyone doesn't go away at once. However, some who are lucky enough to have left, if only for a weekend, are the Edward Burlings, who are in Watch Hill, R. I., and the Lucius Wilmerdings and Creighton Peets, who are in Far Hills, N. J."

Luncheon Given By Miss Howard For Few Friends

Miss Meredith Howard, who has taken an apartment at Hotel Twenty-four Hundred, entertained at a luncheon yesterday in the newly decorated trophy room of the hotel.

Her guests were Mrs. N. B. Talmage, of Chicago, who is visiting her, and the Misses Virginia Moran, Ivy Mason, Caroline Wachter, Marie Anne Hunter, Peggy Ransom, Anne Swanson, Mary Jane Moran, Roberta Rule, Patricia Kelsey, Katherine Smith, Virgilia Stephens, Genevieve Reynolds, Helen Vogt and Izetta Robb.

Capital Folk Sojourn At Spring Lake, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dodge, of 2204 Kalorama Road, are at the Essex and Sussex Hotel, Spring Lake, N. J.

Other Washingtonians staying there are Mr. and Mrs. William Barron Kerkam, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Shea, Mrs. Martha Lee Amos, Dr. and Mrs. William Beverly Mason, Mrs. Frank Blaul and the Misses Isabel Harmon and Mary Johnston.

Women to Aid Mission Annex Ceremonies

Women's groups allied with the work of the Central Union Mission will take part in the exercises at the laying of the cornerstone of the new John S. Bennett Memorial wing of the mission building at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow at 634 Indiana Avenue Northwest.

Mrs. William H. Ramsey, president of the Women's Guild, older of the two women's groups now working with the mission, will deposit the Bible used by Mr. Bennett. He was superintendent of the mission for more than 20 years, until his death in September, 1937.

Mrs. Ramsey has been president of the guild for 25 years. With her husband, who is a member of the board of directors, she holds the long-time record for continuous association with the mission activities.

Miss Marjorie Webster, president of the other women's organization, the Evening Auxiliary of the Guild, will place in the stone a roster of the auxiliary membership which has now reached its all-time high of more than 1,000 members.

Mrs. Jean Bennett, who has been superintendent of the mission since her husband's death, will assist in spreading the mortar with a trowel.

The memorial wing will relieve congestion in the dormitories for homeless men and also will be shared by the Children's Emergency Home which the mission conducts.

Mrs. May Evans To Entertain for Mrs. Walmsley

Mrs. May Thompson Evans, staff member of the Office of Civilian Defense, will entertain at luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel Thursday in honor of Mrs. T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, wife of the deputy director of that office.

Other honor guests will be Mrs. Walmsley's daughter, Miss Augusta Walmsley; Miss Eloise Davison, member of the New York Herald Tribune staff; Mrs. De Forest Van Slyck, of New York, executive secretary of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, and Miss Wilmer Shields of the association's community service department.

Composer Entertains At A. A. U. W. Meeting

Mrs. Stuart C. Godfrey, composer and teacher of music, played piano selections yesterday afternoon at the tea of the American Association of University Women, at the clubhouse. Mrs. Lyman B. Swornstedt gave several readings.

Hostesses at the tea were Mrs. J. Joseph Palmer, Mrs. James Merritt, Mrs. John Phillips and Mrs. Frances H. Colbert.

Canning Project Report Made

A progress report from the community canning project for free school lunches yesterday showed that the total reached 1610 quarts of fruits and vegetables last week, it was announced by officials of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The food, which is being canned at the central kitchens of the WPA at 1640 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, will be used for the school lunches and for distribution to needy families this fall and winter.

During the summer, lunches have been served in approximately 60 schools to some 5000 children, it was pointed out.

The District Congress of Parents and Teachers is sponsoring the collection of empty glass jars for the canning project. The schools serving as depositories will be open the remainder of this week. Persons having jars to contribute are urged to take them to the depository in their neighborhood before noon Saturday, as after that they will have to be taken directly to the central kitchen. Questions about the project are being answered at telephones RE. 0934 and RE. 0935.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

A group of women executives in Government agencies last week had an outing which was far removed from the workaday world.

Miss Tracy Copp, who is in the vocational rehabilitation service of the U. S. Office of Education, was host to the party at her summer home on an inland bay in Wisconsin.

Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, made the trip by train, but the others motored. They included Miss Mary Switzer, assistant to the Administrator, Federal Security Agency; Miss Isabella Diamond, librarian in the Treasury Department; Miss Edith Rockwood of the Children's Bureau.

Swimming, boating and fishing, cooking meals on the rocks and just looking through the large bay windows that open out on a view of the water, kept the group as "busy" as they wanted to be.

DEFENSE INSTITUTE—Miss Anne Sarachon Hooley, director of the women's division of the National Catholic Community Service, is busily preparing for the defense institute which will bring 50 staff workers of the division here for a two weeks' course, beginning Friday.

Miss Hooley was recently asked to serve on a national committee on community planning for day care of children in industrial areas, following a conference on the problem at the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.

Miss Hooley, a past president of the National Council of Catholic Women, is now serving as chairman of its national youth committee.

Northeast Red Cross Wants More Volunteers

The Northeast Red Cross Unit, formed by women in Kenilworth, Congress Heights and Trinidad, yesterday appealed for more volunteer workers through its chairman, Mrs. R. P. Robinson. All materials are given out from the home of Mrs. Robinson, 1264 Neal Street Northeast, and may be called for any afternoon or evening except Tuesday.

In a report just issued by the unit, Mrs. Robinson says that seven women started the unit in July, 1940. Since that time 220 women have given 4778 hours of service, making 221 knitted and 355 sewed garments. "More volunteers in the Northeast and Southeast sections of the city are wanted in order to meet constantly growing needs," she added.

Mrs. Doyle to Speak At Club's Program

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education and executive director of the Washington Self-Help Exchange, will speak on the program of the Business and Professional Women's Club over WINX at 3:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Mrs. Doyle, a member of the club, will tell of the way in which the Exchange and similar organizations are helping in the defense program. She will be introduced by Mrs. Miller Hickerson of the publicity committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Connecticut Society Cruise Set Tomorrow

The Connecticut State Society will embark on its annual cruise at 8:30 p. m. tomorow aboard the Wilson Line steamer Mount Vernon.

Edmund Fitzgerald heads the committee arranging the outing. Liberti.

Mrs. Bingham to Speak

Mrs. Walter V. Bingham, who holds a master's degree in geology and geography, will be interviewed at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow on the "Women Who Achieve" program, over WWDC. The program was originated and is produced by Miss J. Jeune Carter and Mrs. Edward R. Seal.

Alien Assets Census Forms Are Due Soon

By Nicholas P. Gregory

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The Treasury last night ordered that the census of foreign property, securities, cash and other negotiable instruments located in the United States must be completed by September 30, as it announced that the long-awaited form TFR-300 upon which banks must compile the information will be available soon.

The census, the first undertaken in this country, was called under President Roosevelt's Executive Order of June 14 freezing the funds of all countries except the British Empire and South and Central America. However, the census will also cover property and other assets owned by citizens of the British Empire as well as of South American countries.

Since April 8, 1940, when Mr. Roosevelt issued the first freezing order affecting Norwegian and Danish assets, when the Nazi war machine over ran these two Scandinavian countries, subsequent orders added 30 more countries to the list.

The other countries affected by the freezing orders are The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, France, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Greece, Albania, Andorra, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Danzig, Finland, Germany, Italy, Liechenstein, Poland, Portugal, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Russia, China and Japan.

Haven for Capital

The TFR-300 census will supplement information gathered by the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Banks on the assets held in the United States by foreigners. Since the outbreak of the war the United States has become a haven for refugee capital. Some of it is in the form of co-called investments, representing real property, while some is in securities, currency and precious metals.

British and Latin-American citizens were included in the census, apparently with the view of keeping a closer check on the activities of these nationals. The request that they be included may have come from their own governments.

Special interest is attached to the large demand of high denomination currency which has made itself evident since the outbreak of the war. Some of these dollars may be in safe deposit boxes. Banks have been asking their depositors and safe deposit holders to state their nationality in preparation for the survey.

Penalties Provided

The Treasury pointed out that failure of any person, subject to section 4 of the act of October 6, 1917, known as Trading With the Enemy Act, is required to file a report and failure to do so will subject him to criminal penalties.

"Form TFR-300 is being issued in nine series adapted for facility in reporting property by particular groups and classes of persons required to make a report," the Treasury explained. "It has thus been possible to provide each person obliged to report with a form suited for his purposes.

Weather Halts Performance At Watergate

Threatening rain coupled with chilly breezes caused the management to cancel the performance of "Il Trovatore" last night at the Watergate.

Tickets for that performance will be good Thursday when the opera will be given, it was said. Also tomorrow night the opera Aida, which was canceled last Friday because of a heavy shower, will be presented.

Last night's performance which was scheduled to begin at 8:15 p. m. was called off at 7:15 p. m. Several hundred people had already assembled on the steps of the Watergate when the cancelation was announced.

The performance tonight will include Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci."

District Girl, 13, Missing for Week, Parents Report

Police are searching for Mabel Lockwood, 13, missing from her home at 3351 Nichols Avenue Southeast since last Tuesday. According to her mother, Mrs. John Rusenko, the girl was last seen at 11 a. m. that day with a boy school chum.

The missing girl, a student at Anacostia Junior High School, is 5 feet 4 and weighs 130 pounds. She has blond hair and brown eyes. When last seen, the girl was wearing a cerise-colored skirt, a white blouse and a black sweater.

Contract Bridge

When everything else fails to decide a finesse, experts rely upon a vague theory known as the "law of symmetry." This is a notion that there is a mysterious tendency in the cards to group themselves into similar patterns. Thus, if there is a singleton in one hand there is apt to be a singleton in another.

Harry J. Fishbein, expert extraordinary, relied upon this belief to help him in determining his play of the spade suit in today's hand for no less a contract than seven no-trump.

Today's Hand

North, South Vulnerable.

NORTH DEALER.

	Elis: ♠ A K J 8 7 6 5 ♡ Q 7 2 ◇ 4 3 ♣ 10
♠ Q 4 3 ♡ 6 3 ◇ 7 5 ♣ Q 9 7 6 5 3	WEST / EAST	♠ 10 ♡ 9 8 5 4 ◇ Q 9 8 ♣ 6 2
	SOUTH: ♠ 9 2 ♡ A K J 10 ◇ A K J 10 ♣ A K 8	♣ J 4 2

Fishbein

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	7 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 6 ♣.

Such a remarkable shower of aces and kings fell to South, no one could blame Harry for suspecting that his partner's opening bid was pure bluff.

Morrie Elis' spade call was legitimate enough; even Culbertson would indorse it in this day of lighter and lighter opening bids. But Fishbein was skeptical; like many of the rest of us, his rubber bridge experiences with fat hands had been bitter and costly; partner just did not open the bidding when you held every ace, king in the deck but one. So pessimistically he said two clubs, but, lo, Elis confirmed his original call with a lusty two spades. Well, that was different; even a cynic like Harry could be convinced; seven no-trump was his next call. Nobody doubled and here was his play to make it:

West opened his fourth-long club; the dummy's ten was covered by the jack and declarer won with the king. Harry needed the spade suit to fill out his contract and it was a question as to how to play for the missing queen—catch it under the ace, king or place it with West and finesse.

Careful not to pass up the chance of finding it singleton, declarer led a low spade and won with dummy's ace; the ten fell from East.

With no other clew but the "law of symmetry," the master decided that the singleton club ten might indicate another singleton—a spade ten, for example. He re-entered his own hand with a high heart, led a spade and finessed the jack. The thirteen-trick contract depended upon whether his hunch was right. Well, East didn't take the trick, as you can see, and the rest of the play was pure pleasure to Mr. Fishbein.

OPM Gets Use of 2-to-3-Million-Dollar Brains for $175 From Its $1-a-Year Officials

By Clarke Beach
Associated Press Staff Writer

For about $175 a year in salaries, the Office of Production Management is getting the services of brains whose earnings normally total two million to three million dollars a year.

Watching these expensive minds in action has been an eye-opening experience for some of the younger officials of OPM. They have learned a lot of surprising things about captains of industry.

Whenever there is a war or an economic crisis, the dollar-a-year men converge on Washington. When the President feels that the Nation needs the administrative ability and the expert knowledge of men successful in industry and business, he personally invites them to take Government jobs.

The first arrivals become talent scouts. They immediately get on the long distance telephone and line up other topnotch executives.

All the directors of OPM are dollar-a-year men, and they have about 170 others on their staffs. It is not hard to persuade men to take the positions. It is flattering to any man to have the President single him out as a person whom the country needs. The men, in general, are keenly aware of the seriousness of the present situation and wish to do their patriotic duty.

The work isn't very pleasant. At OPM most of the erstwhile captains of industry became small cogs in a big machine. A lot of them long for the day when they are told that the crisis is over and they can go home.

About 50 already have gone home. The official explanation is that they had agreed to serve only for a limited period and that they couldn't spare any more time from their business.

Giving them a salary of $1 a year is the Government's way of protecting itself against future claims. The law prohibits a person from giving anything to the Government. If you want to turn over a yacht to Uncle Sam, you will be paid at least $1 for it.

The Government could offer to give these men a regular salary, but the truth is that they make more money by not accepting Government pay. At present OPM could could not, under the law, pay any man in the professional grade more than $8,000 a year.

But nearly all the dollar-a-year men retain their old jobs while serving the Government, and they collect their old salaries. This is not true, however, in the case of William S. Knudsen, OPM director, and Edward R. Stettinius, director of priorities. Knudsen gave up his position as president of General Motors, which paid $350,000 a year. Stettinius relinquished the $100,000-a-year chairmanship of United States Steel.

In addition to the $1, the dollar-a-year men get their transportation paid to and from Washington, besides $10 a day for living expenses.

There is another group of men from private industry, many times more numerous than the dollar-a-year men, and known as the "WOC" group. They are the industrial, business and labor leaders who serve "without compensation," but who collect transportation money and the $10 a day expense fund. They come to Washington or go to other places for a day or so at a time when they are needed for some temporary, part-time work.

About 600 of them are working under OPM's labor division, assisting in the "training within industry" program. They travel to various plants and help set up training classes in which workers are taught higher skills.

As to how valuable the $1 men have been to OPM, there is no question in the minds of most responsible OPM leaders that the group as a whole has done the country an inestimable service.

The performance of some of the individuals, on the other hand, has been disillusioning to many of the younger experts who are working on Government salaries. One commented:

"We've got too many corporation presidents and board chairmen. Instead of so many corporate decorations, we'd do better with more plant managers and more vice presidents in charge of operations."

On the other hand, not all the dollar-a-year men are happy to be working with the bright young men carried over from earlier New Deal agencies.

There has been much criticism in labor circles and among some New Deal liberals that, through the dollar-a-year men, industry has moved into the Government and taken over the business of defense.

Some sincere and able observers within OPM say, however, they have seen no evidence that the dollar men are consciously attempting to benefit their industries or companies through their operations within the agency. Nevertheless, they say, the experts have their limitations; their careers in industry have conditioned their thinking, and sometimes it may be impossible for them to distinguish between the public good and the good of the industry.

Sidney Hillman, OPM's associate director, who is director of the Labor Division and president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, has placed labor men or experts on labor in most of the OPM offices, and some of his people say this is Hillman's way of keeping a check on the industrial people.

Five Fort Meade Soldiers Held For Jury in Attack on Girl

Five Fort Meade soldiers, charged two weeks ago with the rape of a 17-year-old girl near Berwyn, Md., were ordered held for action of the Prince Georges County October grand jury following a preliminary hearing yesterday before Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in police court at Upper Marlboro.

The men, all white, Lee Schroeder, 26, of Baltimore; Thomas Amato, 21, of Cleveland, and Cyril Beck, 25; William Greenjack, 23, and Francis Bauer, 32, all of Philadelphia, are being held without bond in the Upper Marlboro jail. They are members of the Sixty-first Surgical Hospital Unit at Fort Meade.

The girl testified yesterday that three of the men, Amato, Beck and Bauer, attacked her in a parked automobile near Berwyn early August 7. Her testimony implicated the other two men when she said that she was held on the rear seat of the car while the attacks occurred.

According to the girl's story, Schroeder gagged her with a handkerchief and Greenjack tore a crucifix from her throat.

A 19-year-old girl companion who allegedly fled just before the attacks occurred, was not called on to testify.

John A. Herbert, jr., a garage owner of Jessups, Md., testified that he found the younger girl in an hysterical condition on the Baltimore Boulevard, near Laurel, shortly after the attacks are alleged to have occurred. He took the girl to Laurel, where Maryland State police were notified.

The five soldiers were arrested at Herbert's garage when they stopped to have a flat tire fixed.

According to the testimony of the younger girl, she had been visiting her aunt near Berwyn for several weeks. The girl's home is in Virginia. According to her story, she and her companion met the soldiers at a tavern near Berwyn and accepted their offer of a ride home.

Boy, 10, Is Flop At Crashing Girls' Pigtail Contest

New York, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—There wasn't much point in measuring the pigtails. Of the 50 little girls gathered for the "longest pigtail" contest sponsored by the Children's Aid Society today, one stood out.

They were blond tresses, though the little girl's complexion was dark. She wore a light blue dress and had nothing to say, keeping shyly aloof from the other contestants. A judge measured the pigtails.

"Twenty-nine inches," she said.

But there was something strange about them. Their texture was coarse. Those large feet were not exactly girlish.

The judge looked closer. The leading contestant was Jimmy Limnios, 10, who had put on a hemp wig for the contest. He was declared ineligible and the prize went to a girl whose braids were 5 inches shorter than Jimmy's.

Wallace to Answer Quezon Birthday Broadcast Today

Vice President Henry Wallace will reply to a broadcast this morning by Philippine President Quezon, celebrating the latter's sixty-third birthday.

Quezon's address will originate in the Philippines, beginning at 8:15 a. m. (E. S. T.), over the Columbia Broadcasting System. It will be followed by the Wallace reply, lasting from 8:30 to 8:45 a. m. (E. S. T.)

Neither speech will be heard here until they are rebroadcast by WJSV, a C. B. S. local station, beginning at 8:15 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Tonight there will be a local radio program over Station WINX, in which Sebastian Ugarte, legal aide to Philippine Commissioner J. M. Elizalde, will tell the story of Quezon's life.

Man Ending Life Starts Big Fire

Honolulu, Aug. 18 (AP).—A Japanese who took his own life because of despondency over the Far East situation started a brush fire that burned over a thousand acres before it was brought under control today by three companies of infantry from nearby Schofield Barracks.

The Japanese, Ushi Makamine, 60, died in a hospital several hours after he was found, his clothing afire and a knife thrust in his abdomen. Detective Leon Strauss quoted him as saying he wanted to die because of the tension between his homeland and the United States.

3 Navy Plane Crews Rescued at Sea

The Navy announced yesterday that three carrier-based planes were forced down at sea off the Southeastern United States on August 2 by bad weather.

The crews were rescued by the S. S. Centuria bound for La Guaira, Venezuela.

No other details were available, the Navy said, but it was presumed the planes were lost. Carrier-based planes are land planes and carry only a pilot.

'Action Body' Organized to Conduct Fight Against Subversive Enemies of Education

Organization of an "action body" to mobilize education in the service of the Nation at the present time was announced here yesterday by the National Education Association. The new agency will be known as the Commission for the Defense of Democracy Through Education.

Dr. Donald DuShane, past president of the National Education Association and superintendent of schools, Columbus, Ind., was chosen executive secretary by the executive committee of the commission.

"The commission will take direct action in a manner as forceful as possible against all enemies of schools and education," Dr. DuShane said. "We expect to move against all individuals and organizations who are endeavoring to weaken the schools. Such attacks threaten the security of our democracy."

Aims Are Given

Dr. DuShane said the commission's activities will include the following:

Investigate criticisms and movements against education, school systems, teachers' colleges, textbooks, teachers' organizations and individual teachers, with an attempt at constructive results.

Study of groups opposing education, discovering the sources of their funds and taking such action as is considered appropriate.

Protect the American schools from educational curtailment and financial restrictions due to competition for funds on the part of other national needs.

Defend education from such ravages as were inflicted upon it during the last economic depression.

He stated that the commission invites the cooperation of all organized groups of citizens "who recognize the necessity of defending democracy through education."

Alonzo F. Myers, chairman of the school of education of New York University, is chairman of the executive committee of the commission.

Bishop Sees U. S. Going Totalitarian

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 17.—Bishop Aloisius J. Muench, of Fargo, N. Dak., asserted tonight that the American democracy was becoming totalitarian.

Addressing 600 delegates of German-American Catholic societies at a youth mass meeting, Bishop Muench declared that national socialism already had invaded the nation's educational system and business enterprises, and added:

"Governmental control and regimentation are winding their octopus tentacles tighter and tighter around every phase of our national life. American democracy is developing into totalitarian democracy."

$10,000 Opium Cache Uncovered

Baltimore, Aug. 18 (AP).—Customs officials said today a cache of opium valued at about $10,000 was found by a workman reconditioning the former Danish ship Anna Maersk in drydock at the Fairfield shipyards.

They said the workman was examining a tank and saw a rope under the cover. Pulling it out, the man found a burlap bag on the end containing 16 cans of the narcotic. Customs officials began an intensified search of the freighter tied up here since the German invasion of Denmark. The vessel is one of several foreign-flag ships recently taken for use by the United States Maritime Commission.

The Federal Diary

Requirements Listed For Federal Lawyers

Another step has been taken to bring Uncle Sam's lawyers under a merit system. Minimum requirements for legal jobs were set forth in regulations issued yesterday by the Board of Legal Examiners. They are: For appointment to Grade CAF-4-($1800), graduation from a law school authorized to confer the bachelor or higher degree in law; P-1 jobs ($2000), member of bar but no working experience required; P-2, ($2600) bar member and one year's experience; P-3 ($3200) bar member and 18 months' experience, and P-3 to P-9, ($3200 to $9000), bar member and three years' experience.

No attorney may be appointed unless he has passed a noncompetitive test given by the board. However, exceptions will be made in cases of "special emergency." In these cases noncompetitive tests will be given after appointment. Noncompetitive tests will be given only to those applicants who have been recommended to the board by an appointing officer. An open competitive test will be given within several months.

It looks as though the Navy will never get its police force to round up spies and saboteurs in the Navy yards. Congress authorized creation of the force but it has refused to appropriate the million dollars necessary to pay the salaries of the 350-man force . . . Edward H. Nunnally, vice president of the metal trades council of the Navy Yard, has been elected an employe representative on the yard board of appeals . . . Interior Secretary Harold Ickes has written to the group of Federal employes who said they could save gas by leaving their autos at home if the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad would run trains through to the depot near Fourteenth and Water Streets instead of stopping them at Union Station. He said: "I favor such a plan for saving gas if mechanically feasible and economical."

Wilson Seeks Office

Secret Service Chief Frank Wilson wants to be elected vice president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police which is holding its annual convention in Buffalo, N. Y. Treasury officials are helping Wilson campaign for the job. No Federal police officer has been elected an official of the association, Ernest W. Brown, who has retired as chief of the District police force, has his eye on the job of permanent executive secretary of the association. The association recently moved its headquarters here.

Long a "white elephant," the House restaurant in the Capitol Building is operating on a smaller deficit now than at any time in history. Reasons behind the favorable record, officials say, are two-fold. First, the political appointees who operated the restaurant have been replaced by people who know their business, and second, the restaurant is doing much more tourist business than it ever did before. The restaurant is supposed to be under the jurisdiction of the Accounts Committee, but Representative Cochran, of Missouri, refused to accept the chairmanship of the committee if he was to be given responsibility for running the restaurant so the House turned the restaurant over to Capitol Architect David Lynn and gave him absolute power to hire and fire.

When the present emergency is over, a complete history of it will be available to guide future generations through a similar situation. Each agency that is doing defense work has been ordered to record its activities in detail. Apparently the history will cover many volumes and will be divided into several fields. For example, Dr. Lewis H. Weed, of the Division of Medical Sciences of the National Research Council, is collecting defense material and documents from the health agencies for a three-volume history to be known as the "Medican History of the National Emergency." It's reported that the history is a pet project of the President's who believes that fewer mistakes would have been made if a detailed history of World War I had been available.

'Twas a Good Wind

The breeze that lifted some lady's brown straw hat toward the stratosphere at Fifteenth and H Northwest last Friday took good care of it. A Washington attorney, who read of the incident in The Post, reported yesterday that the hat sailed onto his windowsill in the Union Trust Building. He's saving it for the owner.

Papal Blessing on New Catholic Welfare Building Is Read at Cornerstone Ceremony

NEW HEADQUARTERS—Archbishop Edward Mooney, of Detroit, chairman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference administrative board, places the cornerstone at ceremonies at the conference's combined office-monument building here yesterday. Watching are the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, director of the N. C. W. C. department of education, and the Rev. Vincent Mooney, C. S. C. (right), director of the N. C. W. C. department of youth

Airport Site Is in Center— Of Controversy

The new National Airport at Gravelly Point is betwixt and between in the raging controversy over jurisdiction.

Yesterday it was revealed that the District has issued a restaurant license at the terminal building while holding up a liquor license because the Commissioners have not agreed just where the flying field is located.

And on top of that, George Damm, Arlington County deputy commissioner of revenue, announced that the restaurant operators would also be required to take out a Virginia license.

There were strong hints of prosecution unless the airport restaurant concessionnaires applied—quickly—for the Virginia permit.

In the Middle

A spokesman for Airport Services, Inc., wouldn't hazard a comment on the next step except:

"We sure are in the middle."

The liquor license question is still being bandied about at the District Building. Both Commissioners Young and Kutz have approved a ruling by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech that "all or a substantial part" of the airport site is within the District.

But Commissioner Guy Mason has yet to agree with his colleagues. He said he wanted "more time" to study the matter from both legal and physical standpoints. He plans to visit the field personally into and look into some boundary decisions of the Supreme Court.

Application for the liquor permit was returned to the Commissioners by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board because Keech's ruling didn't specifically name the terminal building in which drinks would be dispensed.

Ready to Make Refunds

Wade H. Coombs, superintendent of District licenses, said the restaurant permit was issued last Saturday. A barber shop also has been licensed by the District, he added.

"We issued the licenses because we had been instructed by the Commissioner to see that all necessary licenses were issued to the new airport," said Coombs.

He said there was no mention of "jurisdiction."

"If it should turn out that the licenses have been issued erroneously," Coombs declared, "then we will refund the money—$8.25 for the restaurant and $5 for the barber shop."

Sergeant's Whistle Heard 30 Miles

Of course, the sergeant has eyes in back of his head. Now he blows his whistle and it's heard 30 miles! Sergt. John S. Bardwell, 121st Engineers, Twenty-ninth Division, has charge of getting his barrack at Fort Meade in order each morning at 5:45 o'clock. The sergeant, on Saturday morning, was in Washington. Resourcefully, he went to a radio station, getting permission to sound his blast on the air. His barrack, its radio on, leaped to duty.

Archbishop Mooney, Of Detroit, Presides Over Exercises

In a special message, Pope Pius XII bestowed his "paternal apostolic benediction" upon the new National Catholic Welfare Conference Building which was dedicated yesterday at 1312 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, with the Most Rev. Edward A. Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit, laying the cornerstone.

"Holy Father sends congratulations National Catholic Welfare Conference occasion erection new building. Imparts from his heart paternal apostolic benediction and prays that this center of manifold activity of American hierarchy may be blessed by the Almighty God with ever-increasing success for greater benefit of the church," read the message, which was signed by Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state.

The cornerstone was blessed by Archbishop Mooney and a sealed copper box was placed inside. The box contained the message from the Pope, a letter of congratulation from Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Ciognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, a history of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, photographs of Pope Pius XII, President Roosevelt, the administrative board of archbishops and bishops of the N. C. W. C.; various publications of the conference, such as encyclical letters of the Popes, statements issued by the American hierarchy, list of names and photographs of all employes of the conference and a list of all contributors who gave to the building fund.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Rady, general secretary of the conference, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

Archbishop Mooney was assisted by Msgr. Ready and the Right Rev. Leo Binz, of the staff of the apostolic delegation; the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Carroll, assistant general secretary of the N. C. W. C.; the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, director, N. C. W. C.; the Rev. Vincent Mooney, C. S. C., N. C. W. C. youth department; the Rev. Edgar Schmiedler, O. S. B., N. C. W. C. family life bureau director, and the Rev. Paul Tanner, assistant director of the N. C. W. C. youth department.

Union Council Assails 'Brutal Police Practices'

The Washington Industrial Union Council last night condemned "uncivilized and brutal practices" of the Metropolitan Police force, and called for "an end to such unlawful practices as chargeless arrests."

At its semimonthly meeting the council authorized a committee, headed by Jack Cucker, to interview Acting Police Superintendent Edward Kelly and urge him to make known his attiude on alleged malpractices.

Specifically condemned was the recent killing of two Negroes by a District police officer, who was exonerated by a cornorner's jury which ruled he had acted in self-defense. The council last night urged the policeman's immediate suspension and that his case be presented to a grand jury.

Park Police To Add 11 Men For Patrol Duty

The Interior Department yesterday requested the Civil Service Commission to establish a register for 11 additional members of the National Capital Parks police force. There are 80 men in service at the present time.

The new men will be added to patrol remote sections of District parks on horseback, motorcycle and afoot under provisions of the Interior Department Appropriations Act.

In the bill awaiting Senate action which would add 100 police for the protection of District citizens, the Park Police are entitled to the services of seven more men in addition to the 11 already ordered. The seven are provided under a reciprocal arrangement between the Federal and District governments.

No immediate action on the bill authorizing the addition of 100 policemen was foreseen due to the absence of members of the Appropriations Committee. The measure passed the House last Friday and is awaiting action of the Senate committee.

Representative Jennings Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee, said yesterday he hoped the Senate would pass in the near future the vagrancy and habitual criminal legislation which already has passed the House.

Representative Randolph returned to Washington for a few hours yesterday to confer with the Secretary of Agriculture on behalf of the apple growers in his district in West Virginia.

Of the District's new police chief, Maj. Edward J. Kelly, he said:

"I have the highest confidence in his ability and I feel he'll have the united support of the Congress and the community."

War Building Plan Raises Tax Problem

Va. Would Levy On Incomes of D. C. Residents Working In Arlington

Washington residents employed in Federal Government office buildings in Arlington County will be taxed by Virginia on their salaries unless the State's income tax law is amended, it was learned yesterday.

Harry K. Green, Arlington County revenue commissioner whose office handles State income tax returns, said Virginia's law imposing an income tax on money earned within the State would apply to the salaries of Federal employes working in Virginia.

This will affect employes of the Navy Department office building now under construction on Columbia Pike and employes of the proposed 35 million dollar War Department building to be constructed at the south end of Memorial Bridge.

Would Owe Virginia ½%

The Navy building is expected to house 5000 employes and the War Department building, about 40,000. The majority will probably be from Washington.

The bill providing for construction of the huge War Department building — which would be the largest office building in the world —is awaiting White House action.

Virginia's income tax rate is 1½ per cent, Green explained, while the District rate is only 1 per cent. Thus, he pointed out, War and Navy Department employes paying the District tax would still be subject to a one-half per cent tax payable to the State of Virginia, unless a special exemption were made.

Washington residents who claim domicile elsewhere and thus avoid the District income tax would be subject to the entire tax of 1½ per cent in Virginia, according to Green, because Virginia does not recognize domicile other than as place of abode for income tax purposes.

Wouldn't Affect Marylanders

War and Navy department employes living in Maryland and paying the two per cent income tax in that State would not be taxed by Virginia, but would have to make returns, Green said.

Personally, Green said, he would like to see an exemption made in the case of the Government employes working in the War and Navy Department buildings. He pointed out that the increased administrative costs of placing thousands of nonresidents on Virginia's tax rolls probably would amount to more than the revenue derived from this source.

Green said it probably would mean that his office would have to be more than doubled in size and personnel. At present, he explained, his office handles about 15,000 income tax returns from county residents. Over 30,000 returns probably would have to be handled, he said, if War and Navy Department employes working in Virginia were compelled to file tax returns.

Zelditch Named Head of Public Aid for District

Morris Zelditch, 42, until recently chief of tenant selection, United States Housing Authority, and now with the Federal Security Agency, was nominated yesterday as superintendent of public assistance for the District.

The nomination was sent to the Commissioners by the Board of Public Welfare. If approved, Zelditch will replace Otto Cass, who becomes superintendent of the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains.

Zelditch has been in social service work since 1933. In May, 1937, he became chief of social services for the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Department of Public Welfare, and served for a year.

He was then made director of field service for the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance. He came here in 1939.

Zelditch is married and has one child. He lives at 1631 Euclid Street Northwest.

Hefty Venus Who Busted Loose From Garden Found at School

GODDESS OF LOVE—Lieut. A. B. Clark, of the Eighth Precinct, is shown with the bust of Venus recovered by Precinct Detective D. J. Slattery from the Ben Murch school yard. The marble bust had been stolen from the garden of the Oswald F. Schuettes, 3233 Ellicott Street Northwest

Of all places—Venus, the goddess of love, showed up last night in the Ben Murch schoolyard, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott Streets Northwest.

Eighth Precinct Detective D. J. Slattery, who discovered the deity, knew well enough that Venus just didn't belong in the schoolyard. He knew the marble bust ought to be setting on a pedestal in the garden of the Oswald F. Schuettes, at 3233 Ellicott Street Northwest.

But the garden is four blocks away from the school yard, and it is generally known that busts just don't have legs, and even if they did, a piece of statuary is not accustomed to sauntering off.

The 30-inch bust of Venus, so heavy it required two adult men to lift it, disappeared several days ago from the Schuettes garden, despite its weight and its being cemented to the 4-foot pedestal.

Members of the family and police agreed the statue moving was the work of mischievous youths, but they must have been many, or strong if few.

D.C. Jail Needs More Guards, Mason Feels

The District's 1943 appropriation estimates will contain strong recommendations for additional guards at the jail, Commissioner Guy Mason indicated last night.

He visited the Southeast institution on a "get acquainted" tour yesterday, accompanied by Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz.

Mason said he was told that there are only 61 guards—including the superintendent and executive staff—to handle an average daily population of 598 prisoners. These guards, he added, work three shifts, leaving but a few at a time actually on duty.

The Commissioner said he will ask Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning to obtain "facts and figures" on jails in other cities for inclusion in the budget estimates for an increased force here.

"Otherwise," said Mason, "I was very pleased with the entire setup. I had heard there was overcrowding, but there were no evidences during the inspection trip."

Legionnaire Gets Federal Defense Post

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia last night named Henry H. Dudley, of Lincoln, Nebr., to be director of the Veterans Division of Civilian Defense. Dudley is also director of defense for the American Legion.

DUDLEY

The new director saw service overseas in 1918, and was made a lieutenant the following year. He held a reserve commission until 1932, and was then appointed a captain in the Nebraska National Guard.

In the American Legion, he has served as chairman and member of the national rehabilitation committee. He is a member of the Second and Thirty-third Division Associations, the Military Order of the World War, and the National Aeronautics Association.

Congressmen in Caracas

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 18 (AP).—A group of United States Congressmen touring Latin America for study of conditions and in inquiry into operation of diplomatic and consular agencies arrived here by airplane today from Maracaibo.

JuniorChamber Backs Police Safety Unit

Opposition to the abolition or reduction of the accident prevention units in the school board patrol coordination unit of the metropolitan police department was voted last night by the board of directors of the Junior Board of Commerce.

The board, moreover, went on record favoring an increase in the accident prevention unit.

The action was taken by the board as it approved a report of the traffic committee, which said:

"The large volume of traffic safety work that the accident prevention unit has performed in the year it has been in existence, has proven without a doubt the necessity for its continuance."

"The school boy safety patrol coordinators are policemen who visit each school in their precinct once each week and hold meetings of the patrol members. It would be practically impossible to maintain school safety patrols without the supervision of these thirteen police coordinators."

Dr. McMahon Named President Of Texas College

Dr. John LaSalle McMahon, 33 political science professor at Catholic University of America, has been named president of Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio, Tex., it was announced yesterday.

McMAHON

He will take office in the fall, it was said. Dr. McMahon, who makes his home at 1218 Allison Street Northeast with his wife and three children, has been teaching at Catholic University for the past two and one-half years.

He taught political science for five years at Our Lady of the Lake College before coming to Washington. At present he is president of the Catholic Association for International Peace.

Dr. McMahon was graduated from St. Viator College in Bourbonnais, Ill., and Illinois Wesleyan University. He also completed graduate work at the University of Michigan, the University of Illinois and at Catholic University.

Thieves Keep Busy During Vacation

Senator's Aide, Diplomat Report Pilfering While They Were Away

Summer and weekend holidays are fine—if thieves only would take a vacation, too. Such probably was the reaction of two looting victims yesterday.

Lloyd Benefield, secretary to Senator Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, told police yesterday that a tuxedo, two suits and an overcoat, were missing from his office in the Senate Office Building yesterday. He placed their value at $100 and said the theft occurred sometime during the summer.

Sir Owen Chalkley, commercial counselor of the British Embassy, returned to his home at 3010 Cleveland Avenue Northwest yesterday, after a weekend trip, to discover the house had been ransacked. "Nothing of international importance was there," he informed police, "only household goods."

Homer Dunavan, manager of a chain store at 3926 Twelfth Street Northeast, reported a cloth money bag containing about $400 in bills and change had been stolen from under a counter.

Lynn E. White, 1018 Fourteenth Street Northwest, told police someone entered his room while he was asleep and made off with a pocketbook containing $92.

Robbers obtained little for their efforts yesterday at the garage belonging to F. Wells Mattingly, 232 Eleventh Street Southeast. The looters entered the garage by breaking a glass in the front window and removed the cash register from the counter to the rear of the garage. Twenty-five cents was taken.

Robert M. Willis, manager of another chain store at 500 Kennedy Street Northwest, told the police his store was entered over the weekend by breaking a glass in the rear door and removing a bar. Two dollars and 50 cartons of cigarettes were stolen, he said.

Capital News In Brief

Two Excuses Fail To Save Man Fine

A prisoner charged with being drunk, tried twice yesterday to convince Police Court Judge John P. McMahon on justification of his offense. He failed.

The prisoner's first excause was that he had to have a drink Saturday night to relieve his sinus trouble. Judge McMahon said he, too, suffered with sinus, but "they don't find me lying drunk in alleys." Then the culprit said it was the heat, but the judge reminded him it was kind of cool Saturday night and fined the man $15.

In another case, a drunk convinced the judge that maybe the officer erred in making the arrest. But the prisoner continued to protest the arrest until warned, "You'll soon talk yourself into jail." The man made an about face and headed for the door.

2 Policemen Present 15 Drunks in Court

Two policemen, one from the park contingent, had a field day in Police Court yesterday, bringing a total of 15 drunks before Judge John P. McMahon.

Park Policeman E. L. Bartmess lined seven men before the judge, five of whom were arrested on the Smithsonian grounds and two on Judiciary Square in the very shades of Police Court. They were each fined $50.

Policeman G. F. Swank, of the Second Precinct, conducted his drive Sunday while riding in his scout car, hauling in eight prisoners, who were fined a total of $190 by the judge.

Traffic Policeman Has Busy Weekend

Traffic Officer E. L. Watkins conducted his own blitzkreig among Capital motorists over the weekend bringing 13 cases before Police Court Judge George Neilson yesterday.

In one case, Officer Watkins literally "threw the book" at a traffic violator. The man was charged and found guilty of failing to stop at a stop sign, no District permit, no registration card, speeding and driving on the wrong side of the street. He was fined a total of $40.

Gypsy 'Blessing' Costs Newlyweds $25

Police yesterday recorded another "blessing" job by a Gypsy woman who walked into a Washington home to bless a married couple and walked out with their thanks and $25—the latter without their permission.

August Wagner, 807 Eighth Street Northwest, told police the woman had come to their home last Friday to bless him and his wife. The Gypsy woman, he said, is about 30 years old and has gold crowns on her upper front teeth.

Commissioners Again to Study Daylight Time for Capital

Assurances were given at the District Building yesterday that the city heads would again give consideration to the possibility of instituting daylight saving time here when Commissioner John Russell Young returns from his vacation Monday.

Young already has indicated he would favor the change—perhaps the year around—if areas around the District also would agree to setting clocks ahead.

Commissioner Guy Mason, a strong proponent of the plan, said yesterday the Commissioners would meet and discuss the issue again soon after Young's return.

Nearby sections of Virginia are awaiting action here before falling in with the daylight schedule now in effect throughout other sections of the State at the request of Gov. Price.

In order to adopt a daylight saving program here, it was pointed out, special legislation would be necessary. Mason has indicated strongly he will press for such action.

Sympathizers Hedge General In Battle of the Shrubbery

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired chief of chemical warfare, has recruited a goodly number of allies in his "battle of the hedge."

Since he was ordered and refused to clip a 6-foot hedge in front of his home at 3305 Woodley Road Northwest last week, Gen. Fries has been swamped with advice from well-wishers as far away as up-State New York.

"Stand your ground" is the general tone of communications by mail, wire and telephone, he reported.

Meanwhile, District Surveyor Francis Healy said he expects today to receive a detailed report from a field party he sent to the "battleground."

The "yardstick" party was in charge of Walter Rhine. After computing his findings, Rhine will report on whether the hedge occupies public space and falls under District regulations requiring it be no higher than 36 inches.

The hedge has adorned the Fries' home for some 14 years and the general is convinced it is planted on his own property and he has "every legal right" to let it grow as tall as he wants.

The clipping order came last week from Eighth Precinct Policeman W. J. Carroll, who passed by and decided something should be done.

Police, however, have now retreated and the battlefront has shifted to Surveyor Healy's office.

Reiser's Homer in 9th Wins for Dodgers, 6-5

Flock's Six Errors Hurt Fitzsimmons

Outfielder Hits Second Pitch Off Butcher Over Wall; Casey Is Winner

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 18.—Pete Reiser, who lost the National League batting lead and was benched for weak hitting last week, won a game for the Brooklyn Dodgers today when all else failed and increased Brooklyn's first-place margin to a full game over the idle St. Louis Cardinals.

The kid flash smashed his eleventh home run of the season over the right-field wall in the ninth inning to break a tie score and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 5.

Until then the struggle had been a nightmare for the raucous Dodger fans, whose heroes made six errors and gave the Pirates four unearned runs.

Fred Fitzsimmons, veteran knuckle-baller who hadn't lost a game since last August and hadn't been beaten by the Pirates since May 2, 1939, pitched steady six-hit ball for Brooklyn for eight innings, but errors by his teammates kept him from ever getting out of range.

Medwick Homers

In the second inning Pittsburgh loaded the bases with a hit batsman and two fumbles by Lew Riggs and Pee Wee Reese. Then John Lanning, first of four pitchers used by Manager Frank Frisch, shot a sizzling double into the left-field corner for two tallies.

In the seventh Bob Elliott walked, went to second on a wild throw and scored on a two-base error by Dolph Camilli.

The Dodgers made up for these lapses with some lusty stick work of their own. Joe Medwick hit his sixteenth home run to lead off the second, Reiser tripled against the center field wall with two on in the third and Camilli brought him home with a single.

In the fifth Camilli's double and a single by Cookie Lavagetto added another run.

This was the setup before the weird ninth inning which Fitz opened by serving a single to Debs Garms. Manager Leo Durocher sensed the veteran was tiring and rushed Hugh Casey to the mound.

Errors Hurt

Elliott grounded into a force play, but Maurice Van Robays singled him to third. Elbie Fletcher grounded to Dolph Camilli, who threw into center field trying for a double play, Elliott scoring and Van Robays reaching third. Reese fumbled Gustine's grounder and the tying run crossed. But Vince DiMaggio fanned and Pinch Hitter Stu Martin grounded out.

Then Reiser saved the day by leading off Brooklyn's half of the inning with his homer on the second pitch of Max Butcher, who was

Lew Worsham, Bogart Win At Lancaster

By the Associated Press

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 18.—Two Washington, D. C., stars carded a brilliant 7-under-par 65 over the Lancaster Country Club course today to win the sixth annual invitation pro-amateur golf tournament.

Lewis Worsham, pro at the Burning Tree Club, Bethesda, Md., and Ralph Bogart, Washington amateur champion who plays from the Chevy Chase Club, shot ten birdies in carding their 32-33.

Eighty-eight teams, the largest field in the tournament's history, started.

Six teams tied for runner-up honors with 67s. They included Charles Arena and Edward Lynch, Cooper River Club, Camden, N. J.; George Diffenbaugh and George Vass, Washington; Andy Gibson and Spencer Overton, Baltimore, and Bob Barnett and Ralph Quinter, Washington.

Joe Zarhardt shot a 67 to take the pro sweepstakes.

Six teams also tied for third, shooting 68's. They included Bruce Coltart and Jack Penrose, Absecon, N. J., last year's champions, and Herby May and D. Renaghan, Woodcrest, N. J., and Ralph Bruce and Mickey Draude, Lancaster.

Second money in the pro sweepstakes was split by Marty and Tony Lyons of Llanerch, Diffenbaugh, Renaghan and Felix Serafin, all of whom carded 70's.

District of Columbia scores:

Lewis Worsham and Ralph Bogart, Washington, 32, 33—65.

Geo. Diffenbaugh and Geo. Vass, Washington, 33, 34—67.

Bob Barnett and Ralph Quinter, Washington, 34, 33—67.

Fred McLeod and J. Miller, Washington, 36, 33—69.

Al Houghton and John Miller, Washington, 34, 37—71.

Al Treder and H. L. Lacey, Washington, 37, 37—74.

B. Colliage and H. Frost, Washington, 38, 37—75.

Ray Willetti and Maurr Fitzgerald, Washington, no card.

Saratoga Sales Hit Million Dollar Mark

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The eleventh and last yearling auction of the season at the George Street sales paddock brought in $53,200 to horse breeders tonight and sent the total for the season just over the million-dollar mark. Fifty-three yearlings were bid in for an average of $1004.

The consignment of Mrs. Dora V. Kellogg, which included eight yearlings, did not bring a bid above reserve bid and were taken out of the ring.

The highest price tonight was paid by I. J. Collins, of Lancaster, Ohio, who bid $3800 for a fine-looking bay colt by Flying Heels—Sister Theresa, consigned by E. K. Thomas.

During the 11 nights of selling, 570 yearlings went under the hammer for $1,005,800. Last year the total was $1,227,365 for 13 nights, but the averages were almost identical, $1765 this year and $1763 in 1940.

Nats Purchase Young Trenton Hurler—We Think

A sports department 'phone rang for the 11,897th time last night.

"Hello," said a voice." This is Clark Griffith. I want to announce that I've bought a pitcher by the name of Mulligan from Trenton, of the Interstate League."

"Yes, Mr. Griffith. What did you say Mulligan's first name is?"

"Oh—ah—a—first name of John, I think."

It was further revealed that John (I think) Mulligan is a southpaw, stands about 5 feet 11 in his bare feet, has won 10 games and lost as many so far this year, was purchased on the recommendation of Manager Bucky Harris, and will report here September 1.

Net Entries Open

Both officers and civilians are eligible for the War Department's tennis tournament, which will open Sunday on the Reservoir courts. Entries are being taken by George Winnett at Room 4635, Munitions Building, before 5 p. m.

Nats Defeat Indians As Sundra Goes Route

Only 8,365, Smallest Night Crowd in City History, Watch Team Lose Fifth in Row

By Shirley Povich

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—The Nats kept abreast of the vogue tonight and beat the Cleveland Indians. The Indians, acting like creatures of habit, took a 4-2 beating, their fifth straight, and slipped quietly into fourth place in the league standings.

The Indians stopped Steve Sundra's losing streak. The big right-hander who has been knocked out of the box in his last five starts, tonight found somebody he could lick. He did a very thorough job on the Injuns, holding them to seven hits.

Only 8365 Present

The mist-filled evening and the horrible collapse of the erstwhile league-leading Cleveland club, which has lost 13 of its last 14 games, kept most of Cleveland away from the big Municipal Stadium. A new low in night game attendance for the city was established with only 8365 customers present.

The Nats gave young Steve Gromek a violent introduction to the big leagues. In some desperation, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh unveiled the youthful right-hander from the Flint club of the Michigan State League as his starting pitcher, and the Nats slugged him off the premises in four innings. He forced one run across the plate.

Sundra was pretty good. He was quite unrecognizable, in fact, as the inept guy who had been trying to win a ball game for a month with no success whatsoever. He had control, walking only three batters and he made a three-run lead stand up nicely after the fourth inning.

Eisenstat in Relief

The Nats sort of quit on Sundra after getting him four runs. They made only two hits off left-handed Harry Eisenstat in the last five innings, and a couple of times they threatened to kick the ball game out from under Sundra, but he hung in there grimly and got his game.

In fact, Sundra pitched the Nats out of the cellar, which they had been sharing with the St. Louis Browns. The Browns are now the sole possessors of eighth place, and Washington is only 2½ games to the rear of sixth place.

Sundra had to work his way out of trouble as late as the ninth when the Indians had the tying runs on base with one out. Pinch-hitter Beau Bell bounced a scratchy sort of hit off George Archie's shoe tops to commence it. Sundra dispatched Weatherly on a routine fly to Case but he was in trouble when he walked Pinch-Hitter Chubby Dean.

Strategy Works

Then Buck Harris' strategy paid off. Harris had benched Rookie Second Baseman Morris Aderholt in the fifth inning after the lad had misplayed two balls, and turned the job over to Jimmy Bloodworth. On a ground ball by Russ Peters, Bloodworth made a clever pick-up, and routed it around the bases for a double play that fetched the concluding outs.

George Case had a lot to do with winning the ball game for the Nats. He made only two of Washington's nine hits, but they were both potent affairs. He launched a three-run uprising with a single in the third

Football Dodgers Are Lacking Ends As Drills Start

By International News Service

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 18.—A scarcity of ends was noticeable as the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League opened their training at the Hun Junior School here.

Perry Schwartz, who was among the all-league players last season, is a holdout, Owner Dan Topping announced. Topping said he had ordered Schwartz to report to camp on the promise that the contract difficulties will be discussed farther.

A squad of 31 players, including Ace Parker, answered the first practice call. Parker, recovering from a broken ankle sustained in a Piedmont be able to scrimmage for sevmont League baseball game, will eral days, Coach Jock Sutherland said.

61 Redskins In First Drill At San Diego

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 18.—Ready to do or die for Dear Old Sawbuck University, the Washington Redskins began training today for their 1941 campaign in the National Professional League. Despite the fact that the majority of the players had completed a 2,800-mile train ride last night, Coach Ray Flaherty put a squad of 61 through its paces on the nearby Brown Military Academy field.

With Turk Edwards directing the linemen, Flaherty gave the squad a rather stiff workout this afternoon after a morning session devoted mostly to passing out equipment. Following 30 minutes of exercises, the backs and ends chased passes while the forwards labored with the medicine ball. During the last 45 minutes three teams charged around the field.

The weather was all the city officials (who met the train last night) had predicted. Although the sun was bright and warm, a cool breeze whipped in from the nearby Pacific Ocean. One Redskin, who had remarked on the train, "Last year Spokane, this year San Diego, and next year Death Valley," said that he was willing to take it back if there was no change in conditions.

In addition to the 61 in action today, 6 other players, including Steve Slivinski, who had been placed on the doubtful list, will report this week. Here's the complete list:

Centers—Veterans Steve Andrako, Vic Carroll, Mickey Parks, Bob Tichenal. Rookies Morris Buckingham, Ki Aldrich, George Smith.

Guards—Veterans Dick Farman, Steve Slivinski, Clyde Shugart, Clem Stralka, Bill Young.

Tackles—Veterans Jim Barber, Bill Wilken. Rookies Fred Davis, Jim Stewart, Jim Bryant.

Ends—Veterans Wayne Millner, Bob Masterson, Bob McChesney, Sandy Sanford, Rookies Jack Stonebreaker, Joe Aguirre, Ed Clifers, Ed Hiestand, Al Kreuger, Frank Clair, Sam Goldman.

Backs—Veterans Sammy Baugh, Andy Farkas, Frank Filchock, Ray Hare, Bob Hoffman, Ed Justice, Wilbur Moore, Bob Seymour, Dick Todd, Roy Zimmerman, Boyd Morgan. Rookies Ken Dow, Lee Gentry, Ed Tornell, Cecil Hare, Jack Guthrie, Jack Banta, Joe Osmansky.

A taxi driver, informed that the men were football players and were headed for Brown Military Academy, remarked, "That school is really going to have a team this year."

Hank Irked by Army Release Talk

Corpl. Hank Greenberg, erstwhile Detroit Tiger star, appeared a bit irked upon his arrival at the Detroit Airport yesterday when newspapermen bombarded him with questions about a reported request for his release from the Army under the new act exempting men over the 28-year age limit from selective service. "Get away from me" was all the reporters could get from the former $52,000 Tiger player.

Schroeder, Kramer Win In 3 Sets

McNeill and Parker Lost But 4 Games In 1st Round Play Of Title Doubles

By the United Press

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 18.—Paced by defending titlists, Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, the four seeded tandems, advanced without loss of a set through first-round matches in the sixtieth National Doubles Championships today at Longwood Cricket Club.

The 20-year-old Californians, fresh from seven tournament triumphs in eight starts, swung into high gear after an erratic first set to defeat Philip Jamieson and Lyton Dowson, of Brookline, 6—3, 6—0, 6—1.

Their match, played before sparsely-filled stands, was similar to the other three feature encounters in its lack of spectacular tennis. Not a single upset or close contest marked the 15 men's and five women's clashes.

McNeill-Parker Win

The second-seeded duo of national singles titlist Don McNeill, Oklahoma City, and Frank Parker, Altadena, Calif., dropped only four games in defeating young Art Prochaska, Hartford, Conn., and red-haired Blair Hawley, New York, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1.

McNeill and Parker easily trapped their opponents with an acurate and constant stream of short placements.

Gardner Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla., and his new partner, Wayne Sabin, Portland, Oreg., the third-seeded combine, raced through two sets and then experimented to coast to a 6—2, 6—0, 7—5 victory over J. Burge Wilkinson, jr., and Ralph Ellis, of Boston.

Former National Champion Bobby Riggs, Chicago, and Gene Mako, Los Angeles, one-time partner of Don Budge, had too much experience and court strategy for Dan Sullivan, Sacramento, Calif., and Bob Davis, Erie, Pa., winning, 6—1, 6—0, 6—0.

Feature Match

Perhaps the day's best tennis came in the third set of a doubles match between Ed Alloo, Berkeley, Calif., and William Talbert, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Sumner Rodman and Harrison Rowbotham, of Boston.

Alloo and Talbert, both ranked among the Nation's first 20 players, won, 6—3, 6—2, 14—12. Partners for five seasons, the Boston team was consistent, if not brilliant, throughout the final set. Service alternated from the ninth to twenty-sixth games when Rowbotham finally was broken. The point that eliminated New England's top-ranking team was a whistling center-alley placement by Alloo.

In another four-set battle the new midget partners, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, Ga., defeated Gerald Crowther, Los Angeles, and Robert Kerdasha, Woodcliff, N. J., 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 8—6, with the Southerners retrieving ability surpassing the slashing shots of Crowther.

Women Stars Win

Two teams gained the third round in the women's division.

The third-seeded combine of Barbara Bradley and Jane Stanton, of Los Angeles, defeated Ruth Carter, Brookline, and Lois Ladd, Winchester, 6—0, 6—1. Mary Arnold, Los Angeles, and Hope Knowles, Philadelphia, defeated Emily Lincoln, Brookline, and Katherine Hubbell, Dedham, 6—3, 6—3.

The second-seeded pair of Pauline Betz, Los Angeles, and Dorothy Bundy, Santa Monica, Calif., advanced by default.

Ken Overlin K.O.'s Jimmy Marmon In Third Round

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 18 (AP).—Ken Overlin, former world's middleweight champion from Washington, D. C., knocked out Jimmy Marmon, Houston, Tex., in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder tonight.

Overlin weighed 164, Marmon 159.

Stamford, Conn., Semipro Nine Beats Cards, 5-4

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 18 (AP).—The Stamford Pioneers, a semi-pro baseball club, pounced on pitchers Ira Hutchinson and Bill Crouch for nine hits to defeat the St. Louis Cards, 5 to 4, in an exhibition contest tonight before 7,500 fans.

Joe Yaeger, Stamford outfielder, hit a homer in the fourth.

Hutchinson, Crouch (7) and Mancuso, W. Cooper; Moscowitz, Woods (4), Spiers (8) and Salamone.

Wright and James Take Pin Match

Al Wright and Paul James, Arlington Bowling Center duck pinners, appeared badly beaten at the end of the fourth game of their doubles match with Bill Gartrell and Johnny Burger of Takoma Recreation, but won out by 1164—1159. They were 34 sticks behind when James started the ball rolling with his big game of the night, a splendid 150, and with Wright tossed in a 130 score, and the Virginians managed to nose out the Takoma boys. Burger had high game for the night of 158 and a 612 string, while Gartrell posted a 123 single and 337 set.

CLEVELAND CAN SMILE—FINALLY

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—Fact is, the citizens here aren't exactly disgusted with their swooning ball team any more. Disgust has been superceded by amusement at the utter futility of the Indians. Between those two emotions a sort of numbness set in.

POVICH

The good burghers were thrown for an awful loss when the Indians blew their four-game lead in one series with the Yankees in mid-June, and refused now to be concerned with the steadily worsening situation.

We asked our taxicab driver today if the Cleveland fans had quit on the Indians. "No, them guys quit on us," he said. "They're a joke team. Happens every year. They get out in front and get everybody all excited and then they blow. They didn't fool anybody this year. They're the same ball club, only worse."

They are a pretty bad ball club, for a fact. On June 18 they were four games out in front of the Yanks; today they're 18 games behind. They've scored only 15 runs in their last eight games, and if there is a more punchless club in the league, it must be the White Sox.

Even Bob Feller has been reflecting the general collapse of the Indians. A quick look at Feller's record would seem to stymie any complaint with him, but the fact is that he has been a bust for more than a month. He has been beaten six times in his last seven games, and was lucky to escape being charged for a defeat in Washington a few days ago when the Nats knocked him out of the box and got the winning runs off Joe Heving in the ninth.

What Happened to Bob's Fast Ball?

It's common knowledge around the league that Feller isn't throwing his fast ball any more, and the suspicion is that he doesn't have it any more. During the last four weeks, the box scores have been a tip-off. Feller used to strike out eight, ten or twelve hitters per game. In his last start he could fan only one of the White Sox. He has been averaging only three strikeouts per game of late. It doesn't mean Feller has been pitching bad ball. It means that he isn't over-awing the hitters any more, and he doesn't have a hitting club behind him.

There is more than a suspicion, too, that Feller is somewhat worried about his army status. He's a sure shot to be a yard bird before next season sets in, and that never used to worry him. But of late, he has come to realize that it might be for a two and a half year stretch. All of a sudden he has realized that his Army stretch can cost him $100,000 in salaries. He's a pretty good business man for a 22-year-old lad and can assay the benefits of $100,000 with a business man's eye.

The Indians aren't likely to finish either second or third. The Red Sox and White Sox certainly are acting like better ball clubs. Boston has more power than the Indians, and the White Sox have better pitching. Gerald Walker has been the biggest bust on the Cleveland team. As he did with Washington last year, Walker was off to a great start at run-producing, and he was one of the reasons the Indians stepped out in front, but his Washington history is repeating itself. After the first of July, Walker is not able to buy, beg or borrow a base hit.

Another Cause—Lack of Players

One Cleveland baseball writer says he has ferreted out the reasons for the Indians' collapse—(1) that they were a bit overrated and (2) that they are a spiritless, lackadaisical ball club. He seems to have overlooked another pretty good reason why the Indians aren't winning the pennant—not enough good ball players.

The morale charge against the Indians is the most amazing. This was supposed to be the reason when the Tribesmen were supposed to be high on morale. They got Oscar Vitt fired, and were very happy about the selection of quiet-spoken Roger Peckinpaugh as manager. They were supposed to be one big happy family. If the Indians could keep smiling, they'd win the pennant, the Cleveland baseball writers said. Seemingly it takes something more than a smile. The scowling, pouting cry-baby Indians of 1940, were a better ball club.

If Owner Alva Bradley isn't at his wit's (make that singular) end, he should be. He gave the Indians the manager they wanted and look what they gave him. Peckinpaugh isn't exactly the type to inspire any ball club, but Bradley has him under a two-year contract. Out in Portland, Oregon, Oscar Vitt can be pardoned for grinning. And Bradley can not look to 1942 with any relish whatsoever. That's the year when Feller will be in the Army and that will be very sad for the Indians. Somebody's gonna have a second-division club on his hands here in Cleveland.

Grid Star Turns Snooper

Farkas on Haight:

(Andy Farkas, the Washington Redskins' backfield ace, herewith sends a report on our roving reportorial monolith, Walter Haight, who is covering the 'Skins' training period in Southern California. We haven't received a letter from Brother Haight so we submit Farkas' report instead.—Sports Editor.)

Aug. 18, 1941
Far from the Beers

To the Boss of one Walter Haight . . . now working his way out West:

This will be about your ace reporter—he's safe and far from jail, but I think that he is eating Marshall out of house, laundry and the Redskins. Your man is capably covering the affairs of the Redskins and he is not doing a bad job of covering the Lone Star State.

I hope that I don't let any cat out of the bag in this example of freedom of speech, for the man of, "Dear Boss" fame is really quite a man. Thus far he's more news than the Redskins. It ought to be a great training season with him in charge of the entertaining committee . . . his stories should slay the enemy so the season ought to be a cinch.

FARKAS

Your man is a great one for work. You ought to see the sweat roll off his face when he's telling a story. There is a contest on between Dear Bossie and the Redskins fighting manager, Jack Espey. Both these well-conditioned former athletes are attempting to outdo each other in the number of stories told. Dear Bossie goes in for parrot stories and Espey likes the direct type. So far Dear Bossie leads by the tail of a parrot.

This morning Haight was sporting a 10-gallon hat (don't worry, Mr. Ickes; it doesn't use gas, but a lot of gase comes out of it). Dear Bossie makes quite a picture with that hat and a big, black cigar. He almost looks the part of a billionaire oil man. A short while back he slowly arose from his seat, pulled up his pants (which have the habit of sliding off the "muscles" in front of his stomach) and gracefully but seriously dropped the following gem . . . it sounded like if he said it every day . . . "Anybody want to match me for a coupla oil wells?"

Dear Bossie: Will workout with Redskins to give that realistic touch to his stories: He plans to report at 12 noon, work until 1 p. m. and then take an hour off to wind up the day's work. (I should wind this up, but I can't; my subject is too big.)

You have been reading and printing a lot about famous meetings. But you haven't seen anything yet. It—this historical moment—will take place in Hollywood, at the Riviera Country Club. The famous principals will be Dear Bossie, of course, and Oliver Hardy. A picture of these two meetings should rate front or back page. Wire if pictures wanted . . . send camera, too.

Lacy Hurls 5-0 Shutout, Gets 4 Hits

Brewers Open Play In Qualifying Round Of National Event On Ellipse Today

Looking every bit like the champions they have been for the last four years, the Heurich Brewers yesterday walked off with the title in The Washington Post-Industrial League. They earned a berth in the qualifying tourney, starting today, for National Amateur Baseball Federation play in Youngstown, Ohio.

The Brewers' final victim was Little Tavern, 5-0, in the third clash of a playoff on the Ellipse for the Post League crown. And the executioner, as far as Little Tavern was concerned, was long Art Lacy.

Carefully unwinding each pitch from his 6-foot-3 frame, Lacy handed the club which reached playoff action through the medium of a crucial foreit a mere two hits in nine innings. He struck out only five, but his control and backing was as near perfect as possible. Little Tavern never threatened after the Brewmen added a three-run uprising in the third inning to their one-run effort in the first.

In addition to his mound work, Lacy banged out four singles in as many trips to the plate. Huck Stahl, veteran shortstop, gave him the closest competition for batting honors with two for three. The only extra-base blows came off the bats of Heurich's Miller and Hershberger, a double and triple, respectively.

Today the Brewers open N. A. B. F. hostilities in a meeting with the Times-Herald Government League titlist. The game will be on the East Ellipse, at 4:30, with either Downs or Olson hurling for the defending champion Beermen.

Mack Pines For Pitchers Like Bender

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—There'll be some changes made in the Athletics next year, says Connie Mack who isn't at all impressed with his present crop of ball players, although he admits there are a few promising rookies on the horizon.

Somewhere along the line he's going to get some new pictures.

"I'd like to have just one man like Bender, Coombs or Plank," declared the veteran manager who once had all three.

"They knew how to pitch. They knew how to follow directions. They had control. When I said pitch outside to a certain hitter they did. When I said throw a curve ball at the knees they did.

"This present day crop, ugh!"

Mack Has Other Worries

But hurler's aren't Connie's only dissatisfaction. There's third baseman, Pete Suder, whom many consider headed toward bigger things.

"Suder has been somewhat of a disappointment to me," says Connie. "He can't bunt and he hits into too many double plays."

There's First Baseman Dick Seibert who has been having a good season. "But you can't expect him to hit .350," says Mr. Mack.

Connie believes Outfielder Bob Johnson is slipping but "make no mistake, he's a great outfildeer. He gets more walks than some of my men get base hits. He has the finest spirit on the club."

Wally Moses has been handicapped by a shoulder injury but Connie hopes he'll be in shape next season. To replace Moses and Johnson the A's have Dee Miles and Eddie Collins.

Likes Collins' Chances

Connie likes Collins—thinks Eddie will become a great outfielder. But Mr. Mack doesn't like the way Miles plays—thinks he goes hot one day, cold the next.

Shortstop Al Brancato seems to have his post pegged down although Connie says "he can't go to his right very well" but predicts he'll be better next year.

Sam Chapman has passed the examination for the Naval Aviation Corps and plans to enter the service at the close of the season. And Benny McCoy, who was paid $45,000 bonus for signing with the A's, may not be around because of draft, although at the moment he is on the deferred list.

"There'll be a lot of changes around here next year," says Connie.

Two Bowling Leagues Schedule Meetings

Eddie Jeffries has called a meeting of the Rhode Island Businessmen's Bowling League for tonight at the King Pin alleys, the proceedings to commence at 8 o'clock.

Wednesdaynight, also at 8 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the Mount Rainier Men's League at the Mount Rainier alleys, according to Dick Baker, secretary.

Members of both league above are requested to attend and also therose wishing to sponsor new teams in either loop.

Two Women Share Lead In Western

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—Eleanor Dudley, of Chicago, and Mrs. Russell Mann, of Omaha, equaled women's par of 76 over the Exmoor Country Club's course today to share medal honors in the women's Western Golf Association closed championship.

Miss Dudley had birdies on three holes as she compiled her 38, 38—76 card. Four birdies aided Mrs. Mann to hold to even par figures for each nine—37, 39—76. The performances equaled the course record established by Enid Wilson, of England, in the 1933 Women's National.

In third place among the 32 qualifiers was Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak., with a 38, 40—78. The pretourney favorite, Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., registered a 37, 42—79, while her playing partner, Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., reported a 44, 39—83.

Ohio Octogenarian Captures Title of 'Mr. Trapshooting'

Charley (Sparrow) Young, Past 80, Defies Elements to Win Veterans' Championship

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 18.—The boys and girls won a flock of titles today as the 42nd Grand American Clay Target Carnival got under way, and when the smoke cleared away from the greatest opening day barrage the classic has ever witnessed, "Mr. Trapshooting" himself was in the spotlight.

"Mr. Trapshooting," is Charley (Sparrow) Young of Springfield, Ohio, who admits he is past 80 but declares he's still a youngster.

The Buckeye star, winner of the Grand American Handicap in 1926 with 100 in a row, cracked 99 of 100 in the wind and rain today to take the veteran's championship for shooters over 70. Right behind him with 98 was John Peterson, 77-year-old star from Randall, Iowa. R. D. Guptill of Paynesville, Minn., who won the Grand American Handicap away back in 1904, tied for third with H. E. Brown of Kane, Pa., with 95.

Young Fienup teamed with his dad, who had 99 of 100, to take over the father-son championship with 197 of 200, three ahead of Elmer and Dan Torge, of Wales Center, N. Y.

Today's 16-yard event drew 509 entrants, and the handicap had more than 400, with close to 700 different shooters participating. The former opening day record entry of 563 was set in 1929.

R. J. Luttrell, of Alexandria, Va., the only entrant from Metropolitan Washington, missed the prize list with a score of 86x100.

Harmon Named High School Coach At Newport News

By the Associated Press

Newport News, Va., Aug. 18.—Harry Harmon, former All-America honorable-mention guard at Furman University, has been named head coach at Newport News High School, subject to approval of the city school board, it was announced today by Superintendent of Schools Joseph H. Saunders.

Harmon, who succeeds Melville Bryant who resigned to accept a position in the Newport News Shipyard, coached the football team last year at Savannah (Ga.) High. Harmon earned his All America honorable-mention at Furman in the season of 1930. He was also captain of the Purple Hurricane that year.

Harmon is now at South Hill, Va., and will report to Newport News shortly before the inaugural practice, scheduled for Newport News High, September 1.

He will teach science at Newport News High.

Louis' Wife Claims $15,000 Yearly Expense

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Joe Louis asserted on the witness stand today that it cost about $15,000 a year to maintain her station in life as the wife of the World's Heavyweight boxing champion.

Included in her expenses of $1,300 or $1,400 a month, she said, were her table, help, utilities, automobile upkeep, musical education, dentist, doctor, beauty parlor, recreation, entertainment of friends and travel.

Mrs. Louis, the former Mary A. Trotter, testified in a hearing before Master in Chancery Dwight S. Bobb who later will make a recommendation to the Circuit Court on how much temporary alimony she should receive pending trial of her suit for divorce.

She said Louis paid all the bills for her expenses through his managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, and gave her a $100 a week allowance besides.

$100 For Incidentals

"That was for incidentals, for me," she said.

She said she averaged $500 a month for her clothing, including items such as lounging pajamas for $50 and dresses from $50 to $95. Her telephone bill ran from $50 to $75 a month, she said, because she had so many long distance calls to the champion when he was away in training.

Louis had planned to leave tonight for his camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., to train for his fight with Lou Nova in New York September 19, but deferred departure because the hearing will continue tomorrow.

Louis testified that he protested to his wife periodically for more than five years that she was running up too many bills. She denied that, but said that on one or two occasions he objected to bills for items she bought without telling him first.

She filed the divorce suit July 2, alleging cruelty, which Louis denied in an answer. They were married September 24, 1935.

Jug McVay to Coach Spider Lightweights

Richmond, Va., Aug. 18 (AP).—The University of Richmond's 150-pound team, which will compete in the new college league for lighter teams, founded last spring, will be coached this season by Harold (Jug) McVay, captain of last year's Spider varsity football eleven.

Veterans Win Over Justice, Face Heurich

The questionable privilege of meeting Heurich, the defending champion, in the first game of the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament today fell to Veterans Administration nine yesterday when it shut out Justice, 6-0, in the final game of a playoff for the Government League title.

There was never any doubt of the outcome after the third inning of the six-inning clash on the Ellipse. The Vets tallied three times then, and added a single run in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Ten Justice errors helped the Vets' cause as much as the three-hit pitching job turned in for them by Larry Fowler. Walsh, who went the distance for the losers, gave up six safeties but struck out 12 to Fowler's one.

Willie Turnesa Out Of National Amateur

Detroit, Aug. 18 (AP).—Willie Turnesa announced today that he would not compete in the National Amateur golf championship August 25 to 30 at Omaha because of business demands.

Turnesa, who won the title in 1938 at Pittsburgh, was automatically qualified as a former champion. He had competed in nine consecutive amateur tournaments.

Indians May Lose Trosky, Boudreau For Rest of Season

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—A couple of injured Cleveland Indian infielders learned today they might be out of action the rest of the season.

Hal Trosky, currently hitting .294, went on the shelf for "at least several weeks" as Dr. E. B. Castle, club physician, found the first baseman received a double fracture of the left thumb in his collision with Ted Lyons in the first game of yesterday's double-header at Chicago.

Shortstop Lou Boudreau, generally regarded as the Tribe's sparkplug although he is batting only .256, has a possible incisional hernis—a rupture of an incision for the appendectomy he underwent last fall. He strained his side in the seventh inning of yesterday's opener.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh ordered Oscar Grimes to take over first base and assigned Russ Peters to Boudreau's position.

Archibald Leaves For Los Angeles Bout

New York, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Joey Archibald, recognized by New York State as featherweight champion, entrained tonight for Los Angeles, where on August 26 he will meet Richard Lemos in a nontitle ten-round bout. Lemos is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association. Archibald was accompanied by Manager Al Weill and his undefeated junior welterweight, Marty Servo, who will campaign in California.

Healey Is Named Laurel Steward

Laurel, Md., Aug. 18 (AP).—Maj. Goss L. Stryker, president of the Maryland State Fair, Inc., which operates the Laurel race track, today announced the appointment of Thomas J. Healey as steward representing the association for the meeting opening October 1.

Healey, who has been connected with racing for about 40 years, trained for the late Richard T. Wilson for more than a quarter of a century and later handled the horses of Walter J. Salmon, Harry Payne Whitney and C. V. Whitney. He saddled four Preakness winners, Pillory in 1922, Vigil in 1923, Display in 1926 and Dr. Freeland in 1929.

Green Hornet Is Back on Mat Card Thursday

The Green Hornet will be around Turner's Arena Thursday night in the hope of redeeming himself for last week's defeat at the hands of Pat Fraley.

The Hornet yesterday was matched against Angelo Leone, the peppery little villain from New York in a special match.

Headlining the weekly matfest will be a two-man bout. In this tandem scrap Ernie and Rudy Dusek, of the notorious "Riot Squad," will attempt to check the five-match winning streak of Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman.

Dorimar Scores Surprise Victory in Hurricana Handicap

Cis Marion Beaten Out In Stretch

'Good Thing' Bows To Late Drive of Victory; Mary Schulz Takes Show Spoils

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Dorimar, a stablemate of Our Boots from the Woodvale Farm Stable of the Royce G. Martins, regained her best form with a bang here this afternoon when she scored a surprise victory over the fillies and mares opposed to her in the featured Hurricana Handicap. Last in the early stages of the 1 mile test, the Man o' War 6-year-old drove up on the inside in the stretch to register with ease by a length and a half. Her backers drew down $18.40 for two. The time was 1:39 flat.

E. K. Bryson's Cis Marion, a Pimlico Oaks winner, finished second in the role of an intended "good thing" and favorite. Charles Stern's Mary Schulz followed, two lengths behind. A crowd of 9,767 was on hand as the final two weeks of the successful meeting began under ideal weather conditions.

McCreary Supplies Touch

Dorimar ran with considerable success at Hialeah Park last winter. Since that campaign, she raced in handicaps at Delaware, Suffolk Downs and Arlington Park, but lacked her Florida form. The much-traveled filly today raced like she did in Florida. She did not seem to have a chance until little Conn McCreary "got her to running" around the last bend. McCreary sent her through the hole along the rail and his mount staged a Whirlaway finish, except that she was on the inside while drawing clear of Cis Marion.

Mary Schulz and Maemante hooked up in a suicidal duel, both faltering in the stretch. Cis Marion, which had been aiming at the front pair, looked a winner until Dorimar thrilled the crowd with her great rally.

Bill Cunningham's Column

Molar Missing? Have It Yanked

This is not a column but a lodge report. It's about that impacted wisdom tooth, and don't say that's a heck of a subject for a Tennyson of the T Formation. This is a personal matter, but let me explain that I've had upwards of 1000 serious letters asking how I ever made out.

Cunningham

Let me further explain that none of these ladies or gentlemen was asking because they thought I was sweet, or too nice a guy to have aches and pains. To the man, and gal, some dentist had told them they had an impacted wisdom tooth, that it ought to come out, that the ordeal would be pretty tough, but that the ultimate pay-off would be worth it.

While they were trying to draft the necessary courage, I drew the same sentence and had to go through wit it. All being fish that comes to this net, I wrote a piece about it on a rainy day. To judge from the mail, this vast and unorganized lodge of Folks-Who-eally named me the organizational Ought-To-Have-It-Done automatiguinea pig, and decided to postpone the decision until they got a final report.

Well, Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, this is it coming up.

Some three or four years ago, the capable and conscientious suburban dentist who puts an occasional polish on my personal china informed me that I was possessed of an impacted wisdom tooth and that it "ought to come out."

"Why?" said I, "I'm not having any trouble with it. Nothing's the matter with me. I feel fine. Do you want to wrestle?"

Well, time passed, as the pickpocket said when he lifted the watch, and I hadn't seen this dentist, or any other, on serious business for, maybe, a couple of years. They were healthy years, but increasingly strange ones in any physical experience I could ever recall. I kept getting sleepier and dopier and more exhausted all the time. Finally, I had about as much bounce as a superannuated watermelon.

With the physical end seemingly O. K., I figured the trouble was brain-fag—or am I bragging? I was sitting home one morning back there in the winter, trying to summon sufficient energy to loft myself out of that living room and go interview somebody, when the family doctor came in to view one of the younger generation. Merely by way of greeting, as he passed the living room door, he called a polite, "How are you?"

And merely by way of returning it, I responded a word that rhymes with "frowsy," and went on reading the paper.

"What's the matter?" said he.

"That's just it," said I, "nothing. Yet I'm dead. I've got no pickup."

"Ummmh!" he ummmhed, "let's see your blood pressure."

They gave me the business. They X-rayed and Z-rayed. They drew blood and measured oxygen. They checked sinus and tonsils, spark plugs, generator and ignition. Finally the full report, looking like an income tax report, came back.

They couldn't be sure until it was taken out. The medics decoded, but the X-rays revealed that I had an impacted wisdom tooth, and there was a large possibility that it was draining poison into my system. It must be taken out immediately. I thought of my little pal of two or three years before, and said "I told you so" for him.

Well, I had the blasted thing out—and "blasted" is approximately the word. Brethren, it's no picnic. That reaction struck like a Joe Louis right and the throb in that jaw bone when the dope at last wore away was nothing I'd voluntarily elect again. The actual removal is expert and painless. That aftermath is something to prepare to endure. It isn't excruciating agony, but it's there and it's bad and you've got to be prepared to take it for a week or ten days. I wouldn't want to kid you. I promised to tell you.

But it's the ultimate payoff, you wanted to know about. It works, mates. It does the trick. It is positively the only thing to do.

That was just about an even five months back, and all that dragged-out, slowed-down, washed-up and wrung-out business has gone the way they said it would. My advice is, by all means, grit your teeth and go ahead.

And now, if that report is moved and seconded into the minutes, we'll proceed henceforth under the order of new business.

Navy Gets Jump on Rivals, Launching Early Grid Practice

Coach Larson Is Greeted By 100 Boys

Initial Practice At School Visited By Injury Jinx; Two Sophomores Ailing

By Dave Nopper
Associated Press Staff Writer

Annapolis, Aug. 18.—Prof. Swede Larson jumped the gun on other Eastern football tutors by summoning approximately 100 middies to Navy's first football practice of the 1941 season today and found that unwelcome visitor, the injury and sickness jinx, already on hand.

Two promising sophomores, Warren Montgomery, quarterback, and Charles Becker, 205-pound tackle, were unable to answer the roll call because of ailments. Montgomery has a badly infected foot and Becker has contracted meningitis. Both are expected to be out for weeks.

Navy, however, has a wealth of sophomore material to bolster its two 1940 teams which won six games, tied one and lost two.

Only Eight Lettermen Absent

While many of their opponents have been hard hit by graduation and the draft, the Middies have lost only eight lettermen from last year's first and second elevens. With the undefeated 1940 plebe team filling the gaps, Navy supporters anticipate one of the Academy's outstanding football machines this fall.

Heading the regulars who turned out for today's one-hour conditioning session were Capt. Bob Froude, end; Gene Flathmann and Dick Chewning, tackles; Vito Vitucci, guard, and Bill Chip, Sherry Werner and Bill Busik, backs.

Other veterans on hand today were Alan Cameron, Sammy Boothe, Phil Gutting, Wes Gebert, Howie Clark and Johnny Harrell, backs; Jim Donaldson and George Ringenberg, centers; John Hill and Hoe Sliwka, guards; Dick Opp and Joe Donohoe, tackles; Lars Wanggard, Willis Maxson, Bob Zoeller and John McTighe, ends.

Only Light Work on Tap

The squad practiced in shorts and light conditioning will continue until Septmeber 1 when football togs will be issued for heavy sessions.

On the Middies' nine-game schedule are William and Mary, West Virginia, Lafayette, Cornell, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Princeton and Army, in order.

Larson said Commander J. E. Weichel, U. S. N., who quarterbacked the Navy eleven some 20 years ago, would assist Keith Molesworth in coaching the backfield. Rip Miller, one of Notre Dame's famous "seven mules," and Ray Schwartz will handle the linemen again.

Here's what Larsen has to say about the opponents:

"Carl Voyles (W. and M. coach), now in his third year, will be tougher than ever. The past two years we have won due to manpower, coming out ahead in the last half. He is definitely in better shape than last year and if he is not hit too hard by the draft will have an A1 team against us.

"Despite the loss of several good men Bill Kern feels that his University of West Virginia team will be ready for a big year. He has the best collection of sophomores in the history of the school and his team will be well coached and hard to take.

"At Lafayette, Hooks has lost several good boys, but his prospects for another great team are as good as last year's when he went through undefeated.

"Carl Snavely (Cornell coach) has lost a great number of veterans, but has a powerhouse coming up. Joe Martin, a sophomore, will be hard to stop.

"I frankly don't know what Dick Harlow has at Harvard. Harvard will be a rugged, well-coached club, that much we do know.

"George Munger (Pennsylvania's mentor) lost Regan, Frick and several others who will be difficult to replace. However, he has a good sprinkling of veterans and the best freshman team in years coming up. They, too, will be tough.

"Notre Dame will be in there as fast and hard as ever before.

"Ted expects another fine team at Princeton.

"West Point, Early Blake, with his entire staff from Dartmouth, will be set for a great year."

The Slide Was Futile—So Was the Throw to First Base

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Cincinnati Stortstop Eddie Joost took a full slide into second base but was out as Danny Murtaugh, of the Phils, whipped the ball to first trying for a double play. The throw was late. Action was in the double bill in Philadelphia yesterday, the Reds winning both games

Phils Revert To Old Habits, Drop Twin Bill

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—The Phils reverted to their usual habits today, dropping two games to Cincinnati's Reds, 13-5 and 5-4.

Yesterday the tail-end Phils won their first doubleheader of the season against New York.

The Reds had little difficulty in the opener, taking advantage of eight Phil miscues afield to score nine unearned runs. They ran up 10 runs in the first two innings.

In the second, the Phils jumped into a 3-0 lead in the third on Stan Benjamin's single, Joe Marty's double and Nick Etten's home run. But in the seventh, with one Red run in, Harry Craft homered with two aboard to count three more. The world's champs counted another in the eighth.

225-Pound Cops and Fireman Seek Dash Crown at Field Day

Lone Flame-Putter-Outer Attempts To Stop Three Car-Taggers on Saturday

Although drawing a slim field of four entries the 75-yard dash for men weighing more than 225 pounds promises to abound in comedy during the track meet Saturday at Griffith Stadium between the Police and Firemen as part of their annual benefit field day

Entered from the Bluecoats are Al Farrell, former University of Maryland boxing star, attached to No. Owen W. Davis, of No. 7. The lone 5; H. D. Williams, of No. 4 and firefighter, and an audacious gent who says he is willing to wager his month's earnings he will win, is H. B. McDonald, of 7th Battallion.

Although greatly outnumbered the firemen hope to make up in track quality what they lack in quantity.

There are some 20 track events on the board with 300 men participating.

Manager, Trainer, coach Herb Jewell, of No. 4 precinct, will hold the next to the last workout of his Police softball team today at 5 p.m. at Hoover Playgrounds. Jewell says he is carving out a "red hot" ball club from the various precincts, and hopes to avenge last season's defeat at the hands of the firemen. The score was 10-4. George Burdine pilots the firemen, who will be heavy favorites.

The softball game opens the show at 11 a.m., and following this will come the track meet; drills by the Police and Fire teams; stunts by Sgt. Tony Richitt's motorcycle speed demons.

As a warning of what to expect when the Police and Firemen ball teams clash was served yesterday when the law enforcers defeated the Southwest All-Stars, 17-4, on the Hoover Playground at N and Second Streets Southwest.

Stellar Field Vies Tonight At Speedway

A select field of little cars manned by some of the leading drivers of the country will compete in the first annual Southern States Midget Automobile Racing Derby of 50 laps, or 12½ miles, at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway tonight.

A capacity crowd of 10,000 persons is anticipated for the Dixie Derby and six supporting races starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Tonight's entry list will include the first 10 point scoring leaders at West Lanham. Outstanding among these is Mike Joseph, the Philadelphia favorite, who is pacing the Lanham field with 33 points. The others are: Second, Len Duncan, 277; third, Ernie Gesell, 259; fourth, Jim Forte, 227; fifth, Henry Steiger, 193; sixth, Johnny Ringer, 182; seventh, Andy Furci, 153; eighth, Walt Walker, 130; ninth, Andy Devercelli, 114; and tenth, Joe Sheppard, 110.

Other outstanding contestants are: Ted (The Kid) Tappett, winner of the recent 40-lap Atlantic States Derby at West Lanham; Bill Schindler, one-legged favorite who has established two track records on the new track, and Bill Troutwine, Midwestern menace with a great record. Frank Beebe, Bill Baker and Bob Albright also are to compete.

Tappett, Gesell, Joseph, Schindler and Duncan are numbered among the best drivers in the little car game and should provide their quota of thrills. Gesell and Joseph are the only drivers to have won two races at West Lanham while Tappett has been the hottest driver in the East within the past six weeks.

Sylvester Breen Will Be Honored On Sports Night

Sylvester A. Breen, veteran of 25 years at the head of sandlot sports in nearby Virginia, will be honored by a double-header ball game next Tuesday night in Alexandria, all proceeds to go into a gift for one of the most popular sports figures hereabouts.

In the first battle, the softball team of A. B. B. W. Transit will meet an all-star aggregation, followed by a baseball game between the Art Welders and Hume Spring nine.

So far Clark Griffith, Walter Johnson, Joe Judge, Nick Altrock and every member of the Alexandria city council have accepted invitations to attend the program.

Poland, Blunt Arrive for Fight Training

Both Eddie Blunt and Bill Poland, rugged heavyweights who are to oppose over a scheduled 25 round distance at Griffith Stadium a week from tomorrow night, are to report at Turner's Arena this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Originally scheduled to put in an appearance here yesterday, both boys requested, and were granted, a final day of training in New York gymnasiums. Manager Jack Kearns arrived here from New York yesterday morning and disclosed that Poland was putting in final licks at Stillman's gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

From Brooklyn Abe Kettler, manager of Blunt, wired Promoter Joe Turner as follows:

"Blunt will arrive in Washington Tuesday. Has been working like a Trojan here past three weeks. Yesterday flattened two sparring partners. Is in great shape and as confident as he was in winning over Baer, Simon and Musto. Wants Joe Louis as next opponent.

Big Ben Morez, 7-foot, 300-pound heavyweight who is to box Jabbo Kenner in a special six, also is expected to report today while Pat Comiskey, Lee Savold and Claude Villar, also on the card, will show up later in the week.

Giants Reverse Form, Defeat Bruins Twice

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 18.—Rebounding from Sunday's double defeat by the Phillies, the Giants bowled over the Chicago Cubs in both ends of a double-header today, 6 to 4 and 7 to 1.

Hal Schumacher pitched seven-hit ball in the opener to beat Claude Passeau in a battle marked by bunched hits, then Cliff Melton came through with a four-hit job, pitching shutout ball after the first inning.

Home runs by Phil Cavarretta and Lou Stringer accounted for three of the Cubs' first-game runs and gave them an early lead, but the Giants came back to clinch the decision with three runs in the sixth on hits by Babe Young, Hank Danning and Bill Jurges and two walks.

Georgia Governor 'Stumps' for State Football Squad

By the Associated Press

Atlantic, Aug. 18.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge will accompany the University of Georgia football team for its game with Columbia University in New York October 18 "to help 'em get up a crowd," he said today.

The Georgia chief executive recently has criticized "the teachings" of Columbia.

The Governor said he would invite the Governor of South Carolina to join him at the South Carolina-Georgia game in Athens October 4 and the Governor of Mississippi for the Georgia-Mississippi game in Athens October 11.

Nats Defeat Indians, 4-2, Under Lights

inning and in the fourth he crashed a mighty triple over Center Fielder Campbell's head for a run.

At one point in the ball game, the Indians had a 1-0 lead. That was in the second inning when Ken Keltner slugged a tremendous home run over Doc Cramer's head to the running track beyond. It was his nineteenth of the year, an inside the park affair.

Gromek Blows Up

And then the Nats let young Gromek have it, and vice versa. With one out in the third, Case singled to left and Cramer crashed a line drive double to right that moved the fleet Case all the way home. Buddy Lewis rapped a single to right and Travis singled to center for the fourth straight hit off the rookie, and the second run of the inning was home. There was some difficulty about scoring the innings third run. With men on first and third, Vernon fanned for the second out, but Archie drew a walk to fill the bases and Gromek then walked Early to force in a run.

Sundra had a 4-to-1 lead after the fourth. Case banged his triple to center with none out, and Cramer fetched him home with a short fly to Walker, whose throw to the plate was tardy.

Aderholt put Sundra in something of a mess in the fourth inning, but the pitcher got out of it. Heath was credited with a single when the rookie misplayed his ground ball, and a bit later, with one out and a double play in sight, Aderholt threw wild to Travis on Keltner's grounder. Eventually the Indians had the bases filled, with one out, and the count was three balls and no strikes on Desautels, but Sundra got him on a popup and then struck out Pinch-hitter Larry Rosenthal on a 3 and 2 pitch.

Nat Notes

The Indians cut Sundra's lead to 4-2 in the seventh when Eisenstat sliced a double to left and scored on Campbell's single to center. Sundra tried to sew up his own game in the eighth when with two on after Archie doubled and Bloodworth walked he walloped a tremendous drive to center field, but Campbell speared the ball with a diving, backhand catch . . . Cecil Travis bolstered his batting average with two hits in four times up, and is now only five hits behind Joe DiMaggio for the honor as the best hit maker in the league . . . Archie turned in the best infield play of the game when he raced in for a barehand pickup of Grimes slow grounder in the eighth . . . Tomorrow, Ken Chase will pitch against the Indians, if his blistered finger has healed . . . If it hasn't, it's your guess . . . The Indians will send Chubby Dean against the Nats . . . Young Gromek struck out six Nats in his four-inning turn tonight.

Two Knockouts Mark Amateur Bouts at Arena

A brace of knockouts featured the 10-bout boxing card, sponsored by the District of Columbia A. A. U., and staged at Turner's Arena last night. This was the third amateur show of the summer, and some 500 fans were thoroughly pleased with the offerings of the slug-for-fun kids who made up in enthusiasm whatever was lacking in finesse.

The most pleasing bout of the evening was put on by Lew Hanbury, Merrick Boy's lethal puncher, who chilled Francis (Kid) Smith, a game lad from the St. Mary's Club, after 1:45 of the final stanta. The slender Hanbury dropped Smith for a fine-count just before the end of the second round. Smith came back with a rush at the opening of the third, but Larruppin' Lew parked his right on the Smith jaw, spinning the Alexandrian through the ropes for a sleeper.

Holland Stops Hubsher

The other knockout, one of the technical variety, was engineered by Tom Holland, of the Red Shield Club. Holland swarmed over Don Hubsher, Apollo A. C. battler, from the bell and Referee Ray Bowen stopped the punishment after 1:45 of the opening round. Hubsher was still trying, and wanted to continue.

One of the best fights of the show, and the most controversial, was the nightcap, which brought together Dick Mullins, of National Training School, and the little Benny Rodill, the Red Shield ace.

Mullins took a very close decision in a bang-up scrap which left the fans still arguing on the way out. Both youngsters opened with a brand of slugging which would put some of the present crop of pro pugs to shame, and were even until seconds before the second frame ended.

At that point, Mullins, who took a close bout from Benny in the last Golden Gloves tournament, floored Rodill with a flurry of rights and lefts to head at the bell. The swarthy Rodill, who was spotting his adversary height, reach and several pounds, came back strong in the final round and put up a clever exhibition of counterpunching. The judges were split on the decision and Referee Bowen cast his vote for Mullins.—OSCAR ELDER.

District Junior Golfers Scarce for Intercity Match

Joe Barse to Captain 10-Man Team In Baltimore Tomorrow; Skinker Out

Joe Barse, the 17-year-old Roosevelt High School golfer and four-handicap man at Columbia Country Club, is having his troubles lining up a representative team of junior golfers for the Washington-Baltimore inter-city match tomorrow at the Bonnie View Club, in Baltimore.

Earle Skinker, the logical No. 1 player, is out of town, Tom Brandon, the District Junior titlist, is working, while the Willett brothers, Carroll and Alton, are also working and unable to get away for the match.

Barse is uncertain about Dick Meyer, the Manor Club champion and George Vass, the consistent runner-up in junior affairs but he hopes to land both for the match. He will have Bill Cassedy, the Maryland junior champion, Charles Price, a four-handicapped amatuer from Indian Spring and Buster Mrstik, a schoolboy standout from Bannockburn.

Barse and Arthur Myers, Bill Brownrigg and Billy Griffin will all represent Roosevelt High on the team, while the Manders brothers, Logan and Norman, will round out the 10-man squad.

Eddie Johnston, the Middle Atlantic Junior champion and National Amateur qualifiers will captain the Baltimoreans.

Jack Hoerner Steals Spot in Chicago Golf

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Paraphrasing the nursery rhyme, Big Jack Hoerner didn't stand in a corner in the Great Lakes Amateur Golf Championship today—he took it over.

The husky Chicago star put together nines of 36, 32 for a 5-under-par 68 that gave him qualifying honors against a field jammed with eligibles for next week's National Amateur Championship battle at Omaha, Nebr.

Among them are Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, Wash., and Ray Billows, of Dutchess, N. Y., twice a finalist in the National Amateur event. Hoerner will play at Omaha.

Other Stars Shine

But while the young Chicagoan walked off with the day's scoring honors—with a round marked by four straight birdies on the back nine—the tourney's initial program was featured by the steady play of several stars accorded bright chances of doing things in the big Nebraska test.

In addition to Ward and Billows, such simon-pure swingers as Willford Wehrle and Frank Stranahan, holder of the trans-Mississippi title, demonstrated they have their games in shape for amateur golf's biggest show.

Wehrle was particularly impressive, fashioning a four under par 66 despite a six on the part four eighth hole, where his ball lodged in a hole at the end of a trap. The young Chicago star, a semifinalist in the National Amateur last year, had nines of 35-34 over the wooded and heavily trapped Knollwood course. Other par-busters were Johnny Lehman, of Chicago; Bob Babbish, former Western amateur champion, now a corporal at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and Art Doering, of Chicago. All had 72's.

Ward Scores a 74

Ward, winner of the National Amateur in 1939 and among the favorites for next week's test, had a 74 despite two three-putt greens on the back nine. This total was matched by Stranahan.

Billows, who failed to qualify for the National Amateur but got in as two qualifiers withdrew, had a 73, as did John Barnum, winner of the Mexican amateur title the past two years and another National Amateur eligible.

Gus Moreland, of Peoria, Ill., former Western Amateur champion and Walker Cup star, had a 77, just managing to qualify for the match play battle opening with a double round tomorrow.

Earl Stewart, of Dallas, Tex., the National Intercollegiate champion, qualified with a 75.

Pro-Amateur, C.B.S. Tourney On Golf Card

A Maryland State pro-amateur tournament at Congressional and the C. B. S. Cup play for the Class B women golfers at Chevy Chase are competitive golf attractions today.

A field of 84 women golfers will compete for the gross and net prizes in the last of the women's events this month. Next scheduled event is the Corby Cup, September 5.

The State pro-am play at Congressional will be another of the pro-three partner affairs, with a sweepstakes for the pros and handicap play for the amateurs on the side. Entry fee in each event will be $2 for the paid clan and $1 for the simon pures. Half handicap allowance will be used in the pro-am.

Friday is the entry closing date for the Maryland State father-and-son championship, to be played Sunday over the Five Farms course in Baltimore. Names are being received at 16 McClellan Place, Baltimore.

The usual Washington representation is preparing to leave over the weekend for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and the annual Mason and Dixon Championship, which will run all next wek. Meanwhile, Ralph Bogart is looking over the train schedules to Omaha, Nebr., for the National Amateur Championship, which starts Monday. The city champion will be the only local representative.

Bob Bensinger Wins Twice At D. C. Nets

Displaying his usual flashy form, Bobby Bensinger, D. C. junior racquet champ, raced through a pair of matches yesterday at Rock Creek courts to feature action in the District of Columbia Recreation Department's Fall Open Tournament.

In his first encounter, unseeded Bobby handed Ben Jaffe a 6—0, 6—3 defeat after trailing in the second set. He lost only one point in the last four games. After a short rest he came back to down Henry Levin, 6—0, 6—0, to enter the third round.

All matches went as anticipated, with only one going more than two sets. That was in the women's singles quarterfinals where Margo Lee Mahony eliminated Joan Bransford, 6—0, 2—6, 6—0.

Today's pairings, calling for play in all divisions, are featured by Bensinger's tangle with Brinkerhoff in the men's section and Frances Rowan's engagement with Margaret Graham in the woman's.

Yesterday's Results

Second round, men's singles—Bensinger defeated Levin, 6—0, 6—0.

Finance Units See U. S. Rules On Credit Fair

Bankers and installment finance company officials praised yesterday the reasonableness of the tentative consumer credit regulations issued by the Federal Reserve Board and pledged their support of the board's effort to place checks on inflation by making credit terms less easy for the buying of goods that would compete, directly or indirectly, with the defense program.

Speaking for the Nation's commercial bankers, many of whom make personal loans and provide credit accommodation to finance companies, John Burgess, acting chairman of the consumer credit council of the American Bankers Association, said:

"For some time the consumer credit council of the A. B. A. has recognized that installment sales' equity payments were becoming too small and maturities were being unduly stretched. The standards of practice and creed promulgated last spring by the consumer credit council of the A. B. A. were an attempt to correct voluntarily such evils as far as banks were concerned.

"The consumer credit council of the A. B. A. will cooperate to the fullest extent with the Federal Reserve Board in every way and especially by attempting to interpret to member banks and others the regulations when they are issued, with a view of securing prompt and complete compliance."

A. O. Dietz, president of Commercial Investment Trust, said: "The installment credit regulations announced by the Federal Reserve Board are entirely fair. The principles of the regulations are, in their present form, equitable and should allay all apprehension that the controls to be exercised under the President's recent executive order might be arbitrary and unfair. They are neither.

"The Federal Reserve Board again demonstrated its ability to act constructively. That program submitted by the board corrects certain present competitive excesses by way of credit liberality and establishes sound standards for the long pull. Commercial Investment Trust gives unstinted praise to the board for its effective program and gives such a program complete support."

A. E. Duncan, chairman of Commercial Credit Co., sent a telegram to Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, in which he said the proposed program for installment financing was sound and constructive and would have "our hearty support."

Follow Council Terms

The regulation's specifications as to down payment and maturity of time sales financing credits follow the same general line as the terms recommended by the consumer credit council in June. It was noted that the board held in general in its regulation to an 18-months' term for payment.

The regulations fix a 20 per cent down payment for refrigerators and stoves, against a 15 per cent recommendation by the A. B. A.'s consumer credit council, but the regulations match the down payment recommendation in the case of washing machines, ironers, vaccum cleaners and radios. The board would allow 18 months in which to pay for washing machines, ironers, vacuum machines, compared with 12 months recommended by the council.

Earnings Reports

Rayonier, Inc., paper manufacturer, reported consolidated net profit of $834,963, equal to 57 cents on common stock, for the three months ended July 31, compared with $1,085,552, or 80 cents a common share, in the like period of 1940. The company's statement showed an increase of $29,228 in net income before Federal taxes for the 1941 quarter over 1940, but Federal tax provisions $279,797 higher at $1,209,337 more than wiped out the increase.

Boeing Airplane Co. and domestic subsidiary, Boeing Aircraft Co., reported consolidated net profit for the first half of 1941 of $2,011,361, or $1.85 a capital share, compared with net loss of $69,174 in the like 1940 period.

P. G. Johnson, president, said deliveries during the period totaled $26,888,110 and that new business booked totaled $153,232,877. The backlog of unfilled orders on June 30 was $322,867,214, compared with $196,522,446 on December 31. Provision was made in the first half of 1941 for $1,413,468 of Federal taxes.

Allied Mills, Inc., and subsidiaries for the year ended June 30 showed net profit of $1,600,153, equal to $1.97 a share, against $1,393,939, or $1.71 a share in the preceding year.

Armstrong Cork Co. and domestic subsidiaries reported net profit for the six months ended June 30 of $2,592,281, equal to $1.69 a share on common stock, compared with $2,114,655, or $1.42 a share in the first half of 1940. Federal tax provision in the 1941 period was $2,918,749 against $55,000 in the 1940 six months.

Union Pacific Railroad system reported net income for the six months ended June 30 of $5,782,465, equal to $1.70 a share on common, against $3,858,664, or 84 cents a common share, in the like 1940 period. June net income was $2,413,805, compared with June, 1940, net of $1,363,231.

Jewel Tea Co., Inc., reported net earnings for the 28 weeks ended July 12 wre $758,031, equal to $1.35 a common share, compared with $733,761 or $1.31 in the corresponding period of 1940. The company reported sales for the 1941 period were 32.6 per cent above those in the 1940 period, and operating expenses 17.93 per cent higher.

Bank Loans Up 59 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Business loans of banks resulting mostly from the defense program, rose for the sixteenth consecutive week in the seven days ended August 13.

The Federal Reserve Board said that in 101 leading cities, banks boosted commercial, industrial and agricultural loans to 59 million dollars during the week. In these cities, this type of loans reached $6,146,000,000, which was $1,685,000,000 more than a year ago.

The largest increase last week was 35 million dollars in New York City.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on August 13, together the increase or decrease since the previous week and the corresponding week last year, (in millions of dollars):

Business Highlights

Material and labor shortages, and other influences of the defense program, will prevent further important gains in the Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production, which reached a new all-time high of 162 in July. The rise in automobile production in coming months will probably be less than seasonal; steel operations may decline moderately because of scrap shortages; the building industry will soon be hit by material priorities; the silk industry, of course, will be severely restricted. In addition to these major lines, the next few months will witness curtailment in a host of smaller industries. Indeed, the current half-year is likely to mark a major transition period from peacetime to wartime production. During this period, temporary dips in production, employment and trade are in prospect.

Warplane Production

Reflecting the substantial additions to productive capacity which have been made since the first of the year, output of warplanes rose from an annual rate of little more than 12,000 in January to bettter than 18,000 in July. During the first six months of the year a total of 7423 planes was produced. This compared with less than 6,200 turned out in all of 1940. The tight supply situation existing in aluminum and magnesium may hold down the rate of gain in output temporarily. Nevertheless, it is believed that an annual production rate of more than 24,000 planes can be attained by December.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): Wheat increased 4,929,000, corn increased 232,000, oats increased 1,762,000, rye increased 1,728,000 and barley decreased 79,000.

Variety Sales Steady

The Commerce Department reported that daily average sales in the same as in June instead of registervariety stores in July were about tering the usual seasonal decline. Total July sales in the variety store trade were up about 15 per cent over a year ago.

Current High Industrial Rate To 'Flatten Out,' Say Economists

Economists predicted yesterday that industrial activity would "flatten out" in the next several months.

They added that a continued rise in the demands for farm products was expected for the remainder of the year but at a slower rate than during the first six months.

"There are signs," said the August report on demand and prices issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, "that the expansion of industrial activity and consumer purchasing power probably will be at a less rapid rate than in recent months.

"Although agricultural prices probably will go still higher as other prices rise, their contribution to the general advance may be less in the future than it has been in the first half of 1941 when the food-for-defense programs was developing and farm legislation was being overhauled.

"The effects of higher ocean transportation rates and developing shortages of some important commodities have been discounted in current prices to a considerable extent.

"With formal pricefixing for industrial commodities under consideration and conscription of industrial inventories provided for by legislation now in process, the incentive for businessmen to bid up prices in an attempt to insure adequate supplies or for protection against future prices advances may be reduced."

The report pointed out that industrial production rose in July to 162 per cent of the 1935-39 average compared with 104 two years ago, before the European war started.

"The rapid development of bottlenecks in the production and distribution of esential materials and the prospective switching of some important industries from civilian to defense production," the report continued, "indicate that further expansion in the output of defense equipment during the next few months will be largely at the expense of civilian goods.

"Industrial production, therefore, may not rise materially above the present level until the production of basic materials can be expanded and new manufacturing facilities come into full production. But such a temporary pause would not imply any fundamental change in the generally favorable demand outlook."

Mulroney Takes Post With Chicago Reserve Bank

By the Associated Press

A. J. Mulroney resigned yesterday as deputy comptroller of currency to become a vice president of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank on September 1.

The Treasury announced L. H. Sedlacek, now chief national bank examiner for the ninth district with headquarters in Minneapolis, has been appointed deputy comptroller to fill the vacancy.

The office of the comptroller of the currency supervises all national banks.

Mulroney is a native of Iowa, and during the 1933 banking holiday was in charge of reorganizing all national banks in eight central and northwestern States.

Sedlacek is a native of Spencer, Neb., and has been in the comptroller's office since 1924 when he became an assistant national bank examiner.

Follansbee Steel Net Up Six-Fold

Pittsburgh, Aug. 18 (AP).—Follansbee Steel Corporation in an unaudited report to stockholders disclosed today that earnings for the second quarter of 1941, exclusive of Federal taxes, were nearly six times greater than earnings for the first quarter.

The corporation report for the quarter ended June 30, 1941, with interest and depreciation deducted, showed earnings of $167,365. This compared with $29,929 earned during the first quarter and brought the earnings for the first half of the year to $197,294, after all charges except Federal taxes were deducted.

The statement said the earnings, after allowing for 25,516 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock, would be equal to 61 cents per share on the 217,966 shares of common stock.

100 Million Issue Sold by New York

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—New York State sold $100,000,000 of its short-term notes to meet general State expenses prior to tax collections. The notes were dated as of tomorrow, will mature next March 19 and bear 1-5 of 1 per cent annual interest. The issue was allotted last night by Comptroller Tremaine to more than 90 banks and other financial institutions.

Travelers Insurance Names New Officer

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 18 (AP).—Directors of the Travelers Insurance Co., today named Howard E. Critchefield a vice president in charge of the accident and group departments. Hesucceeds the late B. A. Page.

Critchfield has represented the company in Columbus, Ohio, and San Francisco.

Sharp Rise Noted In Bank Debits Over Year Ago

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that business activity, as measured by checks cashed, continued high last week.

In 274 leading cities, bank debits in the week ended August 13 totaled $9,242,000,000, against $6,916,000,000 in the corresponding week last year. Last week's figure fell below the $10,507,000,000 of the preceding week, however, because the earlier week included usually heavy first-of-the-month transactions.

Comparisons with a year ago, by Federal Reserve districts, follow (in millions of dollars):

	Wk. end. Aug. 13, 1941.	Wk. end. Aug. 14, 1940.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Aug. 18.—Publication of the Bank of France's weekly statement has been definitively resumed, the one published today being as of July 24. The principal changes noted are a rise in circulation of 500 million francs, an increase in noninterest bearing advances to the treasury of one million francs, and a fractional decline in the gold cover to 25.41 per cent as compared with 25.49 per cent July 17.

The gold reserve remains at 84 billion francs, where it stood after revaluation which took place in February, 1940. Total sight obligations went up slightly over one billion francs, to 332 billion.

Michigan Adopts 2-Year Auto Tags to Save Steel

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 18 (AP).—Michigan's 1942 automobile license plates will be built to last two years, the department of State has announced, becaues no steel will be available to maufacture new ones in 1943.

The plates will have at their bottoms the numerals "42" to denote the year of license. In 1943 a steel strip 1½ inch wide bearing the numerals "43" will be issued to be bolted over the original numerals.

Ultimately, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly said, Michigan may adopt plastic materials for plates.

Failures' Total Rises

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet reported today business failures for the week ended August 14 totaled 230, a slight increase over the 220 in the previous week, but still well below the weekly average for the year. A year ago, 279 failures were reported.

A. B. A. to Hear Federal Aides At Convention

Henry W. Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury; Senator Tom Connally of Texas, chairman of the United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres, director and coordinator of War Department statistics, are among the speakers who will address the annual convention of the American Bankers Association to be held in Chicago September 29 to October 2, according to P. D. Houston, president of the A. B. A.

The four-day convention is expected to attract some 5000 bankers from all parts of the country. Many Washington bankers will attend the sessions, which will be characterized by two principal themes: "Hemispheric Solidarity" and "National Defense Financing." The program will consist of two general sessions, the annual meeting of the four divisions of the association, and a series of round table conferences.

Brokerage Firms Merge

Two of the Nation's largest brokerage houses operated yesterday for the first time under their consolidated name—Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane. The new firm with offices in 91 cities including Washington is composed of Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt and Fenner & Beane.

Under the new arrangement George A. Garrett of Washington will be one of 48 general partners and Joseph H. Himes, also of Washington, will be among 19 special partners. The merged Washington offices eventually will occupy only the quarters now used by Fenner & Beane at 815 Fifteenth Street Northwest.

Twenty-one of the merged firms' 67 partners spent most of the weekend signing securities and documents under the new name. A 20-page specimen book containing the signateurs of partners was sent to every bank in the country.

Marsh Heads Sales Drive

The New York office of the National Association of Life Underwriters announced yesterday the appointment of John D. Marsh as chairman of the Life Underwriaers' Committee for National Defense Savings for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Marsh will organize and promote the efforts of the local underwriters in furthering the sale of Defense Savings Bonds.

N. S. T. A. Heads Nominated

Thomas A. Akin, president of the National Security Traders Association, Inc., announces that the slate of candidates for office in the ensuing term, to be presented for consideration at the N. S. T. A. annual convention to be held in New Orleans from September 23 to 26, has been submitteid to him by R. C. Miller, chairman of the nominating committee.

The slate, on which representatives of the organization's more than 2200 members including those in Washington will vote, is as follows:

For president, Herbert H. Blizzard, Philadelphia; for first vice president, Joseph W. Sener, Baltimore; for second vice president, William Perry Brown, New Orleans; for secretary, Bert F. Ludington, Detroit; for treasurer, Chester M. Glass, jr., San Francisco.

Air Express Sets New High

Nation-wide air express over 18 major airlines scored all-time highs in gross revenue, shipments and weight for the first six months of 1941 over all other half-year periods in the 14-year history of the services, the air express division of Railway Express Agency reported yesterday.

Shipments for the six-month span increased 28 per cent from 482,619 in 1940 to 618,989 in 1941; poundage was up 47 per cent from 3,135,656 in 1940 to 4,620,077 in 1941, and gross revenue was 41½ per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1940.

Industrial Shares Lead Quiet Recovery; U. S. Alcohol Posts New High for Year

Industrials today led the stock market on another quiet recovery jaunt. Steels, aircrafts, rails, motors and coppers were among the best performers. Activity slowed appreciably after mid-day and top gains running to a point or so were reduced in many instances at the close.

Brokers creditedt technical factors, rather than any outstanding news, for the moderate forward shift. The list, on average, had registered only two slight advances since July 28 and buyers stepped in here and there on the idea the market might have been oversold.

German-Russian war developments were a shade pessimistic marketwise and apprehension continued over rising tension in the Far East. In addition, darkening tax clouds and fears of Government restrictions on business remained as handicaps for bullish contingents.

The Associated Press composite of 80 stocks finished the session up .2 of a point at 43. Transfers of 404,760 shares were the second smallest for a full day since July 1. They compared with 365,470 last Friday.

Steels were aided by an estimated increase of .7 of a point at 98.2 per cent of capacity in this week's mill operations despite the severe scrap shortage. Rails and aircrafts were propped by a number of pleasing earnings statements. Motors improved notwithstanding the outlook for substantial cuts in new car production. The motor group had been shaky for some time.

United States Industrial Alcohol was one of the few issues to post a new high for the year. It was up 1⅜ at 32⅜. Continental Mothors was up ⅝ at 4, one 10,000-share block of thi sstock changing hands.

In the advancing ranks were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Standard Oil (N. J.), Wesinghouse, Eastman Kodak, United States Rubber and Caterpillar Tractor.

A bit lower were Consolidated Edison, Sears Roebuck, Macy, and Allied Chemical.

Lifted in the curb were American Export Lines, Aluminum of America, Gulf Oil, Creole Petroleum, N. J. Zinc and Pennroad. Turnover here approximated 66,000 shares versus 80,000 Friday.

The bond market settled into a narrow range today with most price changes limiteid to fractions. A group of inasctive issues, both domestic and foreign, moved up 1 to 5 points on light demand.

Trading was the smallest for a full session in more than a month at $4,485,900, par value, which compared with $5,855,700 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 10 foreign bonds dropped .5 of a point to 46.3 largely as a result of a decline of 6 points in Belgium 6s of '55 on sale of a single bond. The domestic groups in the index were only slightly changed either way.

U. S. Governments yielded small sums on the stock exchange and the trend was irregular over the counter.

Staples Idle, Await Action By Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures prices moved narrowly yesterday and closed near previous levels, apparently copying from the indecisive wheat and cotton markets, where inactivity was credited in part to a tendency to await President Roosevelt's action on the cotton-wheat loan stocks freezing bill.

Cotton futures closed unchanged to 10 cents a bale higher in New York, late trade demand overbalancing the selling that persisted through most of the session. Cottonseed oil was dull, finishing .02 of a cent higher to a like amount lower.

At Chicago wheat was unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel lower and corn lost ⅜ to ⅝ cent a bushel.

World sugar was the most active New York commodity, adding .02½ to .05½ cent a pound to values. Wool tops moved .3 to .4 of a cent a pound higher on rumors the Government might take over all unsold wool stocks.

Santos coffee futures were within a point of previous prices in dull trading.

The Associated Press index of cash commodity prices declined to 90.54 per cent of the 1926 average from 90.58 per cent on Saturday.

Railroad Profits Up 30.8% in July

Preliminary reports from 89 class 1 railroads to the Association of American Railroads showed yesterday their operating revenues during July approximated $387,086,000, or 30.8 per cent above the $296,031,000 in the same month a year ago.

The association said the reports represented 80.9 per cent of the total operating revenues of the 133 carriers in the Nation.

The figures included freight revenues of $323,751,000 and passenger revenues of $38,407,000, compared with $241,954,000 and $31,288,000, respectively, for July, 1940.

Steel Output Rate Mounts Fractionally

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Nation's steel mills will operate this week at 98.2 per cent of capacity, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

This rate, an increase of .7 of 1 per cent from last week, compares with rates of 97.9 per cent a month ago and 89.7 per cent a year ago.

Auto Dealers Told to Improve Repair Branch

By the Associated Press

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 18.—George W. Mason, president of Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, told distributors today that automotive dealer and service organizations must be kept intact "if the passenger car transportation system of America is to be prevented from breaking down."

He said it was a patriotic duty of the dealers to improve their repair facilities to take care of the increased number of older cars which decreased new car production would leave on the roads. America now spends more than a half billion dollars annually in maintaining its cars, Mason added, and that amount is likely to be increased.

"For our part, we plan to keep our service and dealer organization as intact as possible to service cars of Nash owners," he said. "This move is necessary on the part of dealers and manufacturers if the passenger car transportation system of America is to be prevented from breaking down, as cars will get out of repair and order.

"Those which will remain in a state of faulty operation will be a detriment to public safety and to the national demand for gasoline and oil economy."

Mason said that Nash would begin immediately to organize a series of service and repair schools to train mechanics and apprentices in methods of service to keep cars now on the road in proper operating order and to keep engines adjusted so that fuel will not be wasted. He pointed to the number of mechanics that have been taken into the Army or into defense industry.

About 150 distributors were on hand for the meeting which will continue through tomorrow.

ODD BODKINS

BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

UNDERSTAND NOW—HE MUST ORDER TURTLE SOUP WHEN HE GETS HERE! IS THAT CLEAR?
SURE—I CATCH ON!
HE IS THE STRONGEST PERSON IN THE WORLD, SO BE CAREFUL NOT TO AROUSE HIM!
AFTER HE ORDERS TURTLE SOUP, THEN WHAT?
WELL—WHATEVER HAPPENS TO HIM WILL BE HIS OWN FAULT, AND WE WILL BE ABSOLVED OF ANY RESPONSIBILITY!
I GUESS THEY WERE EXPECTING ME!

Broadway chit-chat being the important thing it is—witness the columns after columns of it which appear in the newspapers, most of them far, far from Broadway—you're going to hear twice as much of it each week over WJSV as you've been hearing before.

Starting today, at 10:30 a. m., Dorothy Kilgallen, one of the foremost purveyors of Broadway's very vital statistics—undoubtedly she's the most attractive, unless you want to be a meanie and consider Mr. Winchell in a naval uniform prettier—is to have another program over CBS.

She's had one all along on Saturdays at the same time of day, but her sponsors were so pleased with the results that nothing would do but that they should have twice as much each week.

So now you can have your news of night clubs, theaters, smart shops, grog shops, people and what have you in a double portion.

Miss Kilgallen, in the horrid case that you don't know about her, is the young newspaper woman who flew around the world a few years ago, encircling the globe in 24 days, 12 hours and 51 minutes—to be exact. It was after she'd been working for a New York newspaper only a few weeks and it was a nice break. She wrote a book about it called "Girl Around the World," and ever since then she's been writing columns about Broadway celebrities like mad.

Silver Spring Woman Dies in Auto Accident

Mrs. N. P. Neilson, 43, of Silver Spring, Md., was killed and three members of her family injured Sunday in an automobile accident at Fairbury, Ill., according to word reaching here yesterday.

Mrs. Neilson's husband, an official of the National Educational Association of this city, and two children, Richard, 14, and Carol, 6, were removed to a hospital and treated for injuries. Mrs. Neilson's body will be sent for burial to Logan, Utah, where the family was going on vacation.

Neilson, a well-known educator, was national executive secretary of the American Association of Health and Physical Education division of N. E. A. He has been in Washington about three years, and lived at 1709 Corwin Drive, Silver Spring, Md.

Officials of N. E. A. received a wire from Neilson yesterday. It said: "It rained. Lila (Mrs. Neilson) was driving to relieve me. We turned over. Carol and I all right. Richard quite badly hurt but I think he will be all right. Lila was killed. Will take body to Logan, Utah."

Donald Neilson, 21, George Washington University student, fifth member of the family, did not accompany his parents. He left here yesterday for Logan upon learning of the tragedy.

John A. Noel Funeral Services Set Tomorrow

Funeral services for John A. Noel, 92, who died Sunday at his home at 258 Eighth Street Southeast, after a brief illness, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in his home. The Rev. William Wright, of the Douglas Methodist Church, will officiate and burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery with Masonic ceremonies.

Mr. Noel was born in Cincinnati and moved to Washington more than 50 years ago to accept a position in the Government Printing Office. A few years later he married Miss Theresa Lawdy, of Cincinnati, who died more than 40 years ago.

He was retired as a pressman in the money order division from the Government Printing Office 10 years ago and devoted his spare time to his hobby of tinkering in his basement toolshop. Mr. Noel patented a number of inventions, the best of which, he thought, was an automatic gate closer.

Mr. Noel was a member of National Lodge No. 12, of the Masonic Order, and attended the First Congregational Church. He is survived by his four daughters: Miss Capitola Noel, of 258 Eighth Street Southeast; Mrs. Daniel Lupton, of Winchester, Va.; Mrs. Lester Ellis, of Mount Rainier, Md., and Mrs. Mae Noel Geisel, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

James A. Finch, Ex-Justice Aide, Dies in Florida

James A. Finch, 75, of 5535 Nevada Avenue, Northwest, died at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Sunday, according to a report received here.

Mr. Finch came to Washington in 1890 to accept a position in the Department of Justice. In 1907 he was made the pardon attorney and served in that capacity until his retirement in 1936. During that time he was editor of several volumes of the official opinions of the Attorney General and a digest of the opinions of the Attorney General. He was a member of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and a Past Master of the William R. Singleton Lodge 30, F. A. A. M.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Nellie W. Finch; a daughter, Mrs. Carl G. Stoner; two sisters, Flora Finch and Harriett Finch; two brothers, Stanley W. Finch and Cresson B. Finch, and three grandchildren.

Puerto Ricans Flock to Colors, Guy Swope Says

The "spirit of patriotism and loyalty to the American Government on the part of citizens of Puerto Rico is as high as anywhere," Guy J. Swope, who has retired as governor of the island, said here yesterday.

"The boys are flocking to the colors. We don't have to draft them down there," Swope said during a reception tendered him yesterday by the Puerto Rico Trade Council in the Pan-American room of the Mayflower Hotel. The island, he said, "is enjoying a peak of prosperity."

As new director of Territories and Island Possessions, Swope said he would endeavor to take to the office his experience of two years in Puerto Rico and maintain harmony between the American Government and its outposts.

Attending the reception, among others, were Ramon Quinones, chairman, Puerto Rico Public Service Commission; Leon Henderson, price control administrator; Former Governor Blanton Winship, of Puerto Rico, and Luis Munoz Marine, president of the Puerto Rican Senate.

Strides Revealed In Enlargements Of Color Prints

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP).—Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, vice president and research director of the Eastman Kodak Co., disclosed today the firm has developed and is ready to market commercially color photographic prints in enlargements of two and five diameters.

In addition, Dr. Mees told the forty-second convention of the International Photoengravers Union (A. F. L.) enlargements up to 30 by 40 inches can be produced for commercial use.

Previously, he explained only small transparencies, converted from the color negatives, have been generally available to the public wishing to take still color photographs.

He said 80 per cent of all amateur movies are in color, first introduced in 1935, and he expects still photographs to follow that trend.

Navy's Publicity Appeal Moves Editor to Enlist

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 18 (AP).—Holding a meeting of 125 Kentucky newspaper editors to promote publicity for its enlistment campaign, the Navy told sold its plan to 124 of the editors and sold itself to the other one.

After listening to a talk by Capt. F. E. M. Whiting of Washington, top-ranking officer in the recruiting service; J. D. Embry, 23, managing editor of the Hart County News at Munfordville, stepped forward and offered to enlist.

"I got interested in what he had to say," Embry explained, "and I thought I might as well take a try at it. The captain said I was a cinch to get in if I passed the physical examination and I know I can do that."

3 New Paralysis Cases Reported

Three new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the District Health Department yesterday, bringing the total for the month of August to 10, it was announced last night.

This represents a 100 per cent increase over the same month last year when no cases were reported, but Dr. James G. Cumming, director of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said there is no indication of a serious outbreak.

Victims of current cases are all under 15 and are scattered throughout the District, he said.

Charles B. Wilson, Biologist, Dead at 79

Westfield, Mass., Aug. 18 (AP).—Charles B. Wilson, 79, nationally known biologist who had conducted numerous surveys for the Government, died today.

For many years he headed the science department at Westfield State Teachers College and was author of numerous articles and science textbooks.

Opposition Here To 8-Point Pledge Cheers Italians

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 18.—The Italian newspapers today triumphantly display dispatches from Washington about opposition to President Roosevelt's eight points and other commitments made during the meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The heroes of the day are Senators Guy M. Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa; Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina; Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada; Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), of Missouri; Representatives Dewey Short (Republican), of Missouri; Lewis D. Thill (Republican), of Wisconsin, and Roy O. Wodruff (Republican), of Michigan. The news of these men and of Alfred M. Landon (Republican), of Kansas, are cited as evidence that "the reaction against Roosevelt is growing.

The fact that the President felt it necessary to assure the American people immediately that they were no nearer to war is also considered here a sign of weakness. The Lavoro Fascista calls it "recognition that the sentiments of the people are definitely against any intervention."

Prisoner Found With 24 Keys, Mask of Self

Philadelphia, Aug. 18 (AP).—Prison officials announced tonight this inventory of five years of extra curricular activity by "Slick Willie" Sutton:

Sixty feet of one-inch rope and 12 wooden rungs for use as a rope ladder.

The inventory was taken today, admittedly a bit premature by Sutton—nicknamed Slick Willie, for an escape from New York's Sing Sing. Guards who had noticed his growing interest in art decided to investigate. They found the mask and hand, complete with cigarette in it, which Warden Herbert Smith said Willie had hoped to put in bed as a dummy and thus delay suspicions until he gained freedom. The human hair for the mask came from prison shop sweepings.

WPA to Pay For Defense Work Training

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 18.—Fred R. Rauch, assistant commissioner of the Works Projects Administration, came here from Washington today to confer with New York State WPA executives regarding the placing in operation of a new plan whereby WPA workers are to train in national defense factories while remaining on the WPA payroll for a maximum of four weeks.

Following the meeting, which was held at the WPA headquarters here, Rauch, who also is a member of the labor supply committee of the Office of Production Management, said that he expected the plan to be the most practical approach to the training and reemployment problem, so far as the WPA and private industry are concerned.

The program already has been tried out on an experimental basis at the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. plant, New Haven, Conn.; the Bell Aircraft Co. plant, Buffalo, N. Y., and the Parker Appliance Co. plant, Cleveland, Ohio, which makes parts for big bombers.

Lord Mountbatten, Cousin of King, Due in U. S. Today

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 18.—Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of King George VI of England, who has had an adventurous career in the war as a captain in the Royal Navy, will be among the 19 passengers from Lisbon arriving tomorrow on the Pan American Airways flying boat, Dixie Clipper. Lady Louis Mountbatten is with him.

It was believed in London that Lord Mountbatten was on his way to China to take command of a warship in Far Eastern waters. He has had narrow escapes in encounters with Axis forces in the English Channel and in the Mediterranean.

Lady Mountbatten, who is London County president of the St. John's Ambulance Association, is coming to the United States at the invitation of Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of the American Red Cross Volunteer Service.

Pierce; seven brothers and sisters, William L., jr., James Franklin, Henry, Dorothy Rhoda, Joseph L., Mary Sue, Marguerite, and Alice.

I. L. O. Proposes Widespread Use Of Job Insurance

Montreal, Aug. 18 (AP).—Widespread adoption of compulsory unemployment insurance to soften the effects of any postwar social upheaval was the main measure recommended by the International Labor Office in a 12000-word memorandum issued here tonight.

The memorandu mwas prepared by Oswald Stein, chief of the social insurnace section of the I. L. O., which has its headquarters here since moving from Geneva last year. It is preliminary to a report which E. J. Phelan, acting director of the I. L. O., will submit to a conference of the body in New York in October.
